Germans Claim Break Through After Fierce Fight Lasting 10 Days

Blood for Oil

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 29.—Thousands of German troops tonight were pouring into the strategic Crimean Peninsula after cracking Russian defenses, apparently on the narrow Perekop Isthmus, in a violent ten-day battle, the high command announced.

Almost 500 miles to the east along the northern rim of the Black Sea other German units were reported struggling over muddy roads only 10 miles short of Rostov, springboard for a turn southward into the rich Caucasus oil region.

15,700 Prisoners Claimed

News of operations on the Moscow and Leningrad fronts was almost blacked out here. A few sketchy reports told only of aerial bombardments of those two cities. Bad weather slowed up action in these sectors, but the Germans denied their war machine was "stuck in the mud."

In the break-through into the Crimea, the high command said, 15,700 Russians, 13 tanks, 109 guns and other war material were captured.

Although the Germans did not specify where they cracked the steel and concrete Russian defenses before taking up "pursuit of the defeated enemy," fighting has raged for some time on the 4-mile-wide Perekop Isthmus connecting the peninsula with the mainland to the north.

Soviet Ships Hammered

Strategically the Crimea is important to the Germans because of their belief it will afford naval bases to facilitate the army's overland drive toward the Caucasus.

London Report:

Beaverbrook May Quit On B. E. F. Issue

By the United Press

London, Oct. 29.—Foreign diplomats said tonight there might be a direct connection between Lord Beaverbrook's stand in favor of sending a British expeditionary force to Russia and reports that he would resign from the supply ministry and, consequently, from the war cabinet.

These envoys said Beaverbrook had been more insistent than any other cabinet member in advocating the sending of a strong B. E. F. to Russia—presumably to the Donets Valley, or the eastern Ukraine, where the heavy fighting is now in progress.

Supply ministry officials said Beaverbrook was suffering from asthma.

'Trigger Man' Of Md. Holdup Caught in N. Y.

Suspect Is Described As Underworld Figure, Robber, Counterfeiter

A second bandit suspect, wanted for the $50,000 Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. robbery, has been captured in New York City, it was learned last night.

He was described as the "trigger man," the man who brandished a gun when he and two henchmen held up two bank messengers in Hyattsville, Md., on September 25 in the biggest robbery of its kind in the history of this area.

In contrast to the first suspect captured, an alleged petty thief known as "Four Roses," the man arested in New York is described as an underworld big leaguer. In his 42 years he has figured as a mail robber and a counterfeiter, and has served better than a third of his life in prison.

From what detectives have said about "Four Roses"—Hilliard Sanders, 27—the New York prisoner doubtless is more angry with him than he is with his captors. "Four Roses," they say, was overwhelmed by coming into so much money, and went out on a wild spending spree.

Reports of his profligacy led investigators to North Carolina, where in Charlotte he had just bought a gleaming bright yellow car with red wheels with $1500 in small bills. His arrest followed.

Sanders, who is now in the District Jail on a charge of robbery, is alleged to have been the driver of the getaway automobile used in the robbery.

With the arrest of the suspect in New York, only one of the

Mercury May Hit 28 in Suburbs, 32 in District

Freezing and subfreezing temperatures are predicted for Washington and vicinity early today for the first time since last spring. The weather man said the mercury will dip to 32 degrees in the city and to 28 in the suburbs. It will be accompanied by frost.

The mercury recorded 37 degrees at 6:30 a. m. yesterday and reached a high of 54 at 3:40 p. m.

Today it will be warmer with some cloudiness.

Economy Unit Formed; Byrd Is Chairman

With a pledge of Treasury support from Secretary Morgenthau, the new 14-man joint committee to investigate nonessential Federal expenditures organized yesterday and elected Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman.

Byrd issued a statement that "it is vital to our future security that nonessential Federal spending be cut to the bone" and "our financial security is just as important to our democracy as our defense security."

The committee, created by Byrd's economy amendment to the 1941 tax bill, brought together in one group for the first time ranking members of the appropriating and taxing committees of House and Senate, to sit with both the Secretary of the Treasury and the director of the budget.

Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee was elected vice chairman of the committee, which received the Budget Bureau's recent report indicating how nondefense expenditures might be reduced by one billion, 1½ billion, or two billion dollars. First act of the committee was to call on the Budget Bureau for "more detailed information."

Housing Delay Is Assailed As 'Criminal'

By John W. Henderson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Controversy over the defense housing program exploded before an investigating committee and on the Senate floor yesterday, with one Government official accusing another of "criminal" delay while Senators disagreed as to whether Sidney Hillman should be blamed for his part in the so-called "Currier case."

Administrative dissension over the housing program was brought into the open by Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, who testified that an effort to use "new and untried devices" for administering the program had produced a dozen agencies, "more or less competing with each other."

Assails Hillman

Straus decried "a delay that is criminal due to the interference by the defense housing coordinator (Charles F. Palmer)" and predicted "the most desperate housing conditions in defense centers this winter, dangerous congestion—all of which could have been avoided, if there had been an early enough recognition of the real housing need and if the tested machinery of established housing agencies had been used to meet that need."

Shortly after Straus made these statements before the Senate committee investigating the defense program, Chairman Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, took the Senate floor to declare that if Hillman, associate director general of the Office of Production Management, "can't or won't protect the interests of the

Navy Adopts British Policy of Silence in Submarine Sinkings

(Text of the Navy Department's report yesterday on the Kearny attack, Page 14.)

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Navy disclosed yesterday that a night battle between American warships and a German submarine wolf-pack was fought October 16 in the North Atlantic and that it was during this engagement that the U. S. destroyer Kearny was torpedoed.

Further details of the Kearny fight, made public by Secretary Knox, revealed that other American destroyers were at the scene, that a running battle went on during the night between U-boats and the opposing escort warships, and that the Kearny was not torpedoed until "some time after" she went into action, dropping a series of depth bombs aimed at a German submarine.

Whether or not the U-boat was hit or whether any of the Nazi wolf-pack was sunk or damaged in the battle, was not disclosed. Secretary Knox at the same time announced the United States will follow the British example and will not give out submarine sinkings.

He answered "no comment" to questions from newsmen about reports the Navy had sunk at least three German submarines, and noted that Britain has destroyed "a lot of" Nazi U-boats which are not announced.

"We're going to be guided, with respect to such announcements," Knox said, "just as any belligerent power would be, by strategic reasons. What will be best for the safety of the fleet and victory for our

Ship Bill Holds War Decision, Senators Aver

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Two bitter opponents of the Administration's foreign policy, Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and Senator Nye, (Republican), of North Dakota, told the Senate yesterday that its action on the free shipping bill will tilt the balance for "peace or war."

Senate leaders, driving for final passage by next midweek, assigned the entire day to the isolationist pair but rose repeatedly to challenge charges that the bill is a blueprint for war.

A poll of Senate Democrats taken for the leadership meanwhile marked down 44 Senators as sure votes for the bill, to 13 definitely against and 8 doubtful.

Coupled with 7 probable Republican votes for the bill, plus the independent vote of Senator Norris of Nebraska, the poll indicated a majority for the bill of at least 52, with possible further gains from the doubtful list.

Following are the Senate Democratic votes on which bill managers feel they can certainly count:

Miners May Return Tomorrow Pending Action by Board

COAL STRIKE SETTLEMENT creates doubt in Congress that new legislation will be sought. Page 2.

Good News

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

A temporary settlement of the three-day strike in "captive" coal mines that will send 53,000 miners back to their jobs, probably tomorrow, pending further proceedings before the full National Defense Mediation Boar was assured late yesterday a ternoon at the conclusion of two-hour White House conference..

William H. Davis, board chairman, who participated in the Presidential meeting with John L. Lewis, mine workers' president, and Myron C. Taylor, representative of the United States Steel Corporation, read to reporters a letter from Mr. Roosevelt disclosing that the Chief Executive had asked both sides to reopen the mines on the understanding that the full board would consider the merits of the closed shop dispute and make a final recommendation.

The Presidential request specifically provided that neither party was committed in advance to accept the board's final recommendations.

Lewis Reticent on Request

Although Lewis declined to say whether he had accepted the President's request and announced only that he would summon district leaders of the union for conference here today, it was learned authoritatively late last night that Lewis had, in effect, given his consent. Discussions with the mine union officers today, it was believed, would be a mere formality.

Lewis told reporters at the White House that his group would give their answer today, probably by noon.

Agreement to the proposal by United States Steel Corporation—the dominant employer organization involved in the strike—was considered assured. Asked if Mr. Roosevelt's request was acceptable, Taylor, representative and former board chairman of the mammoth corporation, replied:

"Certainly."

He qualified his statement only by pointing out that he, "personally," was in favor of the plan.

N.B.C., C.B.S. Sign Contract With ASCAP

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 29.—The National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System today signed a new nine-year contract with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, providing for the return of ASCAP music to both major networks at midnight tonight.

The agreement ended a controversy which has kept ASCAP tunes from most stations since January 1.

The contract signed today provides that the networks will pay ASCAP at the source 2¼ per cent of time sales volume minus certain discounts, and the individual station will pay 2¼ per cent. The total paid before was 5 per cent, but it was collected from individual stations.

War Dept. Acts To Halt Spread Of Plane Strike

Air Associates, Inc., Ordered to Reinstate Workers 'Immediately'

The threat of a five-State strike of aircraft factories on the East Coast was removed yesterday when the War Department, thoroughly aroused at the attitude of the management of Air Associates, Inc., announced that two Army officers would be sent to the Bendix, N. J., plane parts factory to supervise the "immediate" reinstatement of employes out on strike.

Col. Roy M. Jones, Eastern district supervisor for the Air Corps Procurement Division, and his assistant, Maj. Peter Beasley, plan to arrive at Bendix today.

The War Department action was taken on complaints that the company was violating its promise to accept Mediation Board recommendations on a dispute with the company's C. I. O. workers. Chief recommendation was reinstatement of the striking employes.

It was learned that if there is further trouble with the company, the Army was prepared to take over the strike-troubled plant immediately and that a determined agreement to enforce the board's recommendations was reached by OPM Chiefs Knudsen and Hillman, the Mediation Board, and Undersecretary of War Patterson.

Richard T. Frankensteen, head of the C. I. O. aviation workers, indicated, on receipt of news of the War Department decision, that his threat on Tuesday to call out all aircraft workers on the East Coast would be lifted pending satisfac-

Fahy Nominated Solicitor General

Charles Fahy, assistant solicitor of the United States, yesterday was nominated by President Roosevelt to succeed Francis Biddle, now Attorney General, in the solicitor's post.

Fahy, as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, in which post he served for five years, won his most notable victories in arguing successfully the constitutionality of the Wagner Labor Relations Act and resisting scores of powerful attacks on orders issued by the board.

Witness' Credibility at Issue

Guy Oden Granted New Trial In Slaying of Sweetheart, 15

In an almost unprecedented court action, District Court Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday granted a new trial to Guy E. Oden, 20, convicted of first degree murder on September 30, for the slaying of his 15-year-old sweetheart, Ellen Reid Cannon.

Justice Adkins ruled that "the credibility of the most important witness in the case," the slain girl's sister, had not been "fully examined" by the defense, and that because of this error, the defendant was entitled to another trial.

The dead girl's sister, Mrs. Helen Yates, testified during the trial that she was not married twice. Later, out of court, she is said to have revealed to Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius that she was not legally divorced from her first husband.

Attorney Margolius informed Justice Adkins, and offered to place Mrs. Yates on the stand again, but, because of a ruling by Justice Adkins, the witness did not testify any further, and thus could not be reexamined by the defense attorney.

Oden's new defense attorney, James J. Laughlin, asked for a new trial partially on the plea that Oden had "inadequate" defense counsel. Justice Adkins refused to grant the new trial on that basis, and said that he believed that "the defense attorney, Milton I. Lewis, was a capable and able attorney."

The justice also praised the United States Attorney's office for its "fair handling" of the case. He said that the new trial was granted solely on the question of Mrs. Yates' credibility as a witness.

No date for the new trial has been set.

The Cow—or Where Milk Comes From

London, Oct. 29 (U.P.).—Ernest Brown, minister of health, today read the following essay he received from a 10-year-old London East End boy who had been evacuated to the country:

"Birds and Beasts"

The cow is a mamal. It has six sides, right and left and upper and below. At the back it has a tail on which hangs a brush. With this he sends flies away so they don't fall into the milk. The head is for the purpose of growing horns and so his mouth can be somewhere. The horns are to butt with and the mouth to moo with. Under the cow hangs the milk. It is arranged for milking. When people milk, milk comes and there never is an end to the supply. How the cow does it I have not yet realized, but it makes more and more. The cow has a fine sense of smell and one can smell it far away. This is the reason for fresh air in the country.

A man cow is called an ox. The cow does not eat much, but what it eats it eats twice so that it gets enough. When it is hungry it moos and when it says nothing at all it is because its insides are full up with grass.

Plane Worker Admits Cutting Vital Wires on U. S. Bombers

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Oct. 29.—A young aircraft worker leaned on the desk of United States Commissioner James K. Cullen today and haltingly recalled "several times" that he had cut vital electric wiring on B-26 Martin bombers under construction for the War Department.

After questioning Michael William Etzel, 22, Commissioner Cullen entered for him a temporary plea of innocent to charges of sabotage and set bail at $25,000 pending a hearing next Wednesday to give Etzel a chance to "think things over and see what you want to do." Etzel said he couldn't raise the money.

Still wearing the leather jacket, worn brown trousers and paint-spattered shoes in which he was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Etzel fumbled as he related in answer to court questions that:

He is a native Baltimorean, married and with "a baby on the way." His mother is dead, his father and other relatives are in Germany. Somehow he thought he was trying to protect them. The fact his alleged acts might endanger Americans struck him only after his arrest.

Commissioner Cullen asked, "so you became Americanized for the first time last night in Central Police Station?"

Etzel said he guessed so. He was uncertain how he would plead to the formal complaint that on or about July 12, 1941, he "wilfully did injure and commit depredations against property being manufactured for the War Department."

Bill Being Drafted On Strike Cool-off

Need of Curbs Believed Diminished By Agreement on Coal Truce

Capitol Hill leaders last night speculated on the possibility that President Roosevelt may ask Congress in a special message for legislation to cope with defense strikes, but declared that settlement of the captive coal mines shutdown diminished the "need" for legislative action.

While one Administration spokesman said, in his opinion, the PPresident "might" send such a message to Congress within the next few days, Majority Leader Barkley told reporters:

"If the coal strike is settled, I'd think there would be less need for an urgent message on labor legislation."

"Cooling-Off Period"

An Administration senator and an outstanding liberal, it was learned, has begun to draft legislation that would make available for all labor the "cooling-off" procedure now open to railroad workers under the Railway Mediation Act.

At the same time, it was learned, the possibility exists that the Vinson "cooling-off" bill, now on the House calendar, may be called up next week and, with modifications, may get the blessing of the White House.

Lewis Called "Labor Bully"

Continued verbal chastisement of John L. Lewis, mine workers' president, made it more obvious than ever that Congress is in a mood to move against defense stoppages, but even the most ardent advocates of such a step conceded that there is little likelihood of action until the President gives his approval.

Senator Ellender (Democrat), Louisiana, took the Senate floor to warn "the working man not to follow," Lewis, "this labor bully, who seeks advancement . . . with full knowledge that noncompliance with his demands will threaten our very existence."

Ellender called upon labor to "foster a movement to oust such leadership before it is too late."

"Do not force Congress into the position where it may be compelled to pass laws that will take away from you (labor) some of your most cherished rights," he warned. "The patience of Congress and of the people is almost at an end."

In an unanimously approved resolution, the Texas delegation in the House condemned "such leaders and minority of labor and their action in interrupting the defense program by strikes." The delegation pledged support of "any necessary and proper legislation which will curb and prevent such strikes in this crisis."

Technically, the Vinson bill now on the House calendar is a measure that would "freeze" existing open or closed arrangements in defense industries, but a less drastic version, believed acceptable to the Administration, has been prepared for submission as a committee amendment to the original proposal.

"Stand Still" Orders

This bill, drafted with the assistance of Mediation Board Chairman William H. Davis, would authorize the President to issue "stand still" orders in labor disputes to prevent defense strikes for a 30-day "cooling" period.

Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, as a ranking member of the Rules Committee, which has granted the Vinson bill a rule, is in a position to call up the measure any time he desires. Smith last night made it clear that he has no interest in the modified Vinson bill and that he will take no action unless he is convinced that the more stringent measure has a chance of standing up in the House.

Speaking of the modified "cooling-off" bill, he declared:

"Where does that get you? You can't cool off John L. Lewis. He's already had a cooling-off period."

aloud to reporters at Executive Offices' foyer, was as follows:

"I have asked the United States Steel Corporation and the United Mine Workers of America if they will immediately reopen the mines on the understanding that the National Defense Mediation Board will proceed in full session to consider the merits of the dispute and make its final recommendation.

"It is understood that neither party is committed in advance to the acceptance of the final recommendations.

"You have informed me that the full board is meeting on Friday and will be prepared to consider the matter continuously until it makes its final recommendations."

Previously, the Mediation Board had declined to recommend on the merits of the dispute, arguing that there was no precedent in law either prohibiting or prescribing the closed shop. Instead, it recommended alternate methods of procedure, both utimately involving an arbitration decision which both sides would agree beforehand to accept.

The board's present willingness to recommend on the merits of the dispute, it was indicated, comes from the fact that if Lewis and United States Steel Corporation accept the President's request, they will be, in effect, voluntarily asking the Mediation Board for its findings and recommendations.

Even though they do not agree to accept the recommendations that the board will issue, the procedure contemplated is similar to that under the British labor system as well as the method followed under the American Railway Labor Act.

The White House conference followed a six-hour session between Lewis and Taylor at the Mayflower Hotel.

It was learned that the proceedings contemplated before the Mediation Board would probably not involve direct representation by either of the disputants, both being willing to let the matter progress on the basis of evidence already in the record, placed there when the case was first heard before a three-man board panel, consisting of Davis, Walter C. Teagle, employer representative, and Hugh Lyons, labor member.

Speculation on Decision

The immediate question for speculation was how the full board would decide on the issue of the closed shop. It was taken for granted that the four labor members would be aligned in favor and the four employer members would oppose it.

This would leave the decision to two of the three public members. Besides Davis, they are Dr. Frank A. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, and Charles E. Wyzanski, jr., Boston attorney, who was formerly solicitor of the Labor Department and special assistant to the Attorney General.

Only once has the board ruled in such a way as to grant a closed shop, in the case of the Bethlehem Steel shipyards on the West Coast. In this case the board recommended that the company sign the general West Coast shipyards labor agreement, which contained closed-shop provisions. The decision was based on a finding that alone among 39 shipbuilding companies on the Pacific Coast, Bethlehem was not a signatory to the pact.

Lewis, it was believed, may be relying on a similar decision in view of the fact that commercial coal mines in the entire Appalachian area, mining the great majority of the Nation's supply, operate under a closed shop, and that other "captive" mines, owned by shipyards and railways, are also closed shop.

Strike Might Be Resumed

On the other hand, the board may decide that there is a distinction between the coal and the Bethlehem cases and that the closed shop should not be imposed on companies whose major operations—steel making—are open shop.

It was confidently predicted that if the findings go against Lewis, the strike will be resumed.

Preparing for this eventuality, the Justice Department and Mediation Board officials have prepared executive orders, patterned after those used in the June strike at the North American Aviation Co. plant, to occupy the captive mines.

The orders would provide for taking over the mines under the President's Constitutional authority, the authority of existing laws and as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy. Troops would be sent "to prevent disorder."

Some observers saw in the temporary settlement plan a victory for the gray-maned veteran C. I. O. leader, in that he had weathered two flat rejections to prior Presidential pleas, failed to answer or acknowledge a third, declined to answer a specific request of Davis that he reply to board recommendations, and successfully evaded the earlier recommendations that he submit to a binding arbitration decision.

Further, he declined to call the striking miners back to work today, and stood, instead, on the formality of summoning his union officers for "discussion" of Mr. Roosevelt's request.

The President's Day

By International News Service

ROUND TABLE TALK: Banging away on all cylinders, the President began the day with breakfast and decisions. From out of the early morning air, usually notably thin, Mr. Roosevelt plucked a subject for round-table debate, decided to give another speech, sit for a portrait. On request, he produced at a moment's notice the topic "Increase Defense" for a round-table radio discussion of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Off to society President Dwight Marvin, round-tablers Tom Wallace, Grove Patterson and Dr. George Gallup, the poller, went the Presidential choice in double-quick time. His next speech, he said, would come off in the White House East Room next Wednesday before a convention of international labor office delegates.

PORTRAIT: Beginning yesterday afternoon the President not only works but sits for his portrait as he works. President of Mexico, Manuel Avila Camancho, has commissioned Painter Armando Drechsler to do the President in oils. When finished the portrait will be presented to the White House as a gesture of esteem and friendliness from Mexico.

COWBOYS AND INDIANS: Luther Johnson, pride of Texas, snagged post position at the Presidential deskside in the morning, was followed by a serious, brief-cased corps from Michigan. In came Gov. Murray Van Waggoner, State Highway Commissioner Donald Kennedy, Senator Prentiss Brown, to tell the President about 150,000 men that had been thrown out of work by the transition of industry to defense needs, that they had a plan to combat the unemployment. The President promised complete governmental cooperation.

SEEN AND SAID: Gov. John M. Broughton of North Carolina wanted some lend-lease shipping out N. C. ports and some shipyards for Moorehead City, N. C. Max Singer, new commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, wanted to and did tell the President that the V. F. W.'s stood solidly behind his foreign policy. John Biggers, OPM expert, had an invitation to al fresco lunch at the Roosevelt desk, talked over a myriad of allied-aid problems. Secretary of State Hull came over to talk about secret things at 3 p. m.

CIVIL WAR: At 3:54 on the head, John L. Lewis, Myron Taylor and Mediator William H. Davis pulled up before the Executive office. Capital and Government rode in the back seat, Lewis straddled the jump seat. Daniel stalked into the lion's den followed by the two men, with whom he had been deadlocked in conference all day.

AND RELAXATION: After one of the toughest days in his long history of tough days, the President relaxed last night. Some 16 guests were summoned for dinner, movies shown afterward. Producer Darryl Zanuck, former Director-Commander John Ford, the Averell Harrimans, James Forrestals and Harry Hopkins were seated at a lively dinner. After the last drop of demi-tasse, the President and guests went upstars, saw the Ford-directed movie, "How Green Is My Valley."

In unmistakable language, Patterson declared that the War Department "expects that those strikers will then be immediately placed in the jobs they formerly held, regardless of the fact that new employes have been hired by the company to fill such jobs."

Other strife spotting the defense labor picture, as reported by the Associated Press, follows:

A. C. I. O. strike closed the machine tool plant of the Medart Co. in St. Louis which makes tools needed by aluminum, brass and steel companies having defense contracts. The union sought an immediate wage increase of 10 cents an hour and a 5-cent increase after six months in a scale which it said now ranged between 40 and 75 cents.

There was further trouble in the Seattle area when A. F. L. metal trades council members protected workers who crashed a picket line of striking welders and entered the Lake Washington Shipyards to go to work. It was the second day of inter-union strife. The plant management said 90 per cent of the workers were on the job.

Word of other shipping troubles came from Bay City, Mich., where a strike in the Defoe Boat and Motor Works stopped production on eight submarine chasers and mine sweepers to cost $20,000,000. The walkout was voted, a C. I. O. shipbuilders union spokesman said, to enforce a demand for a union shop.

When all America calls for the best, it's a large order.

America always makes up its mind about quality slowly and carefully. But, once it is certain that a product is the best of its kind, America quickly demands its production on a tremendous scale.

With more Budweiser than ever before, there has not been enough to go 'round

Never before in history has there been a situation like this:

A vast expansion program carried on for eight years made it possible for the world's largest brewery to produce more beer in 1941 than ever before has come from a single brewery or group of breweries operating under one management — and yet it was impossible for us to fill all orders.

Such a demand, previously unheard of for any similar product, made it difficult to maintain adequate distribution in all of the 48 states at all times. Through it all, our dealers have shown great patience and for this we are grateful.

America prefers Budweiser. Your own preference for Budweiser is a compliment to your own good taste—proof that you recognize the outstanding quality that has made Budweiser the biggest-selling beer in history.

With the completion of our expansion program, we trust that you now are getting Budweiser whenever you call for it.

Russian War Ended, Say Rumanians

By Ernest G. Fischer
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Rumanian army of occupation at Ochakov, on the Black Sea, Soviet Russia, Oct. 20 (Delayed).—Rumanian troops stationed in this area believe the Russian war is over as far as they are concerned.

High Rumanian authorities said the main Russian advance had ended at the west bank of the Bug River, which runs almost parallel to the 1939 Dniester River frontier, 50 to 100 miles deep in the Ukraine.

Their statement was interpreted to mean that Rumanian territorial ambitions have been realized.

Now that Odessa has been taken, many of the occupation troops expect to return home.

Among them are Gen. Mircea Dimitriu and his forces, who, after participating in the two-month siege of Odessa, now are resting in this fortress town 40 miles to the east.

Cavalry Still in Field

One Rumanian cavalry corps operating in the Crimea zone, however, is expected to remain in the field. It may be augmented by two more army corps.

These three Rumanian corps, Rumanian sources said, will continue active as Rumania's "contribution to Europe's common front against bolshevism."

(The first mention by the German high command of Rumanian troops in action since the date of this dispatch, October 20, was made today. The communique said the Rumanians had captured an island in the northwest corner of the Sea of Azov, probably 140 miles beyond the Bug.

(Several recent roundabout Balkan reports, usually by way of Turkey, have mentioned Rumanian unrest and agitation to quit the war. The Rumanians have announced heavy casualties amounting to 111,000, while Russians estimates of Rumanian losses have run as high as 250,000.

(Anywhere from 100,000 to 250,000 men might be included in the three corps remaining in the campaign. Rumania was reported to have mobilized about one million men at the start of the offensive.)

Want Bessarabia

Bessarabia, annexed by Russia from Rumania last year, has been earmarked for return to Rumania, but the eventual disposition of the remainder of Soviet territory west of the Bug is uncertain, Rumanians said. About one million residents of Rumanian extraction of the latter territory will be repatriated, it was said.

The heart of the subterranean fortress, four stories deep, which here guarded the approach to the shipbuilding base of Nikolaev, was destroyed by the Russians before the Germans arrived August 21.

There were huge coastal artillery batteries of 15 miles range, big anti-aircraft batteries and underground crew quarters equipped with central heating and electric lighting.

Only about a dozen motors and some thousands of spare parts were found at a speedboat manufacturing plant. Residents said the Red army sank immense quantities of war materials in the Black Sea, but German divers have been able to recover only one motorcycle and a few airplane parts.

The ship lane from Odessa to the Crimea passes within 25 miles, and observers said the German signal station here had been of great use in reporting the movements of the motley array of transports, tankers, sailing vessels and small boats engaged in the evacuation of Odessa.

The island Permaisk (First of May), a mile and a half offshore, was held by the Russians for three weeks after the Germans took Ochakov.

As we entered this town of 12,000 from the north a pair of basketball goal posts stood out because they were undamaged. Virtually all buildings were skeletons, laid waste by incendiarism and fierce close-quarter fighting.

Reds Report All-Day Assault on Moscow Front Stopped Dead

Copyright by New York Times

Kuibyshev, Russia, Oct. 29.—Supported by the greatest artillery barrage of the war thus far, German troops tried all day to smash their way toward Moscow, but late advices indicated that they had been stopped dead by firm Russian resistance and had suffered formidable losses.

On one salient the Russians repelled a series of German assaults and then staged successful counter-attacks, according to Soviet reports.

The Russians said that the German ranks were thinning at some points, despite the tremendous new reinforcements they had mustered. The Moscow radio estimated that the Germans had lost as much as 60 per cent of their effectives on some salients, as well as much materiel.

Costly Nazi Victory

By International News Service

Kuibyshev, Russia, (Thursday), Oct. 30.—The "strategic" evacuation of Kharkov, Russia's fourth city and main production center of the Donets Basin, was officially admitted by the Soviet high command early today, but the Germans were declared to have paid a fearful price, including 120,000 men in dead alone, for the city which they found a hollow shell.

The fall of Kharkox was announced by the Germans Saturday.

Meanwhile the Moscow Radio announced early today that Russian bombers heavily raided Berlin during the night, causing much damage and kindling many fires.

In addition, said the communique broadcast from Moscow early this morning, more than 450 German tanks and armored cars, 3000 troop and munitions lorries and more than 200 field guns were wiped out by the bitterly resisting Red troops.

Machinery Removed

"During the considerable period of the fighting before Kharkov," the Russian war bulletin announced, "all of the city's most important factories, plants, rolling stock, raw material stores and other valuable supplies and machinery were evacuated.

"Several medium and small plants of military importance were blown up."

Earlier Soviet battlefront dispatches admitted a German penetration into the defenses of the Crimea, and the stemming, at least temporarily, of battering German assaults near the western and northwestern gates of Rostov, gateway to the oil-bearing Caucasus.

Russian counter-attacks on the western and northwestern approaches to Moscow, however, were said to have resulted in recapture of "a number" of villages in the direction of Mozhaisk and four villages in the vicinity of Kalinin, 93 miles northwest of the capital.

Rail Station Reoccupied

West of the capital, according to the army paper Red Star, the counter-thrusting Soviets advanced several miles in Wednesday's fighting and reoccupied the railway station of "D."

Blinding snow was said to be swirling over most of the Moscow front, slowing down the German tanks to a crawl and making them vulnerable to terrific crossfire by Russian big guns.

Temperatures in some sectors were reported to have sunk as low as 5 degrees above zero.

In the first Russian attack on Berlin since September 4, long-range Soviet "superbombers" dumped tons of explosive and showers of incendiary bombs on "military and industrial objectives" inside the German capital, a special communique broadcast from Moscow said, adding that "numerous explosions and fires were observed by our aviators."

Simultaneously, the luftwaffe, after losing 39 bombers near Moscow in daylight thrusts at the city Wednesday, was declared to have sent fresh waves against the Soviet capital during the night. The majority of the night raiders, said the Soviet radio, were dispersed by ground guns and Russian night fighters.

Nazis Driving 48,000 Jews From Prague

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 29.—Transport of 48,000 Jews from Prague to resettlement areas in Nazi-conquered lands to the east has been started, and all Jews are to be cleared out of Bohemia-Moravia cities "within a short time," Dienst ous Deutschland disclosed tonight.

The authoritative commentary declared that Jewish transports were leaving regularly, but did not give their exact destination.

Of the 200,000 Jews in the protectorate when it was taken over by Germany in March, 1939, only 90,000 are left, Dienst stated.

A dispatch from Zagreb, in partitioned Yugoslavia, said the Croation government had decreed state acquisition of all Jewish fortunes for revival of the national economy.

Meantime, the German secret police announced they had confiscated the property of Eduard Benes, President of Czecho-Slovakia before its dismemberment. (Benes is president of the Czech government in exile in London.)

Jews Machine-Gunned

London, Oct. 29 (AP).—More than 1000 Jews were forced to kneel in trenches and were machine-gunned by Nazi troops near Lomza in northern Poland and several hundreds were killed in southern Poland, the British news agency Reuters said tonight, quoting Polish reporters.

Soviets Hard Hit, Need Planes

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Teheran, Iran, Oct. 29.—Soviet Russia has suffered a heavy defeat thus far in the war, but is not finished and desperately needs new planes to challenge Germany's crushing air superiority, expert foreign observers said tonight on reaching here by Soviet passenger plane from Kuibyshev, auxiliary Red capital.

Maj. Ivan Yeaton, United States military attache to Moscow for two years, arrived on the same plane and left by train for the Persian Gulf en route to Washington to report on the Russian military situation. He refused to comment.

"There is no talk yet among the Communists of a separate peace with Germany," one observer said.

"They are hoping for a mild winter to bog down the Nazis interminably in the mud, but despite German transport difficulties they expect them to keep smashing away regardless of the weather, especially in the south.

"The Red air force has taken hard blows and practically all Soviet aircraft presently in service is obsolete. The panes are flown by highly skilled pilots who are as good as or better than the Nazis, but the latter have put 1000 planes into action in a sector where the Russians may have 100. The Russian planes moreover are older, slower and under-gunned."

Long-time students of the Russian military machine agreed that the first half of November probably would be decisive.

They emphasized that the Russian aircraft deficiency is the one thing Britain and the United States could remedy almost overnight if the planes are available because they could be ferried quickly.

U. S. Turns Over Ship to Reds Under Lease-Lend Plan

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—The United States Maritime Commission freighter Mount Evans, 6267 tons, has been turned over to Russia under the lend-lease plan, marine circles said today.

The vessel, now at Boston, is being armed and will fly the Soviet flag. She was built in 1919 at Portland, Oreg.

The new $2,277,000 American freighter China Mail, constructed at Chester, Pa., for the American Mail Lines' Pacific trade, has been turned over to England under the Lend-Lease Act, marine circles also revealed.

The 9600-ton, 16-knot ship, launched last May 24, has been renamed the Empire Peregrine.

12 Tankers Turned Back by British

Copyright by New York Times

Twelve American oil tankers have completed their last voyage in the British shuttle service and are now available for return to normal operations, the office of the Petroleum Coordinator announced yesterday.

These ships are among the first of 40 tankers, arrangements for the release of which by the British enabled removal of East Coast restrictions on gasoline.

Gen. Maxwell to Lend Hand in Constructing Near East Supply Route to Russian Forces

Copyright by New York Times

Brig. Gen. B. L. Maxwell, former administrator of export control, will leave soon with a military mission for the Near East to study British proposals for broad extension of railway facilities there as a means of implementing resistance to Germany by the Soviet Union.

This became known in authoritative quarters yesterday simultaneously with publication of reports that part of the program involves completion of the famous Berlin-to-Baghdad railway, the conception of which was credited originally to the late Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany.

There was no official confirmation of plans for the mission, but information available indicated that Gen. Maxwell's group would be responsible for studying and reporting on plans for a transportation system of tremendous potential size. These involve construction in Iraq and Egypt and the tying in of operating systems to permit direct rail transit of war supplies into the region east of the Ural Mountains, to which Russia eventually may withdraw her armies.

Great Britain was reported here to have requested lease-lend assistance in the transport project, and to have received an initial favorable response from military experts. There was no indication as to the ultimate cost of the project, but preliminary reports indicated that American rolling stock required for the work would include some thousands of freight cars, in addition to steel rails and all the other paraphernalia of such an operation.

The primary purpose of the project is to build in northern Iraq, lying above Baghdad, about 100 miles of track that was projected long ago. This neglected section of the Berlin-Baghdad line would give complete rail passage across Iraq from Basra, on the Persian Gulf, to the Turkish border, where connections exist for the transport of war materials across Turkey to Russian railroads lying east of the Black Sea.

The project, as outlined here in fragmentary manner, appears to forecast the establishment of a primary military front ranging north and south in the Near East, on a line with the anticipated ultimate resistance line of the Russian armies if they are forced to withdraw to the east of Moscow.

200 Serb Rebels Reported Slain In Nightlong Fight

Bern, Switzerland, Oct. 29 (AP).—Two hundred Serbian insurgents were reported today to have been killed in a nightlong battle with regular occupation troops near the Serbian village of Belanovitch.

Dispatches said the insurgents were surrounded by troops who brought up reinforcements when the fight assumed the character of a "veritable battle."

Nazis Infuriated at British Rejection of 'Peace' Offer

By William L. Shirer

(Here's the book everyone is talking about. It has broken all records of its publisher, Alfred A. Knopf, and tops all best-sellers.)

INSTALMENT XVIII

Hail the Conqueror!

(July 19-August 13, 1940)

BERLIN, July 19, 1940—It is not to be a blitzkrieg against Britain. At least not yet. In the Reichstag tonight, Hitler "offered" peace. He said he saw no reason why this war should go on. But of course it's peace with Hitler sitting astride the continent as its conqueror.

SHIRER

Leaving the fantastic show in the Reichstag—and it was the most colorful of all I've ever seen—I wondered what the British would make of it. I had hardly arrived at the Rundfunk to prepare my talk when I picked up the B. B. C. in German. And there was the answer already! It was a great big no. The more I thought of it, the less I was surprised. Peace for Britain with Germany absolute master of the continent is impossible. The announcer heaped ridicule on Hitler's every utterance.

Officers from the high command and officials from various ministries sitting around the room could not believe their ears. One of them shouted at me: "Can you make it out? Can you understand those British fools? To turn down peace now?" I merely grunted. "They're crazy," he said.

The Hitler we saw in the Reichstag tonight was the conqueror, and conscious of it, and yet so wonderful an actor, so magnificent a handler of the German mind, that he mixed superbly the full confidence of the conqueror with the humbleness which always goes down so well with the masses when they know a man is on top. His voice was lower tonight; he rarely shouted as he usually does; and he did not once cry out hysterically.

I've often sat in the gallery of the Kroll Opera House at these Reichstag sessions watching the man as he spoke. I've often admired the way he uses his hands, which are somewhat feminine and quite artistic. Tonight he used those hands beautifully, seemed to express himself almost as much with his hands—and the sway of his body—as he did with his words and the use of his voice. I noticed too his gift for using his face and eyes (cocking his eyes) and the turn of his head for irony, of which there was considerable in tonight's speech, especially when he referred to Mr. Churchill.

Under one roof I have never seen so many gold-braided generals before. Massed together, their chests heaving with crosses and other decorations, they filled a third of the first balcony. Part of the show was for them. Suddenly pausing in the middle of his speech, Hitler became the Napoleon, creating with the flick of his hand (in this case the Nazi salute) 12 field marshals, and since Goering already was one, creating a special honor for him—Reichsmarshal.

It was amusing to watch Goering. Sitting up on the dais of the speaker in all his bulk, he acted like a happy child playing with his toys on Christmas morning. (Only how deadly that some of the toys he plays with, besides the electric train in the attic of Karin Hall, happen to be Stuka bombers!) Throughout Hitler's speech Goering leaned over his desk chewing his pencil, and scribbling out in large, scrawly letters the text of his remarks which he would make after Hitler finished. But always he kept one ear cocked on the leader's words, and at appropriate moments he would put down his pencil and applaud heartily, his face a smile of approval from one ear to the other.

He had two big moments, and he reacted to them with the happy naturalness of a big child. Once when Hitler named two of his air-force generals field-marshals, he beamed like a proud big brother, clapping his hands with Gargantuan gestures, pointing his big paws at the new field-marshals as at a boxer in the ring when he's introduced.

The climax was when Hitler named him Reichsmarshal. Hitler turned around and handed him a box with whatever insignia a Reichsmarshal wears. Goering took the box, and his boyish pride and satisfaction were almost touching, old murderer that he is. He could not deny himself a sneaking glance under the cover of the lid. Then he went back to his pencil-chewing and his speech.

I considered his popularity—second only to Hitler's in the country—and concluded that it is just because, on occasions like this, he's so human, so completely the big, good-natured boy. (But also the boy who in June, 1934, could dispatch men to the firing squad by the hundreds.)

Count Ciano, who was rushed up from Rome to put the seal of Axis authority on Hitler's "offer" of peace to Britain, was the clown of the evening. In his gray and black Fascist militia uniform, he sat in the first row of the diplomatic box, and jumped up constantly like a jack-in-the-box every time Hitler paused for breath, to give the Fascist salute. He had a text of the speech in his hand, but it was probably in Italian, so that he was not following Hitler's words. Without the slightest pretext he would hop to his heels and expand in a salute. Could not help noticing how high-strung Ciano is. He kept working his jaws. And he was not chewing gum.

Saddest figure to me in the Assembly was Gen. Holder, chief of the German General Staff. Most people think that he is the brains of the German army, that it was he who made the final plans for the Polish campaign and the great offensive in the west and executed them in such an astonishingly successful manner. But he has never kowtowed to Hitler. It is widely reported that he has on occasions talked very sharply to the Great Man. And that, as a result, Hitler hates him.

At any rate, he was not made a field-marshal tonight, but merely promoted one grade. I watched him tonight, his classically intellectual face, and he seemed to be hiding a weariness, a sadness, as he warmly congratulated his younger generals who were now raised over him as field-marshals.

Alexander Kirk, our charge, was there too. The Nazis put him in the back row with the small fellows, but he didn't seem to mind. He sat there all evening, his face like a sphinx, breaking only occasionally into an ironic smile when some of his diplomatic colleagues from the Balkans popped up to give the new slave salute. Quisling, a pig-eyed little man, crouched in a corner seat in the first balcony, drinking the amazing scene in.

BERLIN, July 20.—Roosevelt has been renominated at Chicago for a third term. This is a blow to Hitler which the Wilhelmstrasse scarcely hid today. Hitler will now hope that Roosevelt is defeated in the election. The point is that Hitler fears Roosevelt. He is just beginning to comprehend that Roosevelt's support of Great Britain is one of the prime reasons why the British decline to accept his kind of peace.

BERLIN, July 22.—Halifax broadcast Britain's answer to Hitler's "peace proposal." It was an emphatic No.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Everyone impatient to know when the invasion of Britain will begin. I have taken two new bets offered by Nazis in the Wilhelmstrasse. First, that the Swastika will be flying over Trafalgar Square by August 15. Second, by September 7. The Nazis say Gen. Milch, right-hand man of Goering, has tipped the latter date as a dead certainty.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—For some days now workmen have been busy erecting new stands in the Pariserplatz outside my hotel. Now the talk in party circles is that Hitler is so certain of the end of the war—either by conquest of Britain or by a "negotiated" peace with Britain—that he has ordered these stands to be ready before the end of the month for the big victory parade through the Brandenburger Tor.

(Later).—Today has seen along the coast of England the greatest air battle of the war. German figures of British losses have been rising all evening. First the Luftwaffe announced 72 British planes shot down against 14 German; then 79 to 14; finally at midnight 89 to 17. Actually, when I counted up the German figures as given out from time to time during the afternoon and evening, they totaled 111 for British losses. The Luftwaffe is lying so fast it isn't consistent even by its own account.

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Today was the third big day of Germany's massive air attack on Britain. Tomorrow I'm flying to the Channel with half a dozen other correspondents. We don't know whether we're being taken up to see Hitler launch his invasion of Britain or merely to watch the air attacks.

1000 Capital Rejects to Get Dental Care

Approximately 100,000 Selective Service registrants with remedial dental defects will be treated shortly in the first phase of President Roosevelt's program to rehabilitate defective selectees for service in the Army, Lieut. Comdr. C. R. Wells, chief dental officer of the Selective Service System, announced yesterday.

District Selective Service headquarters estimated that there are 1000 registrants in that class in Washington.

The announcement was made by Commander Wells at the convention of the American Dental Association in Houston, Tex. The program will be carried out by the Selective Service System through local boards, which will authorize dentists to treat registrants at the expense of the Federal Government, he stated.

Remedial dental work consists largely of fillings, treatment of infection and replacement of missing teeth, Wells said.

Although civilian dentists will have the job of rehabilitating selectees, final say on whether a registrant is usable in the Army will rest with military surgeons, it was said.

New York, Oct. 29.—Behind President Roosevelt's Navy Day disclosure of a secret Nazi blueprint for German domination of South America, lies a continent-wide intrigue which has recently been the subject of undercover diplomatic discussions in several Latin-American capitals.

The map to which the President referred confirms reports which have been circulated in Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Lima and other capitals since the German Ambassador to Argentina, Baron Edmund von Thermann, held a "board of strategy" meeting with several other German envoys at a lake resort in southern Chile last spring.

Diplomatic quarters believe that the general blueprint for Nazi control of South and Central America calls for the absorption of smaller countries into the following five major nations, all of which Germany envisions as puppet states of the Nazi Reich:

1—Argentina to absorb Uruguay and Paraguay.

2—Brazil to receive the rich eastern region of Bolivia, and also French, Dutch and British Guiana.

3—Chile to swallow the southern and eastern zones of Bolivia.

4—Peru gets all of Ecuador and northwestern Bolivia.

5—Colombia to take over all of Venezuela, the Republic of Panama (with the vital Canal) and the Central American States of Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras and Guatemala.

Rauschning Gives Credence

Dr. Hermann Rauschning, former Nazi president of the Danzig Senate and once an intimate of Hitler, gave full credence to the purported plan today. Dr. Rauschning, in America now, told me that he has long been aware of Hitler's South American "dream." He has been getting considerable underground information from Germany in various ways and is familiar with Hitler's original plans for South America, as outlined by the Nazi Party's "inner circle."

"The drawing of South and Central America into the German sphere of influence," he said, "has always been a cardinal point of Hitlerian policy. The present rulers of Germany feel that in their envisioned world hegemony the Western Hemisphere must serve to supply those raw materials which are either lacking or insufficient on the European continent.

Methods Differ

"The methods of execution of this policy have differed with the factions that surround Adolf Hitler. They range anywhere from an outright colonial conception to a 'dominant power' method. Yet, all are in agreement that South and Central America must be an auxiliary territory to the German world Reich. Whatever President Roosevelt's map may show in detail, there can be no doubt that it is a practical Nazi document."

One Nazi plan, broached in influential Argentine circles shortly after the "strategy" meeting of Nazi envoys in Chile, would give Argentina, instead of Chile, the entire southern half of Bolivia as far north as the mining town of Cochabamba.

The oil fields of Bolivia are in the southern portion, and it is significant that the Argentine government is now preparing to tap these fields with a new railroad into Bolivia.

Paraguay was at one time Argentine territory but Uruguay has often been a bone of contention between Brazil and Argentina. In order to placate Brazil for possible Argentine absorption of Uruguay, the Nazis' plan provides that Brazil be permitted to absorb the rich agricultural Argentine province of Misiones, which extends northward on Brazil's flank. Heavily populated with German settlers, Misiones has stronger cultural and racial leanings toward the southern Brazilian states—also heavily Germanic—than toward Buenos Aires.

The implications of the secret blueprint may be highly pleasing to interested circles in Chile and Peru, but they undoubtedly will have a profoundly disquieting effect in Venezuela, and even in Colombia.

According to one version of the Nazi plans, Colombia was to be bribed to the Nazi side by the promised return of Panama, but nothing was said of a merger of Colombia and Venezuela. On the contrary, Venezuelans have been informed that in event of a Nazi victory they would receive the British island of Trinidad, and the Dutch islands of Curacao and Aruba, all of which are considered "geographically" part of Venezuela. It has also been hinted that Venezuela might receive British Guiana, except for a possible German naval base.

Little Ecuador, "the sick man of South America," also has cause for serious misgivings. While counting heavily upon the United States in her border dispute with Peru, Ecuador, nevertheless, had some hope of Nazi support as an "ace in the hole" in case United States' policy should change.

This hope sprang from offers of help from the German Sedta Airlines during the recent flare-up with Peru and the fact that the Sedta pilots offered themselves as volunteers in the Ecuadorean air force.

Earliest intimation of Nazi plans to remap South America came from Buenos Aires, where, according to the recent legislative inquiry, an arm of the Gestapo is quartered in the German embassy.

Feelers Put Out

Tentative feelers, envisioning an Argentine expansion at the expense of Uruguay, Paraguay and Bolivia were first made in military circles by Gen. Guenther Niedenfuhr, German military attache who once was instructor of the Argentine army.

Considerable enthusiasm over the Nazi-sponsored dream of Argentina as the coming world power of the Southern Hemisphere was worked up, especially among the young men of the Argentine air force. Among leading business groups, suggestions of the same kind were thrown out by Gottfried Sandstede, head of the embassy Gestapo, who recently fled from Argentina to avoid arrest and now is back in Germany.

While the total German-born population in Argentina is only about 59,000, the number of German descent probably is in the neighborhood of 250,000, and a great percentage of these—estimates vary—have been tempted or coerced into German labor front or storm troop organizations. Those of Italian parentage number well over two million and the total Italian-born population is at least equal to the population of Spanish descent.

War Sidelights

Bullet-Raked Plane Ends World Flight

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 29 (AP).—A four-motored Army bomber completed an unheralded 'round-the-world flight upon its arrival at March Field yesterday with members of the aid-to-Russia mission.

Reports said the plane had 30 bullet holes in its wings as mementoes of its flight over warring nations.

The hop from Hawaii marked the first Pacific Ocean flight of a B-24, although many of the bombers have crossed the Atlantic to England. The craft took off today for the East, presumably for Washington, after which news of the flight was released.

Reports of the bullet holes came from Honolulu, where the 23-ton consolidated-built bomber stopped a short time before leaving for the United States. Dispatches said the holes resulted from five encounters with some forces which suspected it was enemy craft.

Consolidated spokesmen said the plane was one of the first B-24's built and went East several months ago to make the trip to Moscow with the Russian-aid mission members.

U. S. Will Defy Hitler's Plan to Redraw Map

While the Axis continued to rage against President Roosevelt over his revelation of a secret Nazi map showing plans for dividing South American territory, Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, yesterday declared the United States would resist any such aggression against this hemisphere.

Connally added in a statement that "American ships will be passing through the (Panama) Canal when Hitler is crossing the River Styx."

Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Connally warned that this country was ready to oppose "any aggression by Hitler in redrawing the map of South America."

"That is the business of the people of South America," he continued, "and they will have the utmost support of the United States in maintaining their integrity and sovereignty."

Apparently referring to one phase of the proposed Nazi division of territory that would place the Germans in a position to dominate Panama, Connally added:

"The Panama Canal will be protected and defended to the limit of our resources, of our manpower and treasure."

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported continued fuming by German spokesmen over the President's Navy Day address, broadcast around the world.

Berlin officials challenged the President to produce the map to which he referred. If such a map exists, the spokesmen challenged the President to prove it authentic.

Authorized Germans studied recently published maps of South America and speculated whether the President referred to any of these. They distributed to foreign correspondents photographic copies of one recent map which they said appeared in the August number of Fortune Magazine and showed South America as a sort of political question mark.

From Rome, the Associated Press reported that Virginio Gayda, Italian editor, again called on President Roosevelt to produce the German document showing plans to suppress the world's religions.

"If it does appear within 24 hours, concrete in its reality, intelligible in its diction, the reputation of Roosevelt the falsifier will arise to the stars," he wrote in Giornale d'Italia.

"But the document will not appear, because it does not exist," he continued.

Gayda then said that the United States had less religious freedom than Germany.

"National Socialist Germany respects all faiths and recognizes and protects the necessary freedom for all," he said.

Hitler's Aide Calls Roosevelt 'Gangster'

Berlin (Thursday), Oct. 30 (AP).—Dr. Otto Dietrich, Adolf Hitler's personal press chief, today described President Roosevelt as "a gangster of the intellect who by systematic confusion of ideas would like to deceive entire nations in order to cheat them of their futures."

Dietrich's blast, two columns long, was written for this morning's issue of Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, and climaxed a second day of the violently abusive anti-Roosevelt campaign.

He accused Roosevelt of "dispensing poisonous medicine to the people" and of trying "in an increasing degree to narcotize the healthy sense of the American Nation by means of mental forgery."

Dietrich contended that "by this means he has whipped up public opinion in the United States almost to hysteria . . . and drowned reason in a sea of phrases."

A startling statement but true. For more than 10,000,000 people trod on a Karastan rug at the Chicago and New York World's Fairs . . . and it still came up smiling. During 148 days, four Karastan rugs had 563 pounds of Fair dirt removed from them by vacuums. Each cleaning revealed the same original beauty, the same Oriental jewel-tones, the same deep, luxurious pile.

Of course, your Karastan will never get this kind of wear. But it is reassuring to know what wonderful wear Karastan assures you . . . along with Oriental beauty. Power-loomed right here in America, Karastans are just another striking example of American ingenuity in doing what seems impossible. We invite you to see these rugs in our Karastan Galleries.

FACTS ABOUT KARASTAN: Karastan rugs are closely woven from premium worsteds, with patterns running through to the back. The designs have been copied from costly imported originals. Karastans have the same shimmering lustre you find in Orientals. And, like Orientals, they are fully flexible, rollable. Sizes from 2x4, $17.50, to 12x20 feet, $395.

La Follette, Nye Warn Passage Of Ship Bill May Mean War away, Chandler, Connally, Ellender, George Glass, Green, Guffey, Hatch, Hayden, Herring, Hill, Hughes, Kilgore, Lee, Lucas, Maybank (Senator-elect who will be here for the vote), McFarland, McKellar, Mead, Murdock, Murray, O'Daniel, O'Mahoney, Overton, epper, Radcliffe, Rosier, Schwartz, Smathers, Spencer, Stewart Thomas of Oflahoma, Thomas of Utah, Truman, Tunnell, Wagner and Wallgren.

The 13 Democrats counted against were:

Senators Adams, Bone, Byrd, Chavez, Clark of Idaho, Clark of Missouri, Gillette, McCarran, Reynolds, Smith, Van Nuys, Walsh and Wheeler.

The following eight Democrats were still listed as doubtful, with prospects that several may vote for the bill:

Senators Bilbo, Downey, Doxey, Gerry, Johnson of Colorado, Maloney, Russell and Tydings.

Among Republicans, Senators Austin, Bridges, Gurney and Ball were believed sure votes for the bill while three more seemed reasonably certain—White, Brewster and Barbour.

While the votes shaped up closer than the Administration would like, preliminary appraisals bore out leadership forecasts that the Senate by a safe margin would vote repeal of sections 2, 3 and 6 of the Neutrality Act.

Limitation of Debate

With the debate three days under way, Senate leaders yesterday put out feelers on debate limitation with an eye to final action next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri served notice that while debate might run its course by next midweek, and he would do nothing to prolong it, he would NOT consent to a formal limit.

Speaking near the spot where his late father led the successful fight against Woodrow Wilson's armed ship bill 24 years ago, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, jr., meanwhile followed Senator Nye to the floor as the fourth opposition speaker.

Like Senator Vandenberg who spoke Monday and Taft who talked Tuesday, LaFollette said the Senate in lifting restrictions on ships entering combat zones or belligerent ports would be voting down the "last barriers which stand between the people of this country and war."

Invites Attack, He Says

Likewise Senator Nye declared that repeal of the three Neutrality Act sections would "invite attack by sending merchant ships, armed with sling shots against torpedoes, straight into a submarine blockade."

Galleries, packed for Monday's curtain raiser on debate, had thinned to near-normal attendance yesterday and only about half the Senate membership was continuously on the floor.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, advocate of outright repeal of the Neutrality Act, today will take up the fight for the Administration bill and Senator Clark, of Missouri, may speak for the opposition.

"Brink of Struggle"

La Follette told the Senate that with neutrality barriers down, American participation could not be limited to lend-lease supplies or naval warfare.

"A reluctant people," he charged, "has been taken step-by-step closer to the brink of the catastrophic struggle, with assurances that each step taken is to keep them out of war."

He quoted British military authorities as saying that the war could be won only with an invasion of the European continent.

Quoting campaign statements he said had been made by President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie that they did not intend to take the country into war, he said he feared "the disillusionment that will seize the people when they find out that the men they trusted with high office have resorted to methods of subterfuge to achieve office."

"This Is War"

Of the Navy's "shoot-at-sight" order, he said:

"This is war. Whether honestly desired here; it is what I oppose. Let the proponents of shooting on sight and of arming our ships to do it be honest with us and tell us that is what they want, that if it isn't what they want it is what is guaranteed by the program."

Leading off the day's debate, Senator Nye said the Senate was called on to decide "a question of war or no war, war with its inevitable AEF and its inevitable slaughter or no war with an America pursuing the independent destiny which it can so readily achieve, beholden to no one."

Like La Follette, Nye slapped repeatedly at Britain.

"There comes a clever word from the West," he said at one point, "that the betting there is 10 to 1 that if we vote this repealer, the United States will be in the war before Great Britain is in the war."

Connally's Reply

He said if America gets in the war, "it is going to be our war all the way and no longer a proposition of holding Stalin's coat and handing up the sponge and water bucket to England."

Chariman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told reporters that the best answer to opposition charges that the Administration seeks war is the fact that the country is still at peace.

Moscow Reports Rumor of BEF in West

New York, Oct. 29.—Moscow radio broadcasts carrying rumors of a British landing on the German-occupied French coast were reported tonight by Edward R. Murrow, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent in London.

"So far as we know," Murrow said, "these rumors are without foundation, although some people have been asking whether or not some information could not be released concerning raids by British commandos along the German-held coast of Europe."

The commandos, mentioned in Murrow's broadcast, are described in London reports as "amphibious shock troops," skilled in everything from ju jitsu to Indian-style fighting and trained to go long periods of time without food or water. They have been drilled in hostile landings by day and night.

Creation of this force was interpreted recently as an indication that Britain planned an early invasion of the Continent, though Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, as late as last Saturday, declared that an invasion of Europe at this time would be foolhardy. His declaration followed growing clamor among British workers for the establishment of a "second front" against Adolf Hitler.

In describing the commandos, the United Press said that the men wore the insignia "commando" on their shoulders, and that for a time the British public had been puzzled as to what it meant. The name itself is defined as: "In South Africa, a military body or command; also, an expedition or raid."

Knox Reveals Kearny Fought in Battle Of U. S. Warships and Nazi Submarines

forces will govern it."

The Navy Secretary made it plain that the policy was designed, like that of Great Britain, to take its toll in the war of nerves. German morale, especially that of the U-boat service, is adversely affected by the lack of certain knowledge of the fate of submarines which never come back, he explained.

The story of the sea battle in the North Atlantic two weeks ago was told in a few brief paragraphs in the third report the Navy has given out respecting the torpedoing of the Kearny. In curt language, the Navy stated:

"On the night of October 16-17 the U. S. S Kearny, while escorting a convoy of merchant ships, received distress signals from another convoy which was under attack from several German submarines. The U. S. S. Kearny proceeded to the aid of the attacked convoy.

"On arriving at the scene of the attack, the U. S. S. Kearny dropped depth bombs when she sighted a merchant ship under attack by a submarine. Some time afterward three torpedo tracks were observed approaching the U. S. S. Kearney. One passed ahead of the ship, one astern and the third struck the U. S. S. Kearney on the starboard side in the vicinty of the forward firerpom.

The report went on to state that the explosion "breached" the side of the ship well under the water line, flooding the boiler compartment and killing the men there. The thrust of the explosion was forward and upward, it was said, rupturing the deck with such force that wreckage was thrown on the bridge.

"The U. S. S. Kearny was forced out of action by the explosion," the report continued. "Her commanding officer, Lieut. Comdr. A. L. Danis, United States Navy, immediately invoked casualty and ship damage routine and by prompt action prevented the ship from sinking. The U. S. S. Kearny was escorted to port by other destroyers of the United States Fleet."

That was all that was given out as to the engagement, but it made clear that a battle of some proportions took place in the bleak waters southwest of Iceland October 16-17. Two prior Navy announcements had merely disclosed that the Kearny had been torpedoed by a submarine "undoubtedly German" and that 11 men were "missing" and 10 others wounded.

McVeagh Inspects Ship

Yesterday's announcement described the 11 as "killed or missing" and said that "on arrival in port" the men seriously injured were removed "to the Army hospital" for treatment. The port was not identified in the statement, but later the Navy released pictures of the vessel taken by the Army Signal Corps, which showed the American Minister to Iceland, Lincoln McVeagh, inspecting the ship.

The statement also included a summary from a report prepared by Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, chief of the bureau of ships, which credited the vessel's survival in part to the high quality of the machinery and the fact that the Kearny had two engine rooms. The full text of the statement is published on the picture page of this issue with photographs of the damaged ship.

Observers noted that the Navy statement made it plain that the Kearny attacked the German submarine before it fired its torpedoes at the American ship.

Greer Battle Recalled

During subsequent comment on the earlier clash between a German U-boat and the U. S. destroyer Greer, the American Government said that the submarine fired first while Berlin said it was the other way around.

This, however, was before the Navy was ordered by President Roosevelt to "shoot first" at Nazi raiders which come into American defensive waters. Moreover, it was also pointed out, the sea engagement was already underway when the Kearny arrived on the scene.

Non-Defense Agencies Spend 20 Millions for 'Publicity'

Information Service Twice as Costly as That of Defense

By James B. Reston.

Copyright by New York Times

A survey of the Federal Government's information services shows that while the defense agencies are stealing the headlines the non-defense agencies are spending twice as much money to tell the world about their activities.

As compared with the eight main defense agencies, which are spending some ten million dollars a year to describe the requirements, objectives and progress of the defense program, 26 other agencies are spending over 20 million dollars a year on their own information services.

Most of the money is devoted to preparation of publications. The Bureau of the Budget estimates that over 13 million dollars will be spent on official publications this year and an additional $5,150,300 will be spent in sending employes of the Government around the country explaining the various programs which the Administration is carrying out.

Other Costs Small

Compared with these totals, the actual operating cost of the various press, radio and motion-picture units is not large. To prepare material for the Nation's newspapers, 26 different agencies hire 208 persons full-time and 641 part-time at a cost of $980,373, to prepare scripts and other material for the various radio stations of the country, 11 agencies employ 35 persons full time and 284 part time at a cost of $432,937. And to develop material for motion picture companies and representatives, eight agencies employ 392 persons at a cost of $576,462.

These are not the only activities of the information services, however. They arrange exhibits in the various States in explanation of whatever programs the Government departments are carrying on at the time; they hire photographers to take "still" photographs illustrating the development of the Administration's work; they arrange lectures, prepare posters and carry on a voluminous correspondence, all of which both adds to the public intelligence and detracts from the public purse.

Correspondence Extensive

For example, this year the Federal Government's correspondence on matters relating to informational, educational, promotional and publicity activities of the Federal Government is estimated by the bureau of the budget at $3,118,600. The production of photographs will cost $380,000, the purchase of stern slides and lecture materials will cost $148,200, and the preparation of posters will cost an estimated $99,600.

The Department of Agriculture has by far the largest contact with the public and the range of its activities indicates the extent to which the Federal information departments are now operating.

When the Roosevelt Administration came to power in 1933 it introduced a revolutionary agricultural program of restricted acreage, which Government officials felt would fail unless it had the full understanding of the farmers of the country. Consequently, a large organization was established to explain the program to the farmers by personal contact, through the press, the radio and the motion picture. An ambitious educational program was started to help the farmer improve his methods of dealing with the problems of soil erosion, crop rotation, etc., and gradually the department built up a vast staff.

Personal Contact

The Bureau of the Budget reported to the Appropriations Committee of the House, for example, that in the 1941 fiscal year the Department of Agriculture would spend $11,887,788 on all its informational, promotional and publicity activities. To carry out this program, the budget director estimated that 711 persons would be employed full time, 59 on projects for newspapers, 19 on radio work, 31 on motion pictures, 33 on still photographs, and most of the others on personal contact with the farmers. The estimated budget for the department's news, radio and pictorial projects alone are estimated at $1,123,119.

The Budget Bureau's figures indicate that next to the Department of Agriculture's the Federal Security Agency has the largest of the nondefense information centers with 14 persons employed full time and 351 part time at a cost of $268,154.

In addition, the Federal Works Agency has a budget of $259,925 for press, radio and pictorial work, the Department of Commerce, $77,590, Department of Interior $207,931, the Department of Labor $82,291, and the Department of Justice $35,953.

No Guiding Principle

The disparity in these figures illustrates the central criticism of the Administration's information services: that there is no one principle guiding the extent or cost of the information activities of the various departments. Each is virtually autonomous and carries out whatever program is authorized by the department heads and the Bureau of the Budget.

This lack of unity inevitably leads to a race on the part of the various information departments to get "a good press" for their individual officials. On the success of the press officer very often depends the success of the department head, so that the system does not make for objectivity in the selection of the news that is to be handed out.

At the same time, the majority of newspapermen admit that the Government press agent is a permanent part of the Washington scene, and many feel this is a good thing. Some observers charge that the system is bad because it leads to a censorship of information at the source and that the press agent's knowledge of newspapers enables him to conceal as well as to reveal news.

Many Advantages

On the whole, however, the system has many advantages over, for example, the British system where the press is handled by men who have little personal knowledge of the problems of getting and distributing news. The Washington system undoubtedly has its disadvantages: it is wasteful, and it is open to corruption, but the various departments have taken into their information service some of the best reporters in the country and on the whole they are willing to get answers to any question asked by the representatives of the press.

Chorines Become 'Sergeants'

"MISS TOPS"—The Earle Theater's Roxyettes yesterday were made honorary sergeants in the Army. The 16 chorines, selected as the "Miss Tops" by soldiers at Forts Belvoir, Myer and Meade, were given insignia pins from the three Army posts, received sergeant's stripes and a warrant for their honorary appointments. U. S. May Build Bases in Britain to Aid Shipping

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Staff Writer

The question of establishing American naval and air bases in the British Isles will confront President Roosevelt if Congress passes the neutrality-revision bill now before it.

In some quarters it is taken for granted that the United States will establish bases, or at least share bases with the British naval and air forces. They see this as a natural consequence to the legislation now pending, which would permit American merchant ships to travel through combat zones directly into British and other belligerent ports.

If American merchant ships are to be given a maximum of protection, it is pointed out, it would be useful to have convenient bases for the American warships and planes that are to give that protection. The alternative would be to depend to a large extent on the British for protection of American cargo vessels.

Comment Unobtainable

In advance of action by Congress on the neutrality-revision bill, no comment on this question of bases is obtainable in Administration quarters or at the War and Navy departments.

Willkie most certainly must take it for granted that the United States will establish bases in northern Ireland and Scotland. He advocated such a move on July 9, after calling on President Roosevelt at the White House. This was long before there was any serious talk of killing section 2 of the Neutrality Act.

The 1940 Republican nominee, commenting on the occupation of Iceland, said that this was, in his judgment, "but the first of similar steps that should be taken" to guard the strategic approaches of the Atlantic and to give Britain effective aid instead of lip service.

"For instance," Willkie said, "if it be necessary to occupy bases in northern Ireland or even northern Scotland, I would be in favor of that."

Technicians Arrive

About this same time, it was disclosed that a corps of 460 American technicians and mechanics had arrived in Northern Ireland to construct "certain works." Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, charged that he had heard on reliable authority that "the United States was constructing a naval air base for Great Britain in Northern Ireland."

The British Foreign Office denied reports that the United States was constructing air bases in Ulster, saying that the Americans engaged in "certain works" there were being paid by the British Government. Then it developed that a New York contracting firm, Merritt, Chapman & Scott, had been employed by the British government to do construction work in the British Isles. British officials explained that this was purely a business deal between the British government and a private company.

Air experts, looking forward to the day when American freighters will be going into British ports, say that there would be a distinct advantage in having convenient bases for American aircraft. Planes are used not only to spot U-boats but to combat the long-range German bombers that have accounted for something like one-third or one-fourth of all ship sinkings in the last year or so.

Comedy and Thrills Mark 'Yank in R. A. F.,' Palace

Tyrone Power and Betty Grable Costarred In Picture Climaxed by Dunkirk Debacle; Short Subjects Few, But Well Chosen

IN ADROIT PERFORMANCE, humor and blood-chilling spectacle, "A Yank in the R. A. F." is accurately cut to the pattern of current amusement tastes.

With the swarthy Tyrone Power and the blonde Betty Grable in the costellar roles of a flip young American airplane pilot and pert night club entertainer, who lends a hand to war service in England during the day, the new Twentieth Century-Fox production, opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace, finds it possible to combine romance and comedy in abundant measure during its early sequences and climax the whole thing toward the end with a staggeringly realistic reproduction of the evacuation of Dunkirk.

During the greater part of the action, Tim Baker, the irresponsible Yankee daredevil, is something less than an admirable figure. He is a two-timing philanderer in love, defiant of discipline in the air corps and altogther a bit of a "heel," but when it comes to the final showdown, his qualities of reckless bravado are precisely what are needed to bring him through a roaring and triumphant hero on all counts. He avenges the deaths of his pals, wins the admiration of his superiors and gets the girl.

Carol Brown, in the meantime, has manifested a huge vacillation with regard to the youth who has tracked her down in England, almost married his flight commander and everlastingly befuddled Roger Pillby, another fighter in the winged force, who devotes his life to trying to meet her and never does.

Tyrone Power, as the arrogant Mr. Baker, swaggers through his role with high efficiency, encountering his greatest difficulty in adapting the self-sufficiency of a former airmail pilot to the strict rules of wartime flying. Once these rigid regulations are conquered, he does a shade more than his share in blasting the daylights out of the Nazis at Dunkirk. Miss Grable seems to be as much at home in feminine war aid as she is in tipping over those at the ringside tables with her songs and dances in the smartest of the night spots. She has a way with her with all of the R. A. F., but especially John Sutton, in the role of the British suitor who has everything that Power lacks, except what it takes. Reginald Gardiner is characteristically amusing as the hopeless long-distance wooer, within the limitations of a role that taps only a meager fraction of his comic resources. The others in the cast serve principally to lend a note of authenticity to the technical apects of combat flying.

Hair-Raising Air Battles

Whatever points of weakness present themselves in the character drawing and development of a serio-comic story that sometimes places a severe strain upon audience credulity are completely smothered by the tremendous tumult of the historic scene that comprises the climax of the picture.

Director Harry King has achieved a mighty, over-all effect in filling the screen with what must be a fair approximation of the terror of annihilation and the triumph of human courage that made possible the escape of an army from a murderous trap on the French beaches. If "A Yank in the R. A. F." had nothing else, this would be enough. These stupendous scenes were filmed over France, Germany and England with the full cooperation of the British air ministry, and look it.

"Hobbies," a new release in the M.-G.-M. "Passing Parade series, and "One Man Navy,' an amusing cartoon comedy, are the principal supplementaries of the new week's bill at the Palace. The newsreel is the only other auxiliary of a feature that minimises war and magnifies the unfathomable mysteries of love in thoroughly entertaining, if not always plausible, fashion.

Young America at the Front

BETTY GRABLE AND TYRONE POWER
as the young night club singer, who doubles in war work on the other side, and the cocky bomber pilot, who finally covers himself with glory at Dunkirk, in "A Yank in the R. A. F.," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. John Sutton and Reginald Gardiner are foremost in the supporting cast

Blackfriars

With the film version currently on view at the Earle, the Blackfriar's Guild, for the convenience of the comparison-minded, have produced as their first offering of the season, the British chiller, "Ladies in Retirement." This original conception of the murder tale will be repeated tonight in St. Paul's Auditorium, 1421 V Street.

To avoid just such comparison, this observer has not yet seen the film version. As presented by the Blackfriars, the play maintains the canny compactness of the original and indicates a promising season for the group.

Main criticism of the Blackfriars lies in the monotony of the playing. There is too much foreboding intensity from the very first, too little opportunity for building to the terrifying climaxes of Acts II and III. This does not, however, keep the final mental battle between the murderess and her sly nephew from being a neatly terrifying business, thanks to the skillful playing of Natalie Core and Albert Sigafoose as well as the shrewd direction here of Edgar L. Kloten.

In the celebrated Flora Robson role, Miss Core is authoritative and moving, barring the lack of contrast she exhibits in the before-and-after-murder behavior. Sigafoose is excellent as the nephew, achieving a professional thoroughness. Nell Flemming is fine in the ingratiating role of the victim. Marion Leigh and Helen Hickey are the demented sisters, while Gertrude Powell and Mildred Carroll complete the cast. Mr. Kloten's setting is particularly praiseworthy. R. L. C.

Columbia

After something of an interval, "The Feminine Touch" has returned to F Street. The film starring Rosalind Russell that is, for the shopping thoroughfare is never without that particular allurement. With Don Ameche, Kay Francis and Van Heflin as her associates, Miss Russell's film reopens this morning at the Columbia.

This is the four-sided one about the two couples who get jumbled for awhile. Ameche, playing Miss R's husband, is a professor who wants to get his book on love published. Heflin is the publisher, Kay Francis his long-suffering secretary. The complications which further their story are genial and frequently witty inventions.

Best of these are the rides the pseudo-intellectuals are taken for by the scripters. There's a literary tea which finishes all literary teas. There is a critic, bitterly limned by Henry Daniell, who is the perfect prig. Altogether, the supporting cast gives the flashing Miss Russell a merry chase for honors in brightness.

Mickey Turns the Yule Tide!

Hollywood, Oct. 29.

We've all heard stories of successful young actors or actresses who grow a bad case of swelled head, "scorn the rungs by which they did ascend," and repay their parents' care and sacrifices with neglect—so here's one of the other kind for your scrapbooks.

MICKEY ROONEY

Last week, during the making of "Babes on Broadway," Mickey Rooney learned that his father, Joe Yule, had been dropped from a part in another picture. Mickey, usually the most happy-go-lucky youngster on earth, blew up and went on a rampage that had the studio practically on its ear. He told the world at large that his father was the only man on the Metro lot who could out-act Rooney, that anyone with the brains of a pee-wee would have found it out long ago—that so far as "Babes on Broadway" went, they could "include him out," and then stomped off the set and sulked in his dressing-room for the rest of the day.

Soooo, the studio scurried around and dug up a part in another picture for Joe, who then helped them persuade his embattled son back on the job.

Between scenes on sets: "Remember the Day"—John Payne and Claudette Colbert playing gin-rummy in nighties. "Castle in the Desert"—Sidney (Charlie Chan) Toler, completely surrounded by villains, fast asleep in his chair. "The Fleet's In"—Bill Holden surrounded by dozens of glamour gals, munching peanuts in a corner. "You're in the Army Now"—Jimmy Durante and Phil Silvers looking absolutely foolish in their Little Lord Fauntleroy costumes. "Captains of the Clouds" Jimmy Cagney, his face smeared with artificial blood for a death scene, discussing philosophy with a newspaper man. "Son of Fury"—George Sanders, his wig hung on his chair, fast asleep, sitting up. "Mexican Spitfire at Sea"—Buddy Rogers, in full dress from spats to topper, waiting in line for his turn at the set telephone. "Twin Beds"—George Brent and Joan Bennett rehearsing their scene between bites on frozen suckers. "Heliotrope Harry"—Brian Donlevy downing cup after cup of black coffee.

Hear Twentieth Century is set to produce the life of Henry Morgan, the pirate, with John Carradine in the title role . . . Back from a round of the New York plays, Betty Grable tells me the best thing she's seen this season was our own Laird Cregar in "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Bob Crosby has bought up contracts for his orchestra's appearance in Chicago and New York this winter so he can stay here for picture work.

Recently Joan Woodbury sent five dozen pairs of silk stockings to a close friend in England, and the friend writes that she keeps them locked in a strong box and remits them out to friends for special occasions. Says she's making a nice little income from it.

Because defense activities are taking all the boats, RKO's having to build a 170-foot schooner, to be sailed, scuttled and salvaged for "Tuttles of Tahiti."

New York Calling!

New York, Oct. 29.

CARL SANDBURG: Because of the excellent response to your documentary film, "Bomber," the next venture of OEM's movie division will introduce other innovations in the field of motion pictures. It will be called "Women in Defense." Eleanor Roosevelt will write the commentary. And the narration will be made by Katharine Hepburn . . . REPRESENTATIVE HAMILTON FISH: An unusual legal problem will have to be determined—when you are subpoened to appear before the Washington grand jury which inlicted your office-aide last week . . . SECRETARY ICKES: The directors of the Gridiron Club last week voted to hold its dinner, as usual, in December. They feel that they can avoid, in their skits, any references to international affairs—and that your gas-rationing edicts, etc., will provide them with enough comic material.

CLARE BOOTHE

HIGH COMMR. FRANCIS B. SAYRE: Clare Boothe, who has spent the last two months in the Philippines, wrote a series of five articles about the islands—including thorough pen-portraits of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and President Manuel Quezon. She sent these articles to Life—but her husband, Henry Luce, refuses to publish them, because of their political differences concerning the Orient. Another magazine, therefore, may get the publication rights. . . . . .

TAYLOR HOLMES: Your daughter-in-law, Libby Holman, is preparing to return to the night clubs and theaters, in a sketch which now is being written for her. Marc Blitzstein, the leftwing composer of "No for an Answer" and "The Cradle Will Rock," is writing special songs for Libby—who has millions . . . John LaTouche and Larry Hart also are writing material for her . . . GEORGE SCHAEFER: Is it true that one of the Lehman Bros. associates will succeed you as head of RKO? . . . DASHIELL HAMMETT: Gypsy Rose Lee's "G-String Murder Case" has passed—in number of copies sold—every modern detective story book, except S. S. Van Dine's "Green Murder Case."

JOHN GOLDEN: A story soon will break concerning units entertaining at Army camps. One of these units entertained last week in Tennessee, where some of the local citizenry played too rough. When the actors called the M. P.'s for help—the Army cops arrested five of the actors. There may be repercussions in every Army entertainment unit . . . DAMON RUNYON: Jack Dempsey will return to the Miami scene this winter—as head of a new, personal enterprise . . . MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT: Gertrude Niesen will spend the winter in the Newport mansion her mother purchased at auction. Her parents will live with her there. This decision was made when her father went fishing there, caught three bass, and cooked them himself, in the three million dollar house.

WALLIE WINDSOR: If you're finding the public clamor too objectionable, study this example: The other night a pretty lady of royal heritage arrived, unannounced, at Leon & Eddie's, on W. Fifty-second. She and her three escorts were seated quietly and behaved as normally as did the other patrons. They left, without a stir. She's Princess Martha, of Norway . . . And for the first time in his long patronage of that cafe, Tommy Manville wasn't photographed there. Tommy sat at the table next to the princess'. Despite his request, he wasn't photographed—lest it appear that he was in Martha's party. And Manville's cousin, the Countess Bernadotte, is related to Martha.

Saroyan Play Superbly Done By Catholic U.

By Nelson B. Bell

I can think of no more stimulating refreshment of the senses too often left jaded by the geometric japeries of the conventional theater than an evening with William Saroyan's new play of "Jim Dandy."

There will be those—and they will be many—who will give new voice to the old cry that Saroyan concocts his stage pieces without regard to sharp character drawing, form or any of the accepted rules of playwriting and that his works for the theater therefore, are not plays. In the instance of his new phantasy presented last night for the first time by the Speech and Drama Department of Catholic University, they will have more than the usually flimsy basis for their arguments. "Jim Dandy" is without form, in the accepted sense, it is not marked by the customary boundaries of time and place and its figures are symbols rather than characters. It may not be a play. But assuredly it is drama; drama distinguished by beauty, humor, grace and ineffable charm. It even finds place for music and the dance in the course of its amiable examination of life and the deep human aspirations, fears, foibles and petty triumphs that actuate and propel it.

The title role of Jim Dandy, more than anything else, typifies the dignity of man, the arrogant and unperturbed king of the universe; Jim Crow, his idolizing satellite, more or less, as the program states, "anybody else"—which might be all of the rest of us; Johnny, Flora and Little Johnny, their son, the tenderness of deep understanding and affection; Fishkin, the pessimist, the introvert only occasionally able to escape the burden of his own frustration, and Jock, the optimist, and the blithe Molly, the beneficiaries of a gay and superficial happiness. Sympathy, imagination and a bit of understanding will discover in "Jim Dandy" an idealized reflection of the complexities of human relationships that may not be unimpeachable dramaturgy but, at worst, is a delightful exercise of poetic fancy.

A Feather in C. U.'s Cap

Aided by the lively direction of Alan Schneider and Dr. Josephine McGarry Callan and the helpful setting and lighting devised by Ralph Brown, the richly gifted acting group of Catholic University have achieved an artistic tour de force in their initial staging of the play Saroyan has seen fit to release to college and nonprofessional players in advance of its submission to the commercial theater. "Jim Dandy" is brief and its cast is small, but into the narrow span of an hour and 45 minutes last evening the campus mimes compressed a wealth of superlative "theater." They attacked their task with professional surety and skill. Every role was distinguished by an outstanding performance.

If "stellar" honors should be adjudged to Leo Brady, Gunnar Jagdmann and Anthony Messuri, as Jock, Johnny and Fishkin, it could only be because the author has written a little more of substance into their roles than into the others. Whit Vernon's Jim Dandy and Lionel Booth's Jim Crow, within their limitations, were comparably well done. Betty Gray and Elinor Oliver, as the two feminine members of the cast, lent the play lilt and loveliness in both lines and movement and Tommy Shields proved himself a juvenile player of more than ordinary precocity. Bernard Cody completed the cast as "A Wonderful Postman."

Not the least feature of a remarkably rounded production was the prologue that composed a prodigious curiosity regarding Saroyan, expressed from all parts of the house, by promptly presenting his play. "Jim Dandy" will be presented through next Tuesday.

Pidgeon Will M.C. For Gracie Fields

Walter Pidgeon, the film star, who came East for the world premiere of "How Green Was My Valley," will be master of ceremonies for the Gracie Fields program at Constitution Hall Saturday evening.

Pidgeon is delaying his return to Hollywood to appear at this benefit for British War Relief sponsored by the Variety Club of Washington. Others who will be on the bill when England's celebrated "Lancashire Lass" makes her first Washington appearance include Harriet Hoctor, Fred Keating and Harrison and Fisher.

RKO-Keith's

That lightness of touch and facility of invention that has stood producer-director Gregory La Cava so well in his previous hits, shares stellar honors with Irene Dunne and Robert Montgomery in "Unfinished Business," which begins its second week at RKO-Keith's this morning.

The slight story that serves as frame for this bright comedy has been told before, but seldom so ingeniously. Miss Dunne is a choir-singer from Messina, Ohio, who yearns for the glamour of the big city. Manhattanwards she meets a society playboy with whom she plays pleasantly for the evening's ride. Once in New York, no opera singer does she become.

Metal-Using Industries Face Priority Slump, Official Says

By the Associated Press

A Congressional investigating committee heard testimony yesterday that "practically every industry using metal" will be hit by unemployment as a result of diversion of raw materials for defense purposes through priorities.

J. Douglas Brown, chief of the priorities branch of the OPM's labor division, told the House committee investigating defense labor migration that the probable widespread nature of the unemployment was due to the fact that shortages are developing in not only specialized materials such as magnesium and aluminum but in such fundamentals as steel and cast iron.

"Practically every industry using metal will be affected to some degree," he said. He explained that men laid off by the jewelry industry in the Connecticut Valley would be reemployed very quickly in defense plants in that area, thus reducing the net unemployment, whereas that would not be so readily possible in places like Newton, Iowa, which is dependent largely on the operation of one washing machine company.

In response to questions by Representative Curtis (Republican), of Nebraska, for specific data as to individual classes which will be hit by priority unemployment, Brown said automobile salesmen almost certainly will be adversely affected because of the curtailment of automobile production.

Brown said that his division already had surveyed 35 communities suffering from priority unemployment and had recommended remedial action for 11. He did not name them.

"We also are watching conditions in about 500 other communities," he added.

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan laid before President Roosevelt a plan to provide jobs for 100,000 to 150,000 men who will be laid off in auto plants because of the defense program, and said the Chief Executive was "very much interested."

The Governor would not go into details, but said the plan involved cooperation of the Government, labor and management. He said it will not be presented to management until a meeting in Detroit next week.

Laval Guard Seizes Assassin Suspect

The man was carrying a knife, they said.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Auto Flag Painters Escape Jail Term

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—Suspended sentences were given today to Mr. and Mrs. Guy W. Picking, Baltimore lawyers, convicted October 14 of desecrating the American flag by painting it on an automobile advertising travel information.

Presiding Justice Bernard Kozicke, of Special Sessions Court, sitting with Justices George B. De Luca and Stanley Miller, heard a tearful plea by Mrs. Picking, who represented the couple throughout the proceedings.

The sentence was suspended on the condition the flag display was removed in 30 days. Mrs. Picking said she would comply.

During arguments on various motions to void the proceedings, Mrs. Picking wept constantly. At one point the court asked: "Why are you crying? You are a lawyer."

The complainant, J. Henry Smythe, a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and a sloganeer, arose during the arguments to comment:

"It's about time Mr. Picking wore the pants."

Rent Control

Enactment of the District rent-control bill should be expedited by the careful work that has gone into the drafting of that measure. It is not the amorphous type of legislation that is sometimes sent to the floor of the House by its committees. The District Committee drew upon the experience and advice of many groups before putting the bill into final form. In particular the Washington Housing Association outlined the objectives to be sought. And E. Barrett Prettyman, acting for real estate groups, gave these ideas legislative form. The committee in turn put this bill through a refining process, modifying some provisions, grafting on some features of the bill submitted by the OPM, and shaping the whole into a remarkably clear and sensible piece of legislation.

In the first place, the bill has the advantage of being definite in its terms. Rents would be frozen as of January 1, 1941, a date preceding most of the increases caused by boom-town conditions in Washington. Powers granted by the bill would expire at the end of 1945, unless renewed by Congress. The administrator would be a local resident appointed by the Board of Commissioners. Moreover, the bill sets up a definite policy, which is "to prevent any undue rent increases" and any chiseling on service rendered to tenants, and outlines a specific formula for attainment of that objective.

At the same time the bill makes ample allowance for flexibility. The "freezing" date would give immediate reassurance to the great majority who fear that the shortage of housing may lead to widespread exploitation. But adjustments could be made by the administrator to take account of higher or lower taxes, capital improvements or any change in the services rendered. The bill also wisely provides that in no case shall such changes create a rent ceiling higher than the rent generally prevailing for comparable housing accommodations. Rents for new living quarters would likewise have to be fixed at the prevailing levels as determined by the administrator.

Exploited tenants would not have to wait for relief. For the act would forbid landlords to receive any rent in excess of that permitted under the "ceiling" fixed by Congress and the administrator. Law-abiding tenants paying the prescribed rents could not be ousted, unless landlords, acting in good faith, wished to obtain the premises for their own use, for a bona-fide sale, or for substantial remodeling or replacement. Both tenants and landlords could petition the administrator for adjustments. A hearing before an examiner would have to be granted both parties in each case. Findings of the examiner would be subject to review by the administrator and those of the administrator by the Municipal Court. The rights of both parties thus appear to be well safeguarded. Indeed, the entire bill appears to be ready for enactment as soon as the House and Senate can find time to give it their approval. We hope that both will act promptly.

Solicitor General

When a man gets a high Government appointment by sheer merit, the fact warrants particular mention. This is the case with the newly named Solicitor General, Charles Fahy. He used no political pull. His record spoke for him, and it was eloquent enough to persuade the President to pass over other less-qualified bidders. Mr. Fahy served with distinction in World War I as a naval aviator. Since then he has devoted himself to the law. His learning is apparent in his quiet demeanor, but not till he appeared before the Supreme Court were his gifts as an advocate properly appreciated. He won his spurs along a route that was full of pitfalls, too. For he headed the legal force of the National Labor Relations Board during the early years of the New Deal. It was in this role that he came to be well known to the Supreme Court. The Justices admired him as a lawyer, and they grew to like him as a man. Indeed, a few years ago Justice Roberts, speaking at a local law school, held him up as a model for "a good lawyer," meaning a man who would never take advantage either of his client or the Court before which he appeared. This was high praise. It will be particularly gratifying to the Court, therefore, that Mr. Fahy has been appointed. The Solicitor General stands in a very special relation to the Court. He represents the Government, and upon him the Court relies to save its time by keeping out unimportant cases. The Court's satisfaction will be shared by the laity, for good government depends upon the caliber of the men in our Government. The President has made an ideal selection.

Save And Then Save

With good reason Secretary Morgenthau fears that many people have no idea of the amount of taxes to be collected from 1941 incomes. Consequently the Treasury, with the aid of the banks, is distributing pamphlets showing just how much individual taxpayers in the income brackets up to $25,000 will have to save each month to meet their tax bills. For example, the married man, without children, having an income of $3000 must save approximately $12 monthly to meet his income taxes. If he is single, he will have to lay aside $18 monthly for that purpose. In the $5000 group the tax will take $40 out of each month's income of the unmarried taxpayer and $31 from the childless married man. The Treasury pamphlet points out that the purchase of interest-bearing tax-saving notes affords an easy (and, incidentally, profitable) way to make advance provision for the new taxes. In any case it is imperative for taxpayers to reduce their expenditures to take care of the heavier exactions of the tax collector.

As if the Treasury did not have enough trouble trying to persuade people to lay up funds to pay taxes, it is confronted by the difficult task of trying to induce the public to save additional billions for the purchase of defense bonds. Putting by funds that have later to be used to meet taxes is, of course, really not saving at all. It is merely systematic budgeting to meet inescapable future outlays. The man who buys defense bonds, however, must not only make provision to meet his taxes. He must save enough out of his remaining diminished income to pay for these bonds. This he is not doing. Up to October 1 the Treasury had disposed of $1,500,000,000 of defense bonds, but less than 600 million dollars had gone to buyers in the small-income brackets. This is a pretty poor record. Taxes are expected to cover less than half of estimated Government expenditures for the current fiscal year, assuming those expenditures do not exceed 25 billion dollars. We must raise the remainder by borrowing. To speed defense bond sales, therefore, the Treasury is pushing plans to sell bonds to factory workers, to be paid for by deductions from pay rolls. The deductions, of course, would be made only with the assent of the employe, with the employer acting merely as a convenient collection agency for the Treasury.

The plan, which is to be tested out in New York State on an extensive scale, is worthy of trial. It seems doubtful, however, whether it will yield returns at all commensurate with revenue needs. Workers and small-salaried employes are being called upon for the first time to pay fairly substantial income taxes. What they have left over after meeting these taxes, as well as insurance pay-roll levies, they will be inclined to spend rather than invest. It is significant that even in England, where the need for sacrifice is brought home daily to everybody, the government had to turn to compulsory saving as a means of bringing in revenue and curtailing civilian consumption. The taxes levied by our Government on small and medium sized incomes are a bagatelle compared with the English exactions. Yet it does not seem at all probable that American taxpayers of moderate means will voluntarily save many additional billions of dollars for purchase of defense bonds. If they fail to do so, the only way to avoid disastrously inflationary types of defense financing will be to levy still higher taxes, or, as a last resort, compel people to save and buy bonds.

Mystery Maps

There is not much new in the secret documents and maps which the President is citing to show Hitler's designs against this hemisphere and against Christianity. The Fuehrer's intent was established long since. In fact we would go so far as to say that the mind of America has been made up on both scores. What we now need more than anything is a mobilization of our resources to match the mobilization of the American mind.

For years the Nazis, next to the Japanese, have been the world's busiest mapmakers. They have made little or no secret of it. Long before German troops moved into the Rhineland in 1937 authentic Nazi maps were available which clearly revealed the scope of the Third Reich's European ambitions. And one had only to visit the Reich Colonial League to obtain charmingly colored maps of future German spheres of influence in Africa and elsewhere. Moreover, when such political and economic maps were not publicly available, they were procurable—for a price—from Nazi Party members whose integrity was no better than it should be. Presumably neither Nazi integrity nor mutual trust among party leaders has improved with the passing of time. But, regardless of the source of the President's documents, the fact that he is unable to reveal their details, or to publish them for all to see, robs his revelation of much of the effectiveness it might otherwise have.

Obviously the President was immediately concerned with marshaling evidence of the need "to pull our own oar in the destruction of Hitlerism." And he undoubtedly had in mind the further awakening of Latin America to the Nazi challenge. This is probably the reason why he took notice of the reaction of the Nazis to his address—a reaction that was partly choler but mainly derision. But public opinion in this country, if not in the countries of the south, has evolved beyond the point where Nazi "secret" plans constitute an effective goad to national unity. By and large the challenge, the implications, of Nazi domination have been brought home to America by a slow, painful process of assimilation. No responsible individual denies the desperate need of national unity now as never before. Nor does he deny that before it can be achieved we face the staggering job of putting our competitive economy in order. What he now wants is a speedy and vigorous prosecution of the job and an end of wheedling, manipulative gestures.

"The mind of America," in the words of Woodrow Wilson, is mobilized. And the President should accept this as his basic premise in forcing speedy material mobilization.

Speeding Housing

By his testimony yesterday before the Senate Defense Investigating Committee, Nathan Straus unwittingly confirmed The Post's contention that defense housing badly needs an overall administrative head with authority to enforce his decisions. For in explaining the reasons for confusion and delay in defense housing the administrator of the United States Housing Authority revealed an extraordinary pattern of personal feuds, duplication of effort, and bad planning among the Federal housing agencies. To be sure, Mr. Straus was not advocating the appointment of an overall head. Nor, it may be presumed, will the Federal Works administrator or the defense housing coordinator so recommend when they testify before the committee.

But the need for a boss is self-evident. Mr. Straus took a number of potshots at his fellow agency heads, and presently they will doubtless respond in kind. Yet the abuses of authority, the raiding of one housing organization by another, the ignoring of existing facilities, which Mr. Straus described, have characterized much of the defense housing effort from the start. Undeniably personal frictions have played their part in the confusion and delay which Mr. Straus says will bring about dangerous congestion and desperate housing conditions in defense centers this winter. But divided authority and on occasion reluctance to exercise legitimate authority for fear of errors of decision have been far more important factors in the administrative tie-up.

Whether Judge Rosenman, who at the President's behest has been looking into the situation, will recommend an overall head remains to be seen. There have been stories, of course, that present administrators will be "promoted" to other jobs. This might solve the problem of the human equation, but it would not touch the core of the matter. Confusion and delay are inevitable without the appointment of an overall head empowered to act for all the agency heads.

Artists' Colors

It is reassuring to hear that the SPAB does not intend to make our artists jobless. At one time such a possibility was conceivable. At any rate, the artists on Massachusetts' Cape Ann got alarmed when such indispensables as zinc yellow, manganese blue, cadmium, and pthalocyanine green were subjected to priority control. Accordingly they petitioned the defense authorities to keep the needed pigments available. Cape Ann will be relieved the most by SPAB clemency. In that sunny corner of America, where the sea is as blue as in any Mediterranean lagoon, artists of all degrees of reputation and lack of it foregather every summer on every rock, wharf and packing box. They are as much part of this delectable landscape as the gulls and the clapboards. There they seek to recapture the wooden pier of Motive No. 1, as well as the nodding masts of fisher boats, minute beaches, fortune tellers, crooked streets of tearooms and shops marketing books, novelties, and their own artwork. The rest of America will be equally relieved by the cooperation of the defense authorities. Defense comes first, but art must not lose its colors at a time so warwracked that America has virtually become its custodian.

WITH QUIET TREAD

So dust creeps on its soft, grey trail,
Blows in a wind that is swift and pale,
Rises to heaven in wide, blue space,
Covers the earth's reluctant face.

Stones that grew into monuments
Went the way of the desert tents;
Nothing was ever too closely seamed
To bar the dust from the dead, who dreamed
Once, long ago, of a safe seclusion;
All of their dreams are proved delusion.

Strong and subtle, the dust moves on
And swallows up all that it rests upon.

Letters To The Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

Congress Should Act

Every United States Senator and Representative knows that the great majority of the American people are opposed to strikes at this time and they know the alarming effect of strikes on production of war materials is of great concern to America and a real joy to Hitler, yet Congress does not act. Our President has made speeches and written letters warning labor but he has also repeatedly stated his intention not to permit the sacrifice of any of the "social gains" of labor and evidently he intends to stick to his original labor policy. Labor has given the President a bad deal. However the attitude of labor, alarming though it is, could not have developed without a quiescent Congress.

Employers come out of mediation board conferences "angry and tired" while labor's agents come out with what they call victory, yet we are still subjected to staggering losses in production time through strikes. While these lines are being written more hours of production time loss are being added to the total time lost by strikes because there is no Governmental policy that prevents it.

Somehow we must impress members of Congress effectively with the fact that their failure to properly represent all the people by further delay is tantamount to a sit-down strike by Congress.

Faith Without Works

I doubt most of the half truths I hear. I doubt all of them. 'Tis said Hitler is used of God to clean up the world. Good will come out of this. God will take a hand. It is according to prophecy. It will be a better world after this. God uses the devil to good purpose. War is natural phenomenon—taking the place of plagues to cleanse the world. We will always have wars—so long as human nature is what it is.

I believe in saying, "Return good for evil—evil will come of evil," God will not intervene if man does not. It will be a better world only if we prevent this slaughter. God does not use evil or the devil for good. War is not a natural but an abnormal thing. It is a disease of the mind. We need not have wars, if we don't want them. We can change human nature, else why Christianity? Didn't Christ change men's minds, hearts, dispositions?

Musings

"Yes," said the President, "our Nation must speak from every assembly line—yes, from every coal mine * * *"—Brave words, accompanied by loud cheers.

"Yes," probably said Lewis (in quotes) for John never misses an opportunity to exhibit erudition:

"Sticks and stones will break my bones, but (words) will never hurt me."

Senator Byrd says he is through backing an Administration that allows itself to be throttled within its own backyard—or words to that effect. And the country—and our Allies—wonder whether, as between the shut-down strikes and the submarines most of our promised help will not still be "on order" after the "great" fuehrer has reorganized his Europe and is, perhaps, looking us over.

Well, anyhow, we can still sing "God Bless America," can't we? And, in the meantime, the country awaits—— WILBUR H. CLOSE.

Local Transport

Nothing occasions this letter save the sincere appreciation of a patron of many years.

In snow, hail, fog and rain, the Capital Transit Co. has never failed in its function of conveying passengers to their destination. I think this record deserves a word of praise.

I have looked at the matter in different lights and see no way in which this application of electricity to public vehicles has not proved a beneficial and enlightening influence on the whole community.

Franking Abuse

Your newspaper is to be commended for the fine job it has been doing in giving the public the facts about the mailbag incident involving Representative Fish and his secretary, George Hill. The time has come to clean up the abuse of the franking privilege and by all means such abuse as revealed in the Fish-Hill case. GORDON FINLEY.

Japanese Bluffing

Further delay is the sole purpose of the present negotiations between Japan and the United States. They should be dropped at once. The net effect will prove to be both humiliating and dangerous. Delay is now advantageous to Japan but not to us.

Japan has two weapons in her arsenal against the democracies fighting the Axis plan for world conquest: diplomatic maneuvering and her navy. The first is now being employed to the hilt but may at any time be discarded for naval action. The importance and vital interrelation of the two are dramatically symbolized by the appointment earlier in the year of one of Japan's top-ranking admirals as Japan's Ambassador to Washington.

For the United States at this time to attempt to make a deal with Japan is but sowing the wind to reap the whirlwind. Japan is at war and we are an irreconcilable enemy which must be eliminated before Japan can achieve her aims. Every German victory increases the seriousness of the Japanese threat to the United States and to all those who are carrying on the fight for freedom.

The strength of Russian resistance had the effect of stiffening the American attitude towards Japan, despite the efforts of certain pro-Japanese elements in Washington to arrange what they fondly hoped would be a "working agreement" with Japan.

It should not be forgotten that for the last ten years Japan has gotten away with the most successful international bluff in all history. This same bluff is operating in the present conversations between the United States and Japan. It may well be that the United States will have cause to regret the fact that we failed to crack down upon Japan with every weapon at our command long ago. Even now, while allies are at hand to ring Japan with devastating power, Japan is still able to restrain the United States from taking the political-military initiative.

No one believes that these conversations will conclude with an agreement which will take Japan out of the Axis or remove its menace to the democracies fighting Hitler. Putting the quietus on Japan as an Axis partner and as an aggressor nation would give immediate aid to the embattled democracies in Europe. Any course which continues to temporize with Japanese aggression presents them with military advantages which will require battalions of men to overcome in the future. Once this inescapable fact is recognized the course of American policy will be clear.

Diverting Farm Labor

Last week 19 boys were sent to the CCC Camp at Beltsville, Md., from this county alone.

As a member of a committee which is seeking to get farmers in this county to grow more grain, fruit, vegetables, eggs, poultry and pork next year for the democracies I am stumped.

Local farmers cannot get help to cut their corn, disc land and plant wheat and other grain and grass.

How can they increase their food crops if the Government continues to divert farm labor to CCC camps, the Indian Head Naval Powder Factory and other Federal projects?

It takes grain to produce milk, eggs, cheese, poultry and hogs.

The situation does not make sense.

If the Administration really believes more food is necessary for defense purposes it should stop its various agencies from robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Crowded Loading Platform

That was a corking good photograph you printed in the Post of October 22, showing homebound children from Brown Junior High School around 5 p. m. the day before on our loading platform at 24th Street and Benning Road Northeast, but I wonder if it was really typical of conditions there?

Our operating officials tell me they had a man there every afternoon since school started when Brown Junior let out, that our service is adequate but that the children do not seem inclined to board cars as they come along, preferring to go in groups, which of course, is very likely to result in large numbers attempting to get on one or two cars.

On October 22, our checkers reported there were 10 trips, or cars as the layman would understand it, passing that point in the 15 minutes between 5 p. m. and 5:15 p.m. The passenger load leaving in those 15 minutes was 515 or an average of 51.5 passengers per trip, whereas the Public Utilities Commission standard would allow 608 passengers or 60.8 per trip. Of the total 152 boarded the cars there in that 15 minute period.

In the next 15 minute period, from 5:15 to 5:30, there were 11 trips passing that point and the passenger load leaving numbered 467. Of the total just 32 boarded at that platform in that period.

In the half hour from 5 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. therefore, there were 982 passengers on the 21 trips leaving 24th and Benning Road eastbound, an average of 46.7 per trip whereas the P. U. C. standard would have permitted a total of 1260 passengers or 60 per trip. Of the total load leaving there, 184 boarded cars at that platform in the 30 minutes.

In the half hour preceding 5 p. m. the loading was much lighter for the 20 trips passing, so I will not burden you with the figures.

So far as October 21, the day your photograph was taken, is concerned, we have been told the children were informed before they were dismissed from school that there would be a photographer at the platform. Naturally they waited to have their pictures taken and naturally your photographer took a good crowd shot.

For these reasons I do not believe conditions as shown in your photograph are quite typical. This is not written in a critical spirit at all, but just to let you know how the whole situation appears to us.

Lord Fauntleroy House

Houses are of many appeals. There is your house and my house. The new house—the created dream of an architect; and the old house where maybe you were born; where your brothers and sisters once played; perhaps, the sentimental house, where love's young dream was woven and where the sunset period for "pa" and "ma" came like the closing strains of a master melody.

There are some houses, like some people, which have become distinguished not by any yearning for greatness, but because of happy accident. Others, like beggars, dream mutelessly in the afternoon sunlight of any day, waiting patiently the stroke of the wrecker's sledge to erase the record of their existence forever.

For one reason or another we love them; revere them. They may rank as houses of history. Such, indeed, may be said of many houses in Washington. Some have become shrines. Many have nearly lost their identity in an age set to the spirit of change.

At 1219 I Street Northwest, this city, is located a modest dwelling, three stories in height. On the second floor is operated today a printery, and in the basement is a plumbing establishment. The third floor is reserved as living quarters for transients. It seems proud of its earned glory yet careless as to what the future may decree. It rightfully earns christening as the "Lord Fauntleroy House."

Modern progress has declared for the house a lifted face. Once of brick frontage, cement now covers the outlook, as if a disposition existed to erase from public knowledge its past. A kindly-disposed philanthropist, whose love for the classic of another generation, had placed on the house in 1936 a bronze plaque reading: "On this site 50 years ago the deathless classic 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' was written by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett." Yesterday the seventy-fifth anniversary of her birth passed.

She was a highly imaginative child, living in a world of her own creation, biographers say, dramatizing always her environment and her experiences into fancy creations. In 1865, because of financial reverses in her native land, England, she set sail with her family for the New World, settling finally near Knoxville, Tenn. Though she lived for more than eight years in the Tennessee mountain region, there is no trace of the fact in her later writings.

Between the ages of 16 and 20, Novelist Burnett wrote numerous stories for magazine publication. Her first serious literary success was a novel founded on colliery life in Lancashire, England. The titles of her novels mount up to 40 or more. Outstanding among her books for children was "Little Lord Fauntleroy"—her second sensational success. It was first published in 1886. Oliver Wendell Holmes, noted jurist, thought of the character in these words: "To think he is not born to die, or to die out of beauty and infinite charm like the poor little creatures of flesh and blood all around us."

Quickly, reports of the period state, the book became a best seller despite a loud chorus of humorous comment and sarcastic criticism. Fauntleroy, a study of her own son, Vivian, was undoubtedly made too perfect, critics said. As represented he was an insufferable mollycoddle and even a prig. Chiefly, he was made up of wardrobe and manners. The story was dramatized and largely through the genius of Elsie Leslie, who took the title role, it became the dramatic success of that season.

Today or tomorrow you may walk down street and pause thoughtfully before a house, the house that means most to you. You'll likely say to yourself, "This is the house where——." Then memory may fail to function. You realize Time is no respecter either of things or persons, as he silently and remorselessly inscribes his story of the years.

There is the old house, the most pathetic of all once-personalized shelters. A shutter may hang off the hinges. All panes of glass from the window may be gone. Indeed, it is an abject echo of a one-time abode of humanity. The front door, in fact all doors, may be missing. On sight one is likely to conjecture the romance, tragedy, and heartaches that are enshrined within its tottering walls, as the sunlight of an autumn day projects the relic of yesterday into the spotlight.

Literary craftsmanship may, in instances, find classification among the ephemeral arts, but every so often a fictional character, such as Little Lord Fauntleroy, outlives the generation in which it was created, and a house remains as a surviving memorial.

Ardent Wrath

It would indeed be by far more appropriate and becoming to my sense of propriety if I resisted my burning desire and passion to rebuke your disgusting totalitarian etiquette towards my purely democratic type of letters to the editor in which from time to time I express my views on our American way of life. My wrath has become so ardent towards you for having professed to be a holy democrat, that I must call upon that part of me which is infinitely rich in forgiveness and compassion in order to tolerate you as a fully unholy democrat at large in the blesed mansions of democracy! Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Ice-Cold Evil

IT IS almost certainly an error to suppose that Hitler is merely running amok when he orders the massacre of innocent men. The distinguishing mark of his cruelty has always been that it is deliberate, the result not of hot-blooded impulse but, to use his own phrase, of "ice-cold" calculation.

LIPPMANN

He is quite capable of restraining his wrath as long as it is expedient to do so. He restrained himself about bolshevism readily enough as long as there was a French and British army in the west, and it was inexpedient to fight a war on two fronts. He was a monument of long-suffering patience with the United States while Japan held back, while Britain commanded the North Atlantic and the road to Africa, and while there was still profit in slowing up the American mobilization.

It must be assumed that when he inflicts upon occupied Europe cruelties that have not been practiced for centuries, he is also acting with "ice-cold" calculation.

IT IS CERTAIN that he has never believed that he could establish his new order in Europe by the voluntary collaboration of the peoples of Europe. Hitler is no fool; he is in fact a man of satanic genius in his understanding of the power of evil in human nature, and in his capacity to deceive ordinary civilized men—like for example Mr. Neville Chamberlain or Marshal Petain, or Senator Taft or Gen. Robert Woods. Without repeated demonstrations it is hard to imagine and to comprehend what happens when the power of evil is employed absolutely. That is why so many men have been disposed to believe what Hitler can never for a moment have believed, that he could make a settlement with Europe that the European nations would accept.

For Hitler must always have known that the empire of the Nazis required the destruction of these nations by causing the death of all who are capable of leading them, and by reducing the remaining population to the condition of hopeless, illiterate serfs and slaves. However effectively he might for a time deceive or corrupt or intimidate the ruling classes, it was certain—and with his knowledge of human nature he must surely have known it—that his victims would not give up without a struggle. The outbreak of terrorism and sabotage must have been foreseen and the Nazi response is almost certainly not a hastily improvised reprisal but a calculated and far-sighted policy.

THE HISTORY of Hitler's treatment of Poland—the first nation to resist him—shows clearly enough that his policy is not to occupy a country and then to win the collaboration of its people but to break forever its capacity for resistance. The method is to kill, imprison, torture, and exile so many of the leading members of the nation that there are no leaders left, no rallying points of resistance, no organizers, no sources of hope and revival. He does not do these things as reprisals against an occasional sniper, or an occasional assassin, or against acts of sabotage. If the occupied nation could conceivably restrain itself and discipline itself to perfect obedience to him he would still have to do what he does, if necessary by inventing pretexts. For at bottom nations are not conquered in Hitler's meaning of the term until their capacity to resist and revive has been destroyed. "Voluntary collaboration" there cannot be in Hitler's lexicon because a nation which collaborates voluntarily may change its mind and decide voluntarily not to collaborate.

Thus only the gullible and the corrupt have ever believed that Hitler would or could allow Marshal Petain to carry out his romantic dream of a purged and purified and regenerate France. Such a France would have a mind and a will of its own, and could not be counted upon, therefore, to play its appointed part in the Nazi empire. On the other hand the practical advantages of encouraging Marshal Petain to dream on and to confuse the French spirit were evident: Hitler knew quite well that the harshness of the occupation must eventually cause disorder which would bring about the reprisals that would bring about the divisions that would wreck not only Marshal Petain but what remains of the national structure of France. This is all according to plan. Hitler will not have completed his conquest of France until so many Frenchmen are dead, by shooting, by starvation, by the ruin of their bodies and minds in the prison camps that there are no Frenchmen in France capable of rallying the nation.

BUT THERE is another, and no less terrible, consideration which, though difficult for civilized men to grasp, surely counts heavily. Hitler knows perfectly well what undying hatred he has aroused in his victims and in those who, though out of his reach, have to stand by and watch the excruciating spectacle. That hatred is useful to Hitler. For had he not been so cruel, had he been merely a lawless and faithless conqueror, there would have remained in the mind of the world a distinction which he cannot tolerate—a distinction between the Nazis and the German nation. By these enormous and widespread cruelties from one end of Europe to the other, Hitler is obliterating the distinction in men's minds.

Thus the effect is to implicate the German people in his crimes, to force them to share his guilt, and so to bring down upon them the demand for retribution which is rising throughout the world. This is essential to the maintenance of Hitler's power inside of Germany—that the door should be slammed, locked and bolted against any effort to distinguish between Nazis and Germans and then to negotiate with Germans who might overthrow the Nazis. This is the democratic peace offensive that Hitler knows to be most deadly to himself, and his method of countering it is to involve the Germans in such horrors that they will fear more than anything else, more than the continuation of war, the vengeance of mankind.

IT IS not astonishing that modern men find it so difficult to comprehend the inwardness of Hitler's acts. The modern skeptical world has been taught for some 200 years a conception of human nature in which the reality of evil, so well known to the ages of faith, has been discounted. Almost all of us grew up in an environment of such easy optimism that we can scarcely know what is meant, though our ancestors knew it well, by the satanic will. We shall have to recover this forgotten but essential truth—along with so many others that we lost when, thinking we were enlightened and advanced, we were merely shallow and blind. For we are confronted with absolute realities such as we never supposed existed.

Philippines And War

By Vicente Pacis

A Silver Lining

MANILA.

THERE IS for the Philippines a silver lining of the war scare which the people, though immersed in politics, are not allowed to forget by means of frequent blackouts and air raid drills. The brightest spots in this bright lining are easily made up of the following:

1. A boom in chromite and manganese mining stocks threatens to take place;

2. The weekly pay roll of the personnel of the American forces in the Philippines, exclusive of the portions of the Philippine army already integrated to these forces, is estimated at some 1,000,000 pesos each week;

3. A little over 100 million pesos which the Philippines has long vainly claimed from Congress is about to be released;

4. Calling of some 200,000 Filipino reservists to active duty, thus providing employment to the bulk of the unemployed or unemployable;

5. To those who believe that America should stay in the Philippines, the act of the American Army and Navy of digging in, strengthening existing bases and building new ones, has a special sheen.

Not that the blackouts and the air raid drills have even a remote suggestion of Dunkerque, London or Crete. In fact, Manila newspapers have made much of the fact that the air raid drills constitute a social medium by creating new acquaintances among those who happen to jostle each other in the exits and within the ground floors of office buildings which, so far, are the only shelters available to the general public.

A famous Manila visitor, Clare Boothe, contributed to the prewar commentary by pointing out that Manila's blackouts were too black. This was due to the fact that hardly any home, hotel, night club or other public places have properly shaded lights or windows and all have to resort to putting out lights during periods of alarm. "I thought that the idea, at least it is the idea in London and elsewhere," said Miss Boothe, "is that a blackout enables the people within to continue with their normal functions while enemies in the air without cannot bomb them with any degree of accuracy." Be this as it may, the blackouts and air raid drills, together with the increasing ubiquitousness of men in military or naval uniforms, serve to remind the people that the war may be only around Corregidor.

But not for long nor with much urgency. For a representative of the Federal Loan Agency, Mr. Grady, was a recent Manila visitor, and while here he assured the mining industry that America will buy all the chromite and manganese the Philippines can produce. He added that the Federal Government was ready to advance money for the expansion of production and, in spite of the shipping shortage, would take care of providing the ships, buying f. o. b. Manila. The stocks of affected mines naturally began shooting up and will continue to shoot up in proportion to how well the Grady promises will be carried out.

The one million pesos a week of Federal fund being funneled into the country is estimated to be in addition to a considerable sum being expended in naval and military constructions in various parts of the islands. There is a growing animation in bars and cafes and dancing halls of Manila and the neighboring provinces, and there is little doubt that a substantial portion of Federal money is finding its way to a great many civilian purses through the legitimate channels of trade. The cash circulation report covering the last few months shows a record high precisely due to American money. The sums coming to the islands are nowhere near the astronomical figures to which Washington has long been accustomed, but they are not insignificant to the Philippines whose yearly national budget is much less than 50 million dollars.

ACCORDING to the original military program of the Commonwealth, some 500,000 soldiers would have been given a minimum training of half year by 1946. Due to lack of funds, the initial aftermath of the war, the program was soon interrupted. Training lagged behind to the extent that up to now, when the seventh year of the ten-year Commonwealth period is about to begin, less than 200,000 have been trained. But the fast absorption of the trained men by the United States military forces in the Far East under Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur has given the program a new impetus. At least for the duration, the Commonwealth military program may be financed almost entirely from Federal funds or from Federal refunds to the Philippines like the 30 million dollar coconut excise and sugar processing tax claim long pending in Congress.

But all this constitutes only minor lights in the silver lining. To the more idealistic individuals who favor an indefinite extension of the present American-Philippine set-up, the war scare has repercussions that may practically nullify the Philippine Independence Act. They figure out that if America makes the Philippines an impregnable salient by expanding her present naval bases in the islands and increasing her land and air forces to a point where Japan may well think twice before saying "Greater East Asia," she may after the war decide to maintain the salient. They recall that one of the potent reasons for the American decision to withdraw from the Philippines was the conviction that American arms could not defend the country against Japan.

Vaccine For Typhus?

By G. B. Lal

International News Service Science Editor

Spain to Be a Testing Ground

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Initiation of a dramatic experiment in Spain of world-wide importance to test a new vaccine against typhus, with the backing of the Rockefeller Foundation's international health division, was revealed today.

This scientific undertaking will rank with the famous expeditions for the control of yellow fever in Ecuador, Brazil and other countries conducted by the Rockefeller Foundation scientists in complete cooperation with the governments of the countries involved.

Dr. John Hall Janney, the foundation's specialist in epidemics, has just returned from Spain and other parts of Europe, where he investigated the problem of typhus that has suddenly become of paramount importance because of war and the unhealthful conditions engendered by it.

Spain is now suffering from one of the worst typhus epidemics in modern times and it is threatening to spread through other parts of Europe.

According to Dr. Janney:

"In order to find out whether or not the new vaccine against typhus is effective in human beings, controlled experimental treatments must be given in some place, like Spain, where a typhus epidemic is current.

CERTAIN GROUPS OF people will be vaccinated. Others will remain unvaccinated. They must all be living under almost identical conditions with respect to the regard of exposure to typhus. In course of time this would show whether or not, and how far, vaccination can prevent the disease."

Dr. Janney and other authorities of the Rockefeller Foundation pointed out that typhus has been reported not only in Spain, but also in Russia, Rumania and other parts of Europe.

Typhus, spread by lice, is one of the chief epidemic menaces of war.

It was authoritatively learned that the Rockefeller Foundation through its international health division is prepared to give ample financial aid and also vaccine for tests in Spain or elsewhere.

"Almost insurmountable difficulties" now face the specialists of the foundation, like Dr. Janney, in operating directly in any country of Europe. But competent young Spanish doctors themselves, backed by the foundation, will carry out the tests of the antityphus vaccine.

THE ANTITYPHUS VACCINE was discovered a little over a year ago by an American medical scientist, Dr. Herald R. Cox, of the United States Public Health Service, who had previously devised an effective vaccine against Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Typhus is caused by a peculiar sort of germ, smaller than the ordinary disease germ but larger than the virus, known as "rickettsia." Dr. Cox succeeded in growing some of these special typhus germs in fertilized eggs. Growing in the eggs, the germs became weak enough to be employed for vaccination.

In guinea pigs one of the antiphus vaccines, thus prepared, was so strong that its effect was recognized even when it was diluted from 100 million to one billion times. Tests on rats also have been successful.

Until now it has not been possible to make a fair, adequate test of the antityphus vaccine in human beings.

The tests to be undertaken in Spain may prove to be decisive. The report on their results is eagerly being awaited by authorities of the Rockefeller Foundation's international health division.

British Concerned On Military Information Revealed In U. S.

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 29.—British officials were reliably reported today to be gravely concerned over the freedom with which military information is circulated in the United States and to be seeking further steps by Washington to keep war matters secret.

The British, it was said, have frequently pointed out to the American Embassy stories given out in the United States which the British say provided important tipoffs to Germany.

President Roosevelt's announcement October 24 that the OPM after November 1 would keep secret the details of war production was seen here as one fruit of the British complaints.

Among recent disclosures which the British think United States individuals should not have made were:

That United States tank production would not reach 2000 a month until June, 1942.

That Boston was designated as a loading port for supplies to Russia and that these would go by the North Atlantic route, a Maritime Commission announcement which the Government later said was incorrect.

That the United States would manufacture a new type of torpedo for the British, testimony before the House Appropriations Subcommittee.

Frequent Complaints

It was also said data on the numbers and types of planes manufactured for Britain had been given out until banned by the President.

London took the stand that too much information given in closed committee hearings in Washington was being published and annoyance was expressed at the London newspaper story from Washington which gave the tipoff on the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic meeting.

Censors and others have complained that they were frequently put in "extremely unhappy situations" by the reluctance of the United States Government to accept responsibility for the censorship of some stories of purely American concern.

One such instance was the arrival of a convoy of American soldiers in Iceland in September.

Iceland Situation

Drew Middleton, Associated Press correspondent, filed stories on landing September 17. These were censored in Iceland and finally reached London September 22 but bogged down in the censorship here until October 1. British censors declared they were held up at the request of the United States Navy Department, which wanted to make sure all ships were out of the danger zone before the stories were released, but would not take official responsibility for the delay.

Censorship in Iceland since the arrival of the Americans has been particularly cumbersome. Correspondents have to submit all copy first to the security staff of the United States Army general headquarters, then to the British army.

If it concerns the United States Navy, Army, Marine or Air Corps or the R. A. F. or British navy, it has to go to whichever service is concerned for further consideration. It then gets another reading in London by British censors, who, if it concerns United States naval or military operations, may seek consultation with Washington before passing it.

The American Embassy in London has treated the question of collaborating with and advising British censors on United States matters with the respect one would give a loaded gun.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Private Purkey

Dear ma:

I serpose you read in the papers how the Army chiefs have decided that two much meat and potatos is bad for a soldier and that a jeep makes a better fighter if he is a vegeterrian. I think they are right about potatos and I certainly hope so becuz I am sick of peeling them but I still hope that after a days hard work in this Army I can get a slab of meat instead of a lot of rabbit chow. And if I ever get into a war I know I want to get sent into battle on a steak and not on no lettuce and tommato salad.

* * * *

A colonel named Osmun in the quartermasters corpse is responsible for the idea of more green stuff and less meat in the Army. Always the American Army has depended on meat, even if it has not always been choice cuts, and I never heard of no soldier in the entire history of our Army squawking that he got too much meat.

* * * *

From the beef stew I been getting in the Army I should of suspected somebody was against much meat for soldiers, but I was blaming it on the chef. I did not know that higher ups in the Army was trying out a new theory that what a jeep needs is 90 per cent vegettables. It seems Col. Osmun thinks carrots, lettuce, tommatos, string beans, cabbage and all that junk has more of the vitermines and atoms and other things witch make a soldier fiter. I have just discovered the Army has been experiementing on me for months witch is why I been getting lettuce with scrambled eggs and one day last week I got boiled cabbage sandwich on a manoover.

* * * *

They served ice cream at the USO Club the other night and now I know why I was asked what flavor I wood like, vanilla, strawberry or turnip.

* * * *

The men behind the experimenting also think milk and fruit juices are better for us than Army coffee. They are okay there. Anything is better than Army coffee. But I think that even if we got nothing but milk the Army chefs wood find a way to make it taste like hot mud.

* * * *

Well, anyhow, I feel fine so I guess the Army knows best what is good for me, although I personally wood take a small steak over a mess of vegettables any time. I do not gess there is any need to worry much however becuz it seems to me this Army still serves more beans than anything else.

Well I cannot think of no more to write now so lots of love from your loving son, OSCAR.

P. S. Sergt. Mooney got called down today on account of on a manoover he overran his objective by 5 miles. I gess it was two much lettuce in his diet.

Our Guess

When day is done—and night is, too,
I think that, once they are alone,
I wonder what the Windsors do;
They join in one despairing groan.

I think the Duchess, weak and low,
Says, "Well, you see, I told you so!" . . .
And that the Duke in tones quite drear
Retorts, "You know 'twas YOUR idea!"

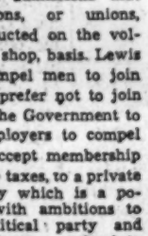
Labor Dictators Rule Unions

THE PATRIOTIC UPROAR over the Lewis strike in the so-called captive mines of the steel companies has completely obscured the real issue, which has nothing to do with national defense and existed even before Hitler received the office from Joseph Stalin to start the war. President Roosevelt's position in the fight is that of an evasive opportunist who is patrioteering at the expense of a fundamental principle.



PEGLER

The fact is that John L. Lewis is a dictator over a great mass of workers, so empowered by the laws and policy of the New Deal which flout the rights of the individual worker and the masses of workers. Under those laws and that policy Lewis has been given a power that no man or group of private individuals should be allowed to possess. As to whether any agency of the Government should be allowed to have such power, save, perhaps in times of the most dangerous military emergency, another argument may be waged, but that question is not before the country at the moment.

In the present case Lewis is not a public official and his United Mine Workers is not a Government agency. He is a private citizen who rules despotically a private association which has enjoyed a liberal political subsidy from the Government under the administration of the Wagner Act, the more recent decisions of the Supreme Court and the policy of the Labor Department and the Department of Justice toward unions.

UNIONS are supposed to be voluntary associations and even Frances Perkins and Mrs. Roosevelt, within the last year, have made reluctant admissions that such associations, or unions, should be conducted on the voluntary, or open shop, basis. Lewis is trying to compel men to join his union who prefer not to join and to compel the Government to compel the employers to compel these men to accept membership and pay dues, or taxes, to a private taxing authority which is a political power with ambitions to become a political party and which does not even pretend to consult the members on the disbursement of their money.

It isn't Lewis' money and he has no moral or political right to use it for political purposes, but President Roosevelt, himself, was a party to a violation of the workers' rights and of morals when he permitted Lewis to contribute, whether as a gift or as a loan, $500,000 out of the mine workers' treasury to one of his Presidential campaign funds. The President surely knows enough about the practical realities of the mine workers to have known at that time that the men were not consulted and he certainly must have been aware that if even one miner in the entire organization, perhaps a Republican, objected to this use of his own minute fraction of that $500,000 the deal was tainted.

EVEN if there had been no war, and thus no national emergency, the Lewis rule of the mine workers still would have been wrong and the National Government would have been guilty, and was guilty, of a wrong in permitting Lewis to operate his union as he does under the laws and policies which are mockingly referred to as "labor's gains." The war emergency does not alter the basic facts and principles of the case, but it is being used to conceal them from the public mind.

Lewis is not the only professional unioneer and politician of dictatorial and ruthless method whose power has been enhanced under this Government, but he is probably the boldest outside the ranks of the Communists who, openly and fortunately, now find a motive to help arm the country against Moscow's enemy.

PRACTICALLY all of the big boss unioneers enjoy, potentially, the same powers that Lewis is now employing against the national security in the interests of his own political ambition and it is the fault of President Roosevelt, first, and of the subordinate New Dealers having to do with union affairs, miscalled "labor" relations, that sound remedial laws have not been passed which would have guaranteed the worker's right not to unionize. When this right is established by law, and several such laws have been proposed and stopped by the Administration, there will be no strikes either in war industries or in the legitimate works of peaceful commerce for the purpose of compelling them to submit to the will of the ruthless unioneer.

There is no question of the Administration's fault, even guilt, in creating the present situation, for Senator Bob Wagner, the stooge who guided the Labor Act to adoption, fought openly against amendments which would have protected the worker equally from coercion by either the union or the employer.

Until the law is amended to trim the powers of the political unioneer this wrong will exist and this danger will threaten not only the military preparations of the Nation but the freedoms for which it is proposed that Americans fight Hitler wherever he can be met in action.

Senate Committee Fails to Pass Bill To Deport Bridges

Senator Holman (Representative), of Oregon, said in a statement yesterday that he had failed at an executive session of the Senate Immigrations Committee to obtain approval of a House bill ordering the immediate deportation of Harry R. Bridges, West Coast labor leader.

"The program for national defense and the safety, peace and prosperity of the American people," Holman said, "demand the immediate deportation of Harry R. Bridges."

Latin-American Banks Invited To Accept New Trade Credit

By Charles E. Egan

Copyright by New York Times

Striking a double blow for Western Hemisphere solidarity, the Export-Import Bank of Washington yesterday invited Latin-American banks to take advantage of a plan under which this Government will advance funds to finance something over 70 million dollars worth of Latin-American purchases here a month and require payment only after the goods have actually been delivered in South American ports.

Value of the plan, in the opinion of New York bankers who conferred with Government officials on the program here yesterday, is that it gives the lie to German agents in Latin America who have claimed the United States cannot deliver merchandise to Central and South American buyers, and at the same time relieves importers in those countries of the necessity of tying up their cash for periods of six months or a year while awaiting delivery of goods purchased in this country.

To American exporters the program has special appeal, since for the first time it creates a form of governmental credit insurance on foreign trade transactions. For years exporters have complained that their competitors in England, Germany and elsewhere enjoyed an "edge" in Latin America because their respective governments guaranteed the credit risks which American shippers had to shoulder themselves.

Another special virtue of the program, in the eyes of American businessmen, is that it requires no special legislation to put it into effect and provides that existing channels of trade and of financing will be used.

First Pictures of Kearny After Battle With Nazi U-Boats

The text of the official Navy release regarding the Kearny follows:

"Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today released the following additional information concerning the torpedoing of the U. S. S. Kearny, as result of information received from the ship. (Location of the ship at present was not given).

"On the night of October 16-17, the U. S. S. Kearny while escorting a convoy of merchant ships received distress signals from another convoy which was under attack from several German submarines. The U. S. S. Kearny proceeded to the aid of the attacked convoy.

"On arriving at the scene of the attack, the U. S. S. Kearny dropped depth bombs when she sighted a merchant ship under attack by a submarine. Some time afterward, three torpedo tracks were observed approaching the U. S. S. Kearny. One passed ahead of the ship, one astern, and the third struck the U. S. S. Kearny on the starboard side in the vicinity of the forward fire room.

"The force of the explosion breached the side of the ship well under the water line, flooding the boiler compartment and killing the men stationed in the boilen room on the steaming watch. The force of the explosion was forward and upward. The deck above the fire room was ruptured with such force that wreckage was thrown onto the bridge.

"Eleven men were killed as result of the attack. In addition, two men were seriously injured and eight men received minor wounds.

(Here followed the list of the dead, previously released.)

"The U. S. S. Kearny was forced out of action by the explosion. Her commanding officer, Lieut. Comdr. A. L. Danis, U. S. Navy, immediately invoked casualty and ship damage routine and by prompt action prevented the ship from sinking. The U. S. S. Kearny was escorted to port by other destroyers of the United States fleet.

"On arrival in port, the men seriously injured were removed to the Army hospital for treatment. Those receiving minor injuries were given out-patient treatment and returned to the ship.

"In the report made by Rear Admiral S. M. Robinson, U. S. Navy, chief of the Bureau of Ships, to Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, it was pointed out that due to the arrangement of the ship's boiler and engine rooms, the commanding officer was able to shift from the damaged fire room to another fire room and able to take the ship into port under her own power.

"Other features of the report were:

"The force of the explosion not only opened the starboard (right) side of the ship but blew out the deck overhead and caused the damage to the deck house and bridge above. The forward bulkhead of the boiler room was broken through, flooding the next compartment, but the after bulkhead, although deflected, held firmly, leaving the forward engine room intact.

"The ship was cut almost completely around from the turn of the bilge on the starboard side except for the heavy deck edge and side plating on the starboard side. This plating held intact.

"Although the forward boiler room and smaller compartment forward of the boiler room were completely flooded, the ship remained upright with very little change in trim. Moreover, despite the fact that the forward engine room was just abaft the compartment hit, the machinery was of such excellent type and design that the engine remained serviceable, even though the foundation was slightly deflected."

Fahy Put Up For Solicitor General

CHARLES FAHY

Charles Fahy, quiet Administration "work-horse" who was given most of the credit for winning the long fight over constitutionality of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, yesterday was nominated by President Roosevelt to be Solicitor General of the United States.

He will succeed Francis Biddle, now Attorney General, in that position if the Senate confirms the nomination and there was no indication last night of substantial opposition.

Fahy, 49, has been Acting Solicitor General, having been named assistant to Biddle a year ago. Prior to that shift, for five years he was general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board and in that post won his most notable victories since entering Government service with advent of the New Deal in 1933.

A native of Rome, Ga., he came here to take an appointment as first assistant solicitor of the Interior Department. Two years later he was sent to the NLRB when that agency was created in 1935 and undertook the grueling task of overcoming powerful and bitter attacks on the agency's orders and even on the law which provided the basis of its existence.

Trying to clear the legal way for effectuating decisions of the board, he found its hands tied in numerous jurisdictions by injunctions against enforcement of orders already issued. Controversy still was raging over what constituted "inter-State commerce."

The Supreme Court already had thrown out the labor provisions of the Guffey Coal Act and had held the NRA unconstitutional.

Obtaining a ruling from that highest tribunal that the board, on the contrary, had constitutional authority, became a prime need.

Two years later the goal was attained when the court, in five decisions on a single day, upheld the Wagner Act and gave the board the enforcement power it had asked. Fahy, in addition to sharing in the long work of preparation of the cases, argued two of them himself.

During the next three years the NLRB legal staff set probably an unprecedented record in the percentage of court cases won, as attacks on various phases of the board's work continued.

Fahy's appointment as assistant solicitor in the Justice Department was hailed as recognition of the NLRB accomplishments.

Fahy studied at Notre Dame, but got his law degree at Georgetown. He was a naval aviator in the World War, cracked up and won the Naval Cross. Later he practiced law here until 1924, when, because of his health, he moved to Santa Fe, N. Mex., returning in 1933 to enter the Interior Department post. He is married and has three daughters.

New York, Oct. 29.—Maj. Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal, leader of the Labor Party in the House of Commons and deputy of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, told the conference of the International Labor Organization at Columbia University today that while it was essential to plan now for world economic reconstruction after the war, all such planning is "just lost labor unless Hitlerism is destroyed."

Speaking as a member of Britain's war cabinet, Maj. Attlee declared that England and her allies are fighting not only for the future of civilization but also for the common people in every country who desire to preserve and make secure President Roosevelt's "four freedoms."

He pledged Britain's sincere determination to put into effect the Atlantic charter proclaimed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill but warned the delegates from 35 nations represented at the conference that while "our cause, the cause of freedom, democracy and humanity, will triumph, no one should be deceived as to the magnitude and scope of the danger that threatens civilization."

"We do not envisage an end to this war save victory," Maj. Attlee said. "We are detremined not only to win the war but to win the peace. Plans must be prepared in advance. Action must be taken now if the end of the war is not to find us unprepared. But the problems of the peace cannot be solved by one nation in isolation. The plans of a post-war Britain must be fitted into the plans of a post-war world, for this fight is not just a fight between nations. It is a fight for the future of civilization. Its result will affect the lives of all men and women—not only those now engaged in the struggle."

He said: "It is certain that until the crushing burden of armaments throughout the world is lifted from the backs of the people, they cannot enjoy the maximum social wellbeing which is possible. We cannot build the city of our desire under the constant menace of aggression. Freedom from fear and freedom from want must be sought together."

Maj. Atlee said he agreed with the view expressed recently by Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, that planning for the post-war period could not be left until the end of the war, saying that Britain was now engaged in considering a constructive peace and reconstruction program.

As evidences of Britain's contribution to that social readjustment which must come after the war, Maj. Atlee cited the advances already made in England, despite the burdens of the war, in the improvement of standards and social services and the heavy load of taxation which the British people have assumed. As an example, he cited the fact that the proportion expected from the very rich is so high that "a man must have in Britain an income of over $300,000 in order to have a spendable income of $25,000.

Senate Urged To Move So Roof Can Be Replaced

Senator Andrews (Democrat), of Florida, chairman of a Public Buildings and Grounds subcommittee, yesterday recommended that the Senate move out of its chambers to the old Supreme Court room in the Capitol next July 1 to allow repairs to be made to the chamber roof.

He estimated that it would take workmen from six to eight months to complete the task of removing the present 90-ton skylight roof and to replace it with a new plaster ceiling with indirect lighting. Architects urged the new roof during hearings conducted last week by the subcommittee, saying it would create better accoustical and lighting facilities.

Several months ago the Senate met temporarily in the old Supreme Court chamber while steel girders were raised to strengthen the present roof.

Voters' League Asks Citizenship Education

By Lucia Giddens

More intensive citizenship education was emphasized as the District League of Women Voters' job in defense yesterday by Mrs. Eugene Callaghan, president, who declared that one of its greatest tasks is to work for "the right to vote" in the District.

She discussed "The Direction and Policy of the League" at its luncheon at the Y. W. C. A., which, she said, was "the largest opening meeting" that the District League has ever had. More than 200 women were seated in Barker Hall, and some who had to be turned away returned to the balcony after lunch to listen to the program.

"The major obstacle to the league's work in the District is the virtual impossibility of participation in Government," Mrs. Callaghan asserted. "The right to vote is fundamental to the democratic way of life."

When an intelligent community is denied that right, the whole system of government is in danger, she said.

While Congress is now so largely occupied with international affairs, it is the time for the league to "consider strategy" and further contribute to education of the community on suffrage, "until the day when we can carry our arguments to the Hill," she said.

"Education for effective participation of citizens in Government" has been the day-to-day job of the league for 21 years, and its task is to go right on doing that job with renewed effort and vision, Mrs. Callaghan said.

The work of league is the "most realistic" kind of war work, she said, in its effort to show that democracy can work efficiently.

"We do not need to regear," or to include a new department; for "we are ready to do the highest type of defense work," Mrs. Callaghan went on.

Mrs. Callaghan said that "defense strikes may tend to shake our faith in collective bargaining" but she reiterated confidence in the process, and added that "we can not afford to make snap judgments as to the right and wrong of strikes."

"Let us choose a few projects and do them well," she urged, adding that she hoped that the league would not make its legislative agenda "too long" but would concentrate on getting results in a few items.

Members were given questionnaires to check the study groups in which they wish to participate, after department chairmen made brief talks on the various fields.

A survey in the form of a public opinion poll on the District Government was one of the studies proposed by the Department of Government and its operation, of which Mrs. Harold Stone is chairman.

Mrs. Stone said there were indications that the "temper of Congress" is not now in favor of national representation, but there is hope for some form of local suffrage.

There has never been "a really thoroughgoing piece of research" on how to divide the two spheres of District and national governments, she said, indicating that such a study is needed.

Mrs. H. P. Chandler, chairman of social welfare; Mrs. Oscar Chapman, economic welfare; Mrs. Rensis Likert, education; Mrs. Harvey Becknell, foreign policy, made brief reports calling attention to the study groups.

Members indicated which of the following studies they wished to participate in: A survey of District public welfare services and defense; a survey of District health services and defense; review of legislation affecting child labor, dependent children, public welfare administration and destitute migrants; health insurance and Federal responsibility for public health; care of women offenders.

Also school facilities and services; living costs, housing, study of model municipal charter, local and national taxation, a seminar on suffrage in the District, inter-American defense, defense outposts and strategic possessions, the "Eight-Point Program" and post-war plans.

Inflation Likely, J. A. Reilly Tells Zonta Club

The Nation probably will have serious inflation, and "I wouldn't be surprised if it is already upon us," John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank, told the Zonta Club at its luncheon yesterday at the Y. W. C. A.

He pointed out that the country was rushed from a peacetime to a wartime economy "almost overnight" with resulting problems of adjustment.

He named some of the "cushions against inflation" which the Government is setting up. Among them he cited the sale of defense savings bonds which he said he regards as "the soundest investment in America." He pointed out also that the Federal Reserve system is providing various safeguards.

He urged that any of his listeners who are enjoying unusual profits now to "get themselves out of debt," clearing encumbrances on property. He also recommended that they make preparation to meet increased taxes by setting aside a sum out of their earnings.

How to Feed Family of Four on $10 a Week Plan Is Demonstrated by Girl Scout Homemakers

Dodo Valentine, Troop 107 (left), Mrs. H. H. Flather, chairman of Girl Scout Little House, and Marilyn Moseley, Troop 107, show great interest in the basket of food they have purchased. This represents marketing for a family of four on a $10 a week budget, as worked out by the scouts in their nutrition studies.

Ways of Stretching the Grocery Money To Buy as Much in Nutrient Value This Year as Last, Also Shown

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Household Editor

WOULD you like to make $10 go as far this year at it did last in preparing meals without loss of nutritional value? The answer to this question has been made by the Washington Chapter of the Girl Scouts.

The Scouts gave a demonstration at the National Girl Scout Little House, this week before Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, their honorary president.

As a part of National Girl Scout Week, Scouts throughout the country the demonstrating what they are trained to offer their communities and the country as a whole.

Mrs. Henry H. Flather, chairman, the Little House Committee, who arranged the demonstration, emphasized that when the need for defense plans became apparent, it was not necessary for the Girl Scouts to plan a new program as such activities have always been a part of their preparedness program.

To Give Demonstration

Miss Lucy Knox, home economics instructor, McKinley High School, and leader of Girl Scout Troop 107, demonstrated with the use of charts, menus, pamphlets, etc., how the girls in her troop are prepared to "buy health with the food dollar." She was assisted by Girl Scouts Dorothy Valentine, Marilyn Moseley, Mary Leonard and Mary Purcell.

By means of charts they showed menus for an entire week planned on a $10 a week food allowance for a family of 4. The menus were planned on a five point scale; 1-5 for meat, 1-5 for dairy products, 1-5 for fruits and vegetables, 1-5 for sweets and starches and 1-5 for eggs and fats.

Menus made last year were compared with the ones made for this fall, and substitutions were made without loss in nutritive value.

Among the substitutions made were dried lima beans, instead of canned or fresh ones; cabbage slaw, instead of lettuce salads; tomato and prune juice, instead of fresh orange juice; cooked cereals instead of prepared cereals; cheaper cuts of meat instead of choice cuts; homemade desserts instead of bakery products.

Substitutions Made

Typical of the menus the scouts planned on this $10 a week food budget for four persons is the following:

BREAKFAST—Stewed prunes, farina and milk, toast and butter, Postum, cocoa.

LUNCH—Split pea soup, crackers cabbage salad, tea, milk.

DINNER—Pot roast, carrots, onions, potatoes, heart of lettuce salad, Brown Betty.

If emergencies should arise the Scouts also know the type of rations which could be adapted to families when nonperishable foods, with maximum amount of nourishment and minimum weight would be a controlling factor in making a selection of rations for an evacuation.

Mrs. R. C. Bishop, leader, and Bonnie Bishop and Fleur Bateman, of Troop 71, showed by a demonstration what these foods would be. The Scouts through marketing and comparison of prices, food values and weights, have completed a list of rations that will serve eight persons for two days at a cost of 25 cents a day per person.

Food On Display

The following foods were on display and the Scouts demonstrated how this food can be packed into two knapsacks and carried comfortably. The total weight is under 8 pounds. Following is a list of the food items:

One pound powdered milk (equivalent to 4 quarts bottled milk), 1 can tomato juice, 2 cans fruit juice, 1 pound spaghetti, ½ pound pasteurized cheese, 2 cans corn beef hash, 2 cans salmon, 1 package pancake flour, 1 package each of dates, figs, raisins, 1 large box triscuit, 1 can Boston brown bread, 1 box graham crackers, 1 can cocoa powder (includes dried milk), 1 jar honey, 8 packages dehydrated soup (weighing only ½ pound, will serve 8 persons 4 times), ½ pound hard candy, safety matches, salt, halcyon tablets for purifying water, tea for adults.

Improve Your Home With Limited Budget

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

YOU read a lot about all the money people have these days, but not many of us as yet are really embarrassed by riches. And so the problem Mrs. R. S. writes about has a familiar ring . . . She wants to do over her living room and dining room on a limited budget, but she must keep certain things that have her stumped.

The old draperies are cretonne with a deep turquoise ground and a leaf and farm design in cream beige and green—not an exciting start—and Mrs. S. doesn't know where to go from there. The rug is a dark neutral color and the furniture is a hodgepodge—nothing especially good, but it has to be used.

Perhaps a new table or two could be managed, but most of the old stuff must stay. She has a collection of French prints she'd like to frame and use. The walls will be painted and she will make fresh slip covers and buy some new lamps. These rooms are very informal, well used and the center of family life.

Well, our first suggestion would be to paint the walls and woodwork of both rooms in a very light aqua . . . a pale edition of the background tone of the draperies. (Get the tint by mixing Prussian blue, raw umber, raw sienna and yellow ochre in white . . . add these colors very gradually to the white till the shade is as desired, then paint a good-sized piece of cardboard with the color and let it dry . . . then carry it around and try it in both light and dark corners of the room before deciding definitely. Or easier still, get a piece of wallpaper with the right ground tone and mix the paint to match.) This color will do wonders for the room.

Yes, You Too Can Reduce, If You Wish

By Ida Jean Kain

JUST BY A simple flick of psychology you can reduce without having to call too strenuously on your will power. All that is necessary is for you to appreciate how much slimming can mean in the way of having fun. When you do that you begin to acquire a natural distaste for the calories or the faint streak of laziness that might prove a stumbling block.

It seems that once a woman makes up her mind what she wants, any means justifies the end. Nothing can stop her. In this particular instance, it is a more attractive personality she wants. Otherwise she would not undertake such a disciplinary program. And once her possibilities as an attractive woman are fully realized, she would choke before taking a calorie over the 250 or 350, or 500 allotted for a particular meal. And she would make herself exercise daily.

Logic in Nutshell

Such logic in a nutshell fairly well sums up the views of M. E. Muniz, New York career consultant. Mr. Muniz's observations have not only given him an almost uncanny insight into the somewhat intricate workings of the feminine mind, but have convinced him that these workings can be directed to advantage.

He insists that slimming should, from the beginning, be recognized as both a psychological and physiological change.

It is his belief that the introvert woman, the one who tends to withdraw into herself and read and eat chocolates, is the one who has the greatest struggle against fat. Her decision to slim down is rooted in a longing for a more active social life.

What Goes On?

If you take Mr. Muniz's advice, then, the first time you go to a party after you have made up your mind to slim down, you will start getting away from yourself. When you enter the room, you will say, "Well, hello! What goes on here?"

And by the change in your attitude you will become a participant rather than a wallflower. But you are not to buttonhole your new acquaintances and tell them what a martyr you are to slimming. No, indeed! You'll take the change in your shape as casually as a change in your hair style. Then their compliments will come spontaneously and will encourage you all the more.

There seems to be no doubt that once you get the right slant on weight, slimming becomes 100 per cent easier. And proof that you do have more fun as you lose pounds is furnished in that steady stream of letters from successful reducers. Every single one of them writes that she feels healthier, happier and younger.

Having Effected Reconciliation With Husband After Six Years' Separation, Wife Once Again Finds Herself Fretting About His Conduct

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I were separated for nearly 6 years. After many attempts at reconciliation, I was able to get him to see his mistakes. After I returned to him, he built us a fine home and we were very happy until lately, when we had a quarrel over a very minor matter—after which he reminded me that he didn't ask me to return; and that he had been getting along very well without me. He had said, at the time we were reconciled, that he would never be weak enough to throw the past in my face; and that he was very happy that I had been big enough to mend the quarrel.

We have a son, and it was principally for his sake that the home was reestablished. I felt the boy needed a home and his father's companionship. My husband is an only son, spoiled and bad-tempered, and given to saying hurtful things when angered. His father lives with us and I try to the best of my knowledge to be good to him. Sometimes he vexes me, but not much or often. I cook his meals, speak pleasantly to him and in general try to make him comfortable. He is penniless and totally dependent upon us.

I work hard, making the home spotlessly clean, serving good meals and keeping myself well groomed. I am always at home when my husband is there, and I try to be kind and sympathetic. However, he is selfish and stingy and his general views are very narrow. He has few friends and behaves insultingly when members of my family come to call. He is making a nervous wreck of me and I know little happiness now. He is a difficult husband and, at times, a grouchy father. But a stranger meeting him would think he was an angel. Please advise me how to handle this sort of person. READER.

Wife's Complaint Is Rather Illogical

DEAR READER: Be honest with yourself and admit that you returned to your husband more for your own sake than for your son's sake,—because you had come to believe that life with him, even though negotiated on personally humiliating terms, was preferable to life without him. Had he been essentially repugnant to you, you would not have besought a reconciliation; and would have felt, furthermore, that you could do more to guarantee your son's happiness, apart from his father, than you could in direct collaboration with him. I think the boy's welfare has been simply a "talking point," to camouflage (both from yourself and your husband) your clinging dependency upon his more self-sufficient personality.

During the six years you were striving so indefatigably to persuade him to take you back, you surely know all of his faults and their painful effects upon you. But, obviously, you also felt—in your distracted lonliness—that the personal emotional compensations implicit in the arrangement you hankered to return to would richly offset any penalties involved. Which suggests that your present attitude amounts, primarily, to weighing at paying the price you were then more than willing to pay, for the (shall we say?) privilege of sharing his existence.

In seeking to make a tolerable adjustment to this situation you have deliberately elected to occupy, it seems to me you would be wise to dismiss the idea of trying to "handle" your husband; and that you should, rather, think of how to "handle" yourself, so as to avoid provocations to quarrel, and so as to prevent your feelings from becoming poisonously infected with resentment and self pity, as a result of chance wounds and bruises inflicted by your husband's recurrently rude conduct and words. I think you might prevent the development of such anxiously depressed moods as that which besets you at present, by silently referring back,—in moments of conjugal stress,—to that time in your experience when your husband's society seemed ineffably important and desirable to you, on any terms.

If you would count the blessings of your present gain against the bleak bereavement of that desolate period, I think your spirits would immediately rally from any thoughtlessly dealt blow, and that you would recognize the incident as a matter of absurdly trivial import, rightly viewed. You might even attain the grace of feeling to heal the potential breach by generous utterances, on the spot.

For instance, when your husband childishly reminded you that he didn't ask you to return; that, indeed, he had been getting along very well without you—you might have replied, "Oh, George, what a mean thing to say! But it's true, of course. I did want to come back; and it was sweet of you to take me. Thank you very much, sir. And now, what on earth were we fussing about? I'm sorry if I riled you. What can I do to redeem myself?" There should be nothing abject about your attitude; but only cheerful allegiance to the essential fact of your needful love of him.

My advice to you is to study Winfred Rhoades' book, "The Self You Have to Live With," as a first step in the direction of invoking harmony in your domestic relations. When your own personality is serenely integrated, you will unconsciously exert a harmonizing influence on your husband's behavior. M. H.

Beauty Utensils Must Be Clean

Hollywood, Calif.—Keeping the instruments of beauty scrupulously clean is one of the important secrets of loveliness, according to Alexis Smith, whose skin hasn't a blemish and whose hair is always clean and shining.

After a comb or brush has been used she suggests swishing it through a bowl of warm water containing a little ammonia or borax. Powder puffs should either be discarded after two days' use or washed in sudsy warm water, half-dried by being pressed in a towel, fluffed up and set in the sun to dry. Lipstick brushes should be wiped off with cleansing tissue before and after using, while brow and lash brushes can be cleaned if held under the full force of the hot water faucet a minute or two.

Glitter for Teen-Agers

Not to be left out, the girl in her teens will have her glitter also this season. The junior date dress, above, is just right for tea-dancing and "don't dress" dining. Leather flowers are gilded to twinkle festively on the bodice. The Eastman rayon, mossy crepe provides an interesting background for the sparkle. And, incidentally, think of the conversation-piece value in not one, but a score of tiny eye-catchers!

Lack of Care Speeds Skin's Aging, Expert Says

"Usually, it's the lack of proper care, and not time that ages a skin," said Miss Vontella Bucholz, representative of a New York beauty firm, who is in town this week at a local store to give advice on the care of skin.

The appearance of your skin each day depends upon the care, you give it each night, she declares. If you don't cleanse, tone and lubricate it well, the skin soon loses the soft, youthful glow and becomes coarse and dingy looking, she asserts.

She enumerated the ABC's of a lovely, young skin as cleansing, toning and lubricating. "Toning," she said, "is essential to good circulation, and good circulation is necessary to a clear, unblemished skin."

"Chief defect of the average skin," explained Miss Bucholz," is excessive dryness. And the drier the skin, the easier and quicker it tends to crinkle and line. This is especially true in winter when the skin is constantly exposed to changeable, windy cold weather. Also, steam heated homes and offices further dry it, robbing it of necessary oils. And unless the natural oils are restored, the skin becomes drier and drier, more and more wrinkled."

A good lubricating cream will counteract the drying effect of wind and heat on skins. This week you can get a rich cream, an oily but greaseless emollient that lubricates the skin, for less than half price.

Calendar Crowded Despite Predictions

Remainder of 1941 May Be Capital's Liveliest Season in Many Years

By Hope Ridings Miller

Despite dire predictions that the social calendar would dwindle to nothing this year, parties continue to pile up. In fact, a glimpse at the date book for the remainder of 1941 makes me think this season is to be the liveliest we have had in a number of years. Come November, debutantes will begin to take over the local scene. Brides and brides-elect, we have always with us; and farewell fetes and parties for visitors are as much a part of the local picture as Congressional investigations and the Lincoln Memorial.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

In contrast to the stiff formality that characterized autumn and winter entertaining in other years, however, the social whirl this season is proceeding merrily along with a minimum of ceremony. For the first time in their careers, many diplomats are enjoying the luxury of giving one unofficial, off-the-record party after another, instead of the pompous functions that formerly characterized their seasonal round.

There was a time when foreign envoys gave orders to social secretaries that their dinner guest-lists be given to newspapers. Regularly, clippings were sent to the home foreign office and notations were carefully and proudly made if Cabinet members and Senators were among those present. Now, ambassadors and ministers of countries at war beg that there be no mention at all of their parties. Members of the German Embassy were the first ones to go entirely off-the-record with their dinner lists. "If people do dine with us, they don't want it known," Frau Thomsen told me a couple of years ago.

Today, plenty of embassies and legations are following suit. "The Finnish Minister never did like to give his dinner-guest lists . . . and he's certainly not going to give one now," said Rebecca Wellington, social secretary, yesterday when asked about the Minister's informal party last night.

Yet entertaining goes on just the same; and as I said before, there's every indication that this season is to be as gay as ever—if not more so.

Former Envoy, First-Rate Hunter

Back from a Canadian hunting trip, former United States Minister to South Africa Ralph Totten has been measuring every available inch of space in his apartment, trying to figure out just where to put a new bearskin rug and a handsome mounted moosehead.

His place already has lions, leopards, zebras and antelopes—just the skins of course—in every available nook. He hopes both will be here and ready for display by the middle of next month, when he plans to give a welcome-home party for himself. Meanwhile, he's unpacking his duck-hunting togs . . . getting ready for the season's opening on Monday.

TABLE TALK: The last few days I've heard enough Windsor stories to fill a book; but this one, coming across a dinner table the other evening, caps the climax. Seems a friend of mine has a friend who has taken into her home a British refugee of the same age as her 12-year-old daughter. And, as children will, the two got in a violent argument recently about the Duchess of Windsor.

"You just didn't want your King to marry Wally because she's an American," said the young American, as the debate grew heated.

"That wasn't it at all," the Britisher came back. "Wally was married once, and she didn't have any children. She was married twice, and she didn't have any children. And we just couldn't have a Queen of England who had infantile paralysis!"

Mme. Slavko Grouitch Visiting Here

In Washington for a brief visit is Mme. Grouitch, widow of the one-time Minister of Yugoslavia in the United States, and later Yugoslav Minister at London. American-born, Mme. Grouitch was an extremely popular legation chatelaine, and she still has an extensive circle of friends here. Not many months ago she escaped from Belgrade under bombfire, took refuge in Switzerland, and then came on to America, arriving early in the spring.

Mme. Grouitch came to Washington yesterday and is now the guest of Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, who will entertain several friends in her honor at a luncheon at the League of Republican Women today. A number of other parties are being planned for her.

CAPITAL CALENDAR: Percy Blair has invitations out for a dinner at Anderson House on Wednesday, November 12, in honor of Mrs. Richard McCreery. The latter, who lived in Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt's house a part of last year, has taken the John Campbell White house at 1701 Nineteenth Street for the season. That's the home in which the Myron Taylors lived last spring . . . Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Legare entertained at a 5-to-7 party yesterday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gifford, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Upshur Moorhead, who are here for several days en route to their winter home on Sunset Isle, Miami Beach.

Mrs. Claussen And Daughter Entertain at Tea

are these three young ladies who will exhibit their favorite pup at the Potomac Boxer Club's annual sanction match on Sunday afternoon. They are Miss Joan Dodd, Miss Peggy Lansdowne and Miss Betty Stewart-Richardson. The matches will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill on Belmont Road

Reynolds to Live At Friendship

"Senator and Mrs. Robert Rice Reynolds—Friendship." That line on cards inclosed in the wedding announcement of the former Evalyn Washington McLean and the North Carolina Senator answers a question many Capitalites have been asking recently.

Rumors had gone the rounds that the couple would make their home in the rambling Wisconsin Avenue estate of the bride's mother, Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, but nobody seemed to know for sure.

Senator and Mrs. Reynolds are honeymooning in Florida and will go from there to Cuba before returning about the middle of November. Meanwhile, Mrs. McLean is planning a dinner party, November 9.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mme. Wennerberg, wife of the Counselor of the Swedish Legation, is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warden, jr., at their home, Cottesmore in Haverford, Pa. Her husband has returned to Washington after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Warden over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Wiss, of South Orange, N. J., entertained at a dinner at the St. Regis in New York last night in honor of their daughter, Miss Joan Wiss, and her fiance, Karl William Corby, of Washington, who will be married tomorrow. Tuesday night the bride-elect's cousin, Miss Joan Wiss, entertained at a similar party in her honor at her home in Orange, N. J.

Mrs. John Ryan Devereux is receiving congratulations on the birth of a granddaughter to her daughter and son-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Raymond Crist. The child, who has been named Constance, was born Saturday in Philadelphia.

Polish Prince, Princess Feted By W. J. Carrs

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr entertained informally yesterday afternoon in honor of their house-guests, the Prince and Princess Sapieha of Poland and the latter's mother, Baroness Bourmiza. The visitors, who arrived in Washington early in the week are en route to Ormond, Fla., where they will spend the winter season.

The prince and princess are part time residents of the Capital, having spent last spring in a house in Chevy Chase. They have recently come from New York, where the princess, who is a recognized pianist, has been making records of Viennese and Hungarian waltzes. The princess, who is an American, was before her marriage, Miss Louise Prince, of Wilmington, Del. With her husband and mother, she spent the summer months in Westport, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Carr—he was a former United States Minister to Czecho-Slovakia—first knew their house guests when they were stationed in Europe. Several years ago, they spent a season on the Riviera together. Following the the confiscation of their property by the Germans, the prince and princess fled to America.

Miss Harris Hostess at Tea

Entertaining at a tea yesterday afternoon, Miss Aileen Harris had as honor guest Miss Catherine Hagerman, of Albuquerque, N. Mex., who is visiting here as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Workman.

Among the guests were Mrs. Workman, Senorita Cristina Michels, Senora de Dorado, Mrs. W. W. Everett, jr., and her houseguest, Miss Virginia Casper, here from Minneapolis; Miss Ramona Vincent, Mrs. U. B. Phillips, Miss Ruth Quinn, Miss Guy E. Crampton, Mrs. Oscar Provost, Mrs. James Boyd, Mrs. Martin H. Rittenhouse, jr., Miss Achsah Dorsey and Mrs. C. H. Ruth.

Johnson, Mrs. Walter Edwards, Mrs. Lowell Bradford, Miss Betty Ann Swaggert, Miss Patsy Kelsey, Miss Deborah Donahue, Miss Marjorie Wood, Miss Elizabeth Thompson, Mrs. Frank Heller, and several others.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross Fetes Daughter-in-Law at Tea

Gathering in a group of her friends and their "younger set" daughters Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint, entertained at an impromptu tea in her top-floor apartment at the Dresden yesterday "after 5." Guest of honor was her daughter-in-law, Mrs. William Bradford Ross, who was in Washington for the day on her way to join her husband at Fort Riley, Kans.

"This is the first 'dove' party I've ever given in Washington," said Mrs. Ross, but she was wrong. She overlooked the one masculine guest whose "oomph" attracted more feminine attention than a Hollywood star—one William Bradford Ross, jr., who yesterday was celebrating his 4-month birthday. Master Ross, whom the hostess traveled to the West Coast to see following his birth in Seattle, Wash., was swathed in a blue blanket and was the real stellar attraction of the party. His pretty blond mother, who topped her full black skirt with a lipstick-red jacket, had just come from a sojourn in Newport News, Va., where she stayed with her grandfather, George T. Hardy. Not a newcomer to Washington, the guest of honor is a graduate of King-Smith School. Lieut. Ross, who was formerly stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., after he was called up on reserve from his law practice in Wyoming, is attending officers' school at Fort Riley.

Yesterday the green-walled dining room was lighted only by candles from candelabra on tables about the room and in the four silver candlesticks on the table which surrounded the pink and white carnations in a low silver bowl. A tea urn at one end, a coffee urn at the other and plates of paper-thin sandwiches, small cakes, and sugar-covered nuts completed the festive look of the lace-covered table.

Mrs. Ross received her guests wherever she happened to be, wearing a street-length frock of biege crepe set off by a lace collar, a pearl necklace and matching earrings. Among those who dropped in were Mrs. Burk Sinclair, who said she was on her way to her farm in Calvert County, Md., and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Sinclair, who admitted her weakness for country auction sales; Mrs. William Stanley and her daughter, Mary Jane, whose marriage to Cary Euwer is scheduled for the first part of next year; Miss Eleanor Mattingly and her sister, Betty; Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, wife of the Senator from Wyoming, and her niece, Miss Agnes Doherty; Mrs. James Murray, Mrs. A. D. Bruce, and several dozen others.

Party to Watch Army, Notre Dame

The Undersecretary of War and Mrs. Robert Patterson will have several guests in their box at the Army-Notre Dame game on Saturday at Yankee Stadium, New York.

Among those in the party will be several Senators, including Senator Alva Adams, of Colorado; Senator Chan Gurney, of South Dakota; Senator Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire; Senator Warren Austin, of Vermont, and Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee.

Miss Griffin, Mr. Sterrett Soon to Wed

A round of young-set parties are being given in honor of Miss Patricia Henning Griffin and Frank G. Sterrett who will be married on Saturday in All Souls Memorial Church. The bride-elect is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Robert Melville Griffin. Mr. Sterrett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dent Sterrett.

Yesterday Miss Patricia Morris was hostess at a cocktail party in honor of the couple given at the Lindens, the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris on Kalorama Road. Tonight, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Sargent—the latter is sister of the prospective bridegroom who will serve as matron of honor—will entertain at a dinner for the bridal party at their home. Capt. and Mrs. Griffin will be hosts at a supper before the wedding rehearsal. On Tuesday night the couple were feted at a steak roast given by the ushers.

Miss Mimi Griffin will serve as maid of honor for her sister and bridesmaids will be Miss Alice Barry, Miss Louise Burke, Mrs. Dudley Brown and Miss Barbara Bradley. William Dent Sterrett, jr., will be best man for his brother and ushers will be Aldrich Dudley, jr., Elliott Johnstone Dent, Bowditch Hunter, Christopher S. Sargent, Richard Updyke Sherman, jr., Swagar Sherley and Clement Ellis Conger.

Vice President Of Peru Feted

The vice president of Peru, Rafael Larco Herrera, was honor guest at a luncheon given yesterday by the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander. Guests included members of the embassy staff and a few Peruvians in Washington.

Having been feted at several parties here, the vice president will continue his "unofficial" visit to the United States. He will leave by plane for Miami tomorrow.

With glamorous Ilka Chase, star of the radio, stage and fashion world, acting as commentator and Mrs. George C. Marshall, wife of the Army Chief of Staff, entertaining at tea following the event, the Fashion Show at Fort Myer, Va., next Tuesday will be something to write home about.

When President Roosevelt declared the limited emergency the women of the Army and Navy League spent all their reserve funds to renovate and enlarge the house. Since the club is now constantly filled to capacity and men are turned away every Saturday night, expenses have increased enormously and it has been found necessary to raise more money for operating costs. The men are charged a minimum rate for food and lodging, commensurate with their income. These prices cannot be raised nor the standard lowered, and financial aid is necessary.

The Women's National Democratic Club has given the canteen, at which 3000 meals were served last month; the Republican Women of the Senate gave the garden and the Women's Republican Club of this city recently donated $100. The U. S. O. has pledged $6000.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

BUSINESS AND pleasure aren't supposed to mix according to the proverb, but both are on the calendar for the annual meeting of the board of governors of the Garden Club of Virginia which began yesterday and continues through today. Luncheons and dinners took their turn with business meetings, after the ball was started rolling yesterday after registration when Mrs. Raymond McGrath and Mrs. Harry Pool were hostesses at a luncheon at Mrs. McGrath's Warrenton house.

In the afternoon there was a business meeting at the St. James parish house, and that evening Mrs. Frederick Haserick, president of the Warrenton Garden Club, Mrs. Richard Barrett and Mrs. David Batchelder entertained at a cocktail party at Loretta, Mrs. Haserick's home. A dinner party later was given by Mrs. Crosby Miller at her home, View Tree, followed by a talk of flower arrangements by Mrs. Frederick Stout, of Philadelphia, who is staying with Mrs. Alan Day at her home near Warrenton.

Mrs. George Sloane will give a luncheon at her home today following the business meeting at 10 o'clock. Nearly every home in the surrounding country is entertaining one or more of the 60 women attending the meeting as houseguests for the two days. Guests of Mrs. Haserick are Mrs. John Hayes, of Richmond, president of the Garden Club of Virginia; Mrs. W. W. Gibb, president of the Augusta Club, and Mrs. Herbert McK. Smith, of Staunton. Many other prominent persons also are here for the events.

"Carry Me Back . . . to Ole Virginia." For years Virginians have sung, hummed and whistled their State song, but many do not know who composed it nor have given it much thought, though they love the song dearly and burst into loud singing whenever it is started up. Until recently the composer, a colored man named James A. Bland, had received little recognition for this most famous of his many musical compositions. But some time ago the Lions Club of Virginia brought forward the suggestion that a memorial be erected to the writer of Virginia's State song, and the "Carry Me Back Memorial Association, Inc.," was chartered under the State law to make the suggestion a reality.

THE LIONS CLUB has inaugurated the campaign by starting the list with a substantial amount, and it is hoped that every citizen of Virginia with a dollar to spare will give to help build this memorial to the old colored man who wrote what loyal Virginians call, "the most beautiful of all State songs." Contributions, large or small, can be sent to the association at 322 National Bank of Commerce Building, Norfolk, Va.

Worth Clark, Mr. and Mrs. William Castle, Mrs. Anne Archbold, Miss Ellen La Motte, Dr. Linn Fennimore Cooper, Lothrop Stoddard and Frank Hanighen, the widely known magazine writer.

bandits now remains at large. He was the one who snatched the money bags while the New York man flourished the gun during the hold-up.

The second suspect was taken into custody by FBI agents on information unearthed by Washington detectives in the investigation that led to Sanders' arrest.

Federal agents refused either to affirm or deny the capture of the second bandit. The Washington Post, however, learned from a New York source that the man had been arrested.

He was held in New York for questioning last night and probably will be returned to Baltimore on a warrant as soon as Maryland authorities issue the order. He denied all knowledge of the September 25 bank hold-up.

The Post's informant said the suspect had approximately $1600 in his possession when apprehended.

Arraignment Today

Sanders will be arraigned today before Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a warrant charging him with violation of the Federal Bank Robbery Act. He probably will be returned to Baltimore after the hearing.

Of the money taken from the bank messengers, a sum totaling $52,616.95, which was the pay roll for the Washington Sanitary Commission, only $3800 has been recovered so far, according to the investigators.

The task of finding Sanders, according to detectives, was merely the task of trailing a heavy spender, a man who went through Dixieland tossing money around like the traditional drunken sailor. Some nights, they said, Sanders stayed at the best hotels; on other nights, he put in at roadside camps. But wherever he had been, he left behind him a Coal-Oil-Johnny reputation for spending.

When he was captured his car contained four pieces of new, expensive leather luggage, all filled with new clothing. With him were two women and another man who, according to police, "were just helping him spend his money." They also were decked out in newly acquired clothing.

It is still believed by investigators, however, that a large portion of the loot has been cached.

The man held in New York last night was identified from Department of Justice records as having served 14 years of a 20-year sentence in the Lewisburg (Pa.) Penitentiary starting in 1921 on a charge of robbing a mail messenger. In 1936 he was convicted of counterfeiting and served two years in jail. He is known under at least three aliases.

As the commissioner questioned him, he said he couldn't remember whether he cut any electrical wires or battery drain-off tubes on that particular date, but added: "I can recall several ships that I cut wires on."

ETZEL

A Department of Justice statement said:

The acts in question involved serious damage to the wiring and signaling devices on the bombers. Etzel has also confessed to the placing of foreign materials in the gasoline tanks of certain planes in an effort to make these planes a "death trap."

Asked whether he wanted counsel, Etzel said he didnt know anybody to whom he could turn except E. A. Schurman, chief of the plant protection force at the Glenn L. Martin plant, where Etzel has worked since August, 1939—the last two months as a plant shop foreman.

But it was Schurman who tracked down the alleged saboteur in a painstaking investigation with Federal Bureau of Investigation agents under Special Agent E. A. Soucy and with War Department representatives.

Soucy said the investigation began last July. Each act of sabotage, although "carefully concealed to avoid immediate detection," was spotted by the rigid inspection system at Martin's sprawling Middle River plant, Soucy declared.

The trail to Etzel, Soucy asserted, first was picked up in a check to determine identity of the one of the 28,000 employes who left a blue and red penciled cardboard lettered "Heil Hitler" in a B-26 bomber.

Correction

In The Washington Post of October 24, it was erroneously stated that eggs from the farm of Interior Secretary Ickes, near Olney, Md., are sold retail only at Magruder's Grocery on Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

Fairfax Oyster, president of the New Center Market, at Fifth and K Streets Northwest, said yesterday that eggs from the Ickes farm are sold in New Center Market by the Javins Poultry Co.

A spokesman for the Interior Department said yesterday that both the Secretary and Mrs. Ickes were out of town, and could not be reached to determine whether still other markets handle the eggs.

United States, I am in favor of replacing him with some one who can or will."

He made the assertion while reviewing the committee's investigation of the failure of the Federal Works Agency to award a Wayne, Mich., defense housing contract to the Currier Lumber Co., of Detroit, the low bidder.

'Logical Reasons'

Truman related that Hillman recommended against an award to the Currier company, employer of C. I. O. workmen, because he feared labor trouble from "irresponsible elements" of the American Federation of Labor.

"I can't condemn Mr. Hillman's position too strongly," Truman said.

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, of the committee, however, contended that Hillman had "acted in good faith" and had "very logical reasons to support and substantiate his attitude."

Still another member of the committee, Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, took the position that the issue in the Currier case was "whether the United States Government is going to surrender because somebody threatens it."

"If the American Federation of Labor prevails in this matter," he said, "the United States Government pays tribute out of its Treasury."

eral times has asked Congress to curtail nonessential spending unrelated to the defense program, told the committee he will submit a list of suggested cuts on his own behalf, it was learned.

Morgenthau is understood to have expressed the view that economies in nondefense Federal costs are essential to the Treasury's financing program and would encourage the market for defense bonds.

Byrd told reporters nonessential spending can only be reduced through a cooperative effort between the Administration and Congress, "supported by public opinion made tax conscious by the realization of heavy taxes now and greater taxes to come."

Points to Public Debt

In a statement, the Virginian pointed out that the public debt today is nearly 52 billion dollars, against a one billion dollar public debt when America entered the first war.

In the face of 60 billion dollars already appropriated for defense and lend-lease, Byrd said there have been no consequential cuts in purely domestic spending.

"The taxes imposed now upon the American people are the heaviest in our history, yet we will raise by taxation only about 50 cents for every dollar expended in the current fiscal year, and only about 35 cents of every dollar estimated to be expended in the next fiscal year, unless the present taxes are heavily increased," Byrd said in his statement.

D. C. Traffic Plan May Guide U. S.

Highway Program And Off-Street Parking Praised Before Senators

F. W. Lovejoy, of the Public Roads Administration, yesterday visualized Washington's highway improvement plan as becoming a "guiding station" for other cities as he testified on the off-street parking measure before a special Senate District subcommittee.

This same off-street or "fringe parking" plan will cost the District about one million dollars, said Director of Highways H. C. Whitehurst. He emphasized that it is essential to the ultimate success of the 35 million-dollar highway improvement plan.

Both the House-passed bill raising the District gasoline tax 2 cents and the off-street parking measure are being considered by the subcommittee under the chairmanship of Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican), of Ohio.

Results Are Cited

Through the parking bill the way was cleared for consideration of the total traffic problem here.

Speaking of the Whitehurst highway plan in which he has cooperated, Lovejoy said, "Washington should become a guiding station for the rest of the United States in traffic planning. I don't think there is merely experimenting here. Results are being achieved."

The Whitehurst plan he termed "the best possible approach to the problem."

Returning to the stand at the outset of yesterday's hearing, Whitehurst told the subcommittee that the most important section of the off-street parking bill is that creating a parking agency charged with administration of the parking lots on the fringe of the downtown area.

Personnel of Agency

The agency would include a representative of the Federal Works Agency, one from the Parks Service, one from the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, and four to be selected by the Commissioners as representing "a cross-section of the various interests in the District."

At the present rate of aid the Federal Government would contribute approximately five million dolars to the 35-million-dollar cost of putting the plan into operation, Whitehurst told the subcommittee.

Under questions from Senator Burton, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer said that his department requires an increase to about 40 employes from its present personnel of 6. He indorsed the fringe parking measure.

Superintendent of Police Edward J. Kelly, in commending the measure, said he looked forward to the day when all long-time parking on downtown streets could be eliminated.

Shuttle Bus Problem

Capt. Arthur E. Miller, chief of the traffic division of the Metropolitan Police Department, indorsed the measure, but pointed out that the operation of shuttle buses from the fringe parking areas to the downtown section may add to the traffic problem.

Commissioner J. Russell Young voiced the approval of the Commissioners of both the gasoline tax increase and the off-street parking proposal for the parts they play in the total Whitehurst plan.

The public hearings will continue at 9:30 a. m. today in room 301 of the Senate Office Building.

Jerry Kluttz,

editor of the Federal Diary, is on vacation. His column will be resumed on Tuesday, November 4.

Md. Resident Killed When Hit by Auto

Laborer, 60, Fatally Hurt; Motorist To Face Charge Of Manslaughter

Enoch Stewart, 60-year-old laborer, of Glen Dale, Md., was killed instantly last night when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the Lanham-Severn Road at Glenn Dale.

A charge of manslaughter was lodged against James W. Wise, 26, of Landover, Md., said by police to have been driving the car which struck Stewart. Wise was freed on bond pending a hearing.

Four Washingtonians were injured yesterday when their auto overturned as it was making a turn at Clifton Park Village, Old Bladensburg Road, near Four Corners, Md.

The injured are Lois Wills, 16, of 1215 Otis Place Northwest, fractured left arm and shoulder; Frank Cullen, 20, of 1712 Seventeenth Street Northwest, sprained right ankle; Hugh Brevard, 19, of 3224 Fourteenth Street Northwest, severe cuts on face and possible internal injuries, and Anna May Penn, 19, of 1219 Otis Place Northwest, cuts on head.

Three were taken to the Washington Sanitarium by the Silver Spring rescue squad. Miss Penn was taken to her home.

Glen Echo Woman Hurt

Mrs. Velma Jones, 37, of Glen Echo, Md., yesterday was injured when her automobile and a streetcar collided near Bannockburn Heights. Her 10-year-old son, Bobbie, whom she was taking to the Cabin John School, escaped injury. Mrs. Jones was taken to Georgetown Hospital.

V. W. Coble, 2104 Thirty-first Street Southeast, was operator of the streetcar, police said.

The injured woman's son, John, 17, was elected Mayor of Glen Echo Monday night. He heads a temporary government of nine other youthful officials who will strive to maintain "the peace and dignity" of the town until after Halloween.

Faces Jury Action

Rozier D. Pearson, Negro, 20, of 2020 Fifth Street Northwest, was held for the action of the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury which investigated the traffic death of Charles Salem, 60, of Johnstown, Pa.

The jury decided Pearson was responsible for Salem's death after it was testified the victim was struck while he was crossing Fourteenth Street Northwest at New York Avenue in the crosswalk and had the right of way over Pearson's truck.

The accident occurred Tuesday morning and Salem died at Emergency Hospital that afternoon. He was the District's seventy-sixth traffic victim this year.

Maj. Brown May Take Defense Job

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, who retires Saturday as superintendent of police, yesterday indicated he might accept a job in the national defense program.

Questioned after a brief call at the White House on a report that he might take a position in the national organization of boys' clubs, Brown said he had "nothing definite" to say at this time, and added, "Of course, the defense program comes first these days."

Presbyterians More Active in Welfare Work, Dr. Hall Says

A "rising tide" of interest in social welfare problems among Presbyterians was pictured here yesterday by the Rev. Cameron P. Hall, D. D., director of the department of social education and action of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education.

He spoke at the Washington Federation of Churches Building, 1749 N Street Northwest, in the afternoon, and at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, Eighteenth and N Streets Northwest, in the evening before the social education and action committee of the Washington City Presbytery.

Dr. Hall emphasized that the Presbyterians were becoming increasingly active in such phases of social welfare as work among selectees in and near camps; in promoting the causes of international relations and world peace, better race relations and other activities.

Dr. Hall was for five years chairman of the committee in Christian education of the Presbytery of New York, and first chairman of the committee on social education and action of the Presbyterian Synod of New York. From 1925 to 1935 he was pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church, New York City, where he came in daily contact with bad housing and other community problems.

Dr. Hall was introduced by Dr. William L. Darby, president of the Washington City Bible Society and chairman of the Washington City Presbytery's committee on social education and action. Among the guests at the sessions were Dr. James J. Coale, of Annapolis, chairman of the Presbyterian Synodical committee on social education and action of the District, Maryland, Delaware and northern Virginia, and the Rev. Robert Reeves, pastor of the Severna Park (Baltimore) Presbyterian Church and chairman of the Baltimore Presbytery's committee on social action and education.

Dr. Hall represents the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America (Northern).

Hearing Set Monday on Taxi Rates

Association's Clamor Brings Action; Quorum Expected On Commission

Increasing agitation for action on requests of Washington taxi drivers for increased zone rates yesterday prompted the Public Utilities Commission to set November 3 for public hearings in the District Building.

Announcement of the hearings, scheduled for 10 a. m., was made by Elmo Milligan, executive secretary of the PUC, although the commission still lacks a full membership.

The cab drivers, in a petition filed by the District of Columbia Taxicab Owners Association, called for a 10-cent increase in fares for trips confined to any one zone and a 20-cent charge for each zone entered on a point-to-point trip. This would eliminate the so-called "free zone" which now exists under the 20-40-60-80-cent rate.

The application for a boost in rates has been on file with the PUC since August. Action has been repeatedly postponed in the hope that the Senate would confirm the President's nomination of Gregory Hankin as a commission member. There was a strong indication in Milligan's announcement of the taxi hearing date that a quorum membership would be available by November 3.

The long delay in scheduling a hearing on the application resulted recently in a threatened strike among drivers in certain cab associations. This was quelled by Milligan's announcement. The D. C. Cab Owners Association represents about 10 groups.

There are two vacancies on the PUC—one caused by the death of Chairman Riley Elgen and the other by appointment of Richmond B. Keech as Corporation Counsel. Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz now is the lone member.

Mrs. Bancroft Dies At Home in Rockford

Rockford, Del., Oct. 29 (AP).—Mrs. Elizabeth Howard Bancroft, who won the French Reconnaisance Medal for aiding refugees and organizing relief for orphans after the World War, died tonight at her home here. She was born in Washington, D. C., the daughter of Maj. Gen. Oliver Otis Howard and Elizabeth Ann Waite Howard.

Defense Needs Block Boys Club Building

Because of defense needs, the construction of a new building for the Northeast Boys Club branch will be delayed, it was announced in the fall quarterly report of the board of directors of the Community Chest-supported club.

Frank J. Luchs, chairman of the committee, said construction of the building will be postponed because of demand of material and labor for national defense.

The building committee was requested to make further study of the situation with the view of making recommendations as to the earliest date when construction could be started.

Dr. C. Herbert Marshall, unit chairman of the Community Chest, announced that instruction of volunteers in the Capital unit forces will be held within the next two weeks. Volunteers from area No. 1 held the first of the meetings last night at Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A., under the leadership of Mrs. Alfreda K[illegible]. Volunteers in Area No. 3 will meet at 8 tonight at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A.; Area No. 2, next Monday night in the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A.; Area No. 5, next Tuesday night in Southeast House, and Area No. 4, next Wednesday night in Southeast House.

The slogan chosen for the Community Chest drive is, "For their tomorrow—Give today!" The goal is two million dollars.

Two Prisoners Walk Away From Workhouse

Whether it was the room, the food or the clientele that didn't satisfy them was left unexplained when two prisoners at the District Workhouse at Occoquan walked off yesterday without saying as much as "goodby."

Charles O. Pinkins, 36, serving 25 days for violation of liquor regulations, was committed Tuesday morning. He worked in the brick plant during the afternoon and at 5 p. m. decided to call it a day. He walked into the woods.

Alfred Lawson, 36, was sentenced to 270 days on August 16 for tampering with an auto. He was working on a construction job in the women's division. Without stopping for lunch at 1 p. m. he, too, walked off.

Guards at the workhouse, bloodhounds and Washington and Virginia police are on the lookout for the men.

Missionary Work Carried Forward

Despite withdrawal of missionaries from Japan, the work of world-wide Episcopal missions is not being curtailed, but spreading to other areas, Dr. Lewis B. Franklin said here last night.

Dr. Franklin, treasurer of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, spoke before clergy, vestrymen and chairmen of the annual every-member canvass of the Washington Diocese at Epiphany Church parish hall, 1317 G Street Northwest.

Dr. Franklin was presented by Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek parish, and chairman of the department of missions of the Washington Diocese.

Health Association Meets Tonight

Commemorating its fourth anniversary, Group Health Association will sponsor a public meeting at 8 p. m. today in the National Archives auditorium, Eighth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, Department of Agriculture authority on nutrition, will speak on the subject, "Eat To Live."

A birthday cake will be cut by two of the first babies delivered to GHA members, Darlene Jo Schmid, 4, of Arlington, Va., and Richard B. Thrift, 4, Silver Spring, Md.

Group Health Association now has a 14-doctor staff and a service list of 7500 individuals.

Hearings Open Today on D. C. FWA Fund Bill

The House District Fiscal Affairs subcommittee will open hearings at 10 a. m. today on a bill permitting the District government to receive up to six million dollars from the Federal Works Administration for defense construction here.

Representative John F. Hunter (Democrat), Ohio, will preside at the hearing in the House District Committee room.

The subcommittee also is scheduled to consider a proposed measure requiring taxi, bus and funeral car operators in the District to hold different types of licenses.

Bolles Sees Need Of 2 Defense Units

An adequate civilian defense program for the District will require the participation of 8 to 10 per cent of the city's population, Col. Lemuel L. Bolles, District civilian defense chief, told members of the Washington Safety Society at their monthly meeting last night.

Two complete organizations—one for daytime hours when people are at work, and one for night when the business districts are deserted—are needed, he said. Both organizations must be logical in character, to make it unnecessary for anyone to travel for more than five minutes to reach a post of duty.

Participants will get needed training in neighborhood groups of about 500 each, he said.

Abell Norris to Speak

Abell A. Norris, horticulturist, will give an illustrated lecture on shrubs with fall berries, at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School tonight. The talk will be under auspices of the Montgomery County adult education department.

Otologist Says:

City Noises May Cause Deafness

Commonplace noises — riveting, traffic and the like—may be gradually producing deafness in many unsuspecting persons, according to a Washington otologist.

Writing in the current issue of the Annals of the District Medical Society, Dr. Walter A. Wells cites the din raised by building construction, trucks, hucksters and even radio static as possible contributors to loss of hearing.

"There is nothing that better bespeaks the wisdom of Solomon," said Dr. Wells, "than the precaution he took for the noiseless construction of his famous temple. He directed that all the work of cutting and chiseling of the stone should be done at a distance away, so that, as it is written, 'no sound of hammer or ax or any tool was heard in the house while it was building.'

"Would that we had a Solomon to protect our people from the ruthless builders in our great cities. He would save many from ruined ears and shattered nerves."

Reviewing other causes of deafness, the specialist included:

Heredity — Important principally in otosclerosis, one expert having estimated that this ear disease, which may be passed from parents to offspring, constitutes about one-third of all cases of chronic progressive type encountered in adults.

Environment—A great proportion of deafness cases is found among needy children.

Climate—Cold and dampness are aggravating factors.

Age—Acute middle-ear inflammation is common among young children, though often overlooked. Otosclerosis strikes between the ages of 18 and 20. Nerve deafness is a common affliction of the aged.

General health—Vitamins appear to be valueless in benefiting a hearing organ. Diabetes, arteriosclerosis, tuberculosis and syphilis may damage the auditory apparatus. So may infections of teeth, tonsils, kidneys and gall bladder.

Occupations—Those who work in inclement weather or amid dust, fumes or intense noises are particularly vulnerable to deafness.

943 New Names Added to Y.M.C.A. Membership

A total of 943 new members had been enrolled up to last night in the Central Young Men's Christian Association annual membership campaign, it was reported at 1736 G Street Northwest. Six days remain for the campaign goal of 1350 new members to be reached.

Of the new members signed up by last night, 211 had been enrolled since Friday. The George E. Harris division, with 72 new members, led divisions in number enrolled in the past five days. The team led by Lee Barbash, with 41, led the teams, while Barbash enrolled 39 new members to lead individual workers.

The next report meeting is to be held at 6 p.m. tomorrow in the Y. M. C. A. building.

Mission Hears Dr. Paul Roth

"Christian life is not tame or dumb but is the most exciting thing in the world," Dr. Paul H. Roth said last night at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle.

Dr. Roth, president of Northwestern Seminary at Minneapolis, Minn., addressed the fourth day's sessions of the week-long preaching mission—feature of the local celebration of Protestant Reformation Week.

The speaker, who was presented by Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, Luther Place pastor, earlier in the evening conducted a Bible study class in connection with the mission. Dr. Roth will speak tonight and tomorrow at 8 o'clock.

Compromise On Cafeteria Pay Rejected

Representatives of United Cafeteria Employes (C. I. O.) Local 471 last night rejected proposed wage increases for 1200 employes working in Government building cafeterias.

The increases were recommended by Commissioner L. F. Rye, of the United States Conciliation Service and accepted by the Welfare and Recreation Association, operators of the cafeterias, with the warning that increased food prices were in prospect. Most likely increase appeared to be 5 cents on the popular 25 cent meal with other increases in proportion, association officials said.

Negotiations will be resumed tonight in an effort to reach a settlement before a Saturday morning strike deadline set by Jack Mink, business agent of the union.

Rye's settlement provided for minimum wage increases ranging from 2½ to 10 cents an hour, but rejected union requests for a dues check-off, arbitration of dismissals and reduced laundry charges for uniforms.

28th, 29th and 44th To Release 19,000 Men by Christmas

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 29 (AP).—Second Army Corps headquarters disclosed today that some 19,000 men in the Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth and Forty-fourth Divisions comprising the corps who are 28 years or over will be released from military service to reach their homes for Christmas.

"We haven't received our quota yet but expect it to be sufficient so that practically all over 28 will be released by Christmas," said Maj. Robert O'Donnell, assistant adjutant general of the corps, who has just returned from Southern maneuvers to prepare the way for release of the men.

"We will release them in order of the length of Federal service. They will start moving out as soon as the necessary administrative details are carried out. We will try to get them home by Christmas."

The Twenty-eighth formerly was the Pennsylvania National Guard. The Twenty-ninth includes troops from Maryland and the District of Columbia, while the Forty-fourth members come from New Jersey and New York.

Kidnap Suspects' Trial Postponed to Dec. 8

The trial of Albert M. Farmer and Francis J. Mulvey, both 23, on charges of kidnapping and robbing a Washington waitress on September 13, 1941, was postponed in District Court yesterday until December 8.

The defendants were acquitted last May of raping the waitress, by a District Court jury which deliberated on the verdict for 17 hours and 44 minutes.

Preceding the trial, Justice Morris will listen to arguments on whether the Government may ask the death penalty, and whether the defendants' acquittal may be used as evidence in the case. The arguments will begin on Friday, November 7.

Rotarians Hear Naval Officer

America must accept its share of responsibility for world leadership now and in the future, Lieut. Comdr. Leslie P. Jacobs, Navy public relations officer, told members of the Washington Rotary Club at their luncheon in the Willard yesterday.

Commander Jacobs declared that "isolationism is the most harmful development that has ever come into American thinking. Certainly within the last 25 years." He said that while this country has every reason to be optimistic about the future, "it is equally true that we must examine our own responsibility to the future," and our "bill of duties toward democracy."

In living up to this responsibility, Commander Jacobs said that the Navy necessarily will continue to be the "symbol of America's world leadership."

Keep Navy Big

"Let us think of the American Navy as a friendly, but very necessary, watchdog of the future, and let us make and keep it a big one," he urged.

As for the threat of Hitlerism, Commander Jacobs said that every earlier dictatorship in world history had eventually fallen for one or more of these reasons:

It set up a rigid religious regulation.

It established severe regimentation of the people.

It operated by one-man rule.

It was based primarily on use of force.

Sees "Nothing to Fear"

All four of these, said Commander Jacobs, are present in the present German regime, and working toward its collapse, so that "we have nothing to fear from that point of view."

Among those who heard Commander Jacobs were Admiral J. O. Richardson, former commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, Commander A. Chester Flather, naval liaison officer for Selective Service; Capt. Vance Chapline, director of Naval Reserves; Lieut. O. J. Gullickson, director of Naval Reserves in the District; George Marvin, former editor of World's Work, now on duty at the Navy Department, and Ensign Thad Brown, jr., of the Navy Public Relations Bureau.

Rudolph Berger, Metro Goldwyn Mayer distributor in the District and nearby States, was introduced as a new member of the Washington Rotary by Carter Barron, Washington representative of Loew's Theaters.

Barron also presented a photo portrait of Myrna Loy, the actress, to George A. Simonds, head of the George A. Simonds and Co., bookbinding firm. The picture, about a yard square, will be placed in his office, Simonds said.

Chairman of the luncheon meeting was A. P. Reeves, Washington Rotary president.

Howard Alters Tenure Rules For Teachers

The board of trustees of Howard University yesterday ruled that "henceforth any teacher who has served the university for a period exceeding five years shall enjoy indefinite tenure," Dr. James M. Nabrit, university secretary, reported.

Further announcements included the appointment of Dr. Charles Richard Drew as head of the department of surgery, and the promotion of Dr. James Richard Laurey to associate professor of thoracic surgery.

A leave of absence was granted Prof. George M. Johnson of the school of law, who has been appointed executive secretary to the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practices.

Resolutions were adopted expressing regret at the death of Dr. Ernest E. Just and commending officials for the excellent administration of the university during the past year.

Hankin Case Will Be Studied Tomorrow

The nomination of George Hankin, Federal Power Commission attorney, to the District Public Utilities Commission, will be considered at a special meeting of the Senate District Committee tomorrow at 11 a. m., Chairman Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, announced yesterday.

The District Committee will act on the recommendation of a special subcommittee, headed by Senator Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, which three weeks ago unanimously favored Hankin's appointment.

First nominated for the post last March by President Roosevelt, Hankin has since awaited Senate confirmation while rumors persisted that he was affiliated with the Communist Party. At the subcommittee hearing he cleared himself of the charge.

Numerous matters are crowding the docket of the PUC which has been unable to act on them due to the fact that the only member of the 3-man commission at present is Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz.

The announcement of tomorrow's meeting was the first District business taken up by Senator McCarran yesterday on his return from the West, where he has been conducting public grazing hearings.

Fire Department Drillmaster Named Chief Air Raid Warden

Battalion Chief Clement Murphy, drillmaster of the District Fire Department, late yesterday was named by the Commissioners to serve as temporary chief air raid warden for the city.

MURPHY

His appointment was announced by Commissioner John Russell Young, civilian defense coordinator. The "temporary" status was ordered pending further consideration of the position at a special meeting of deputy wardens and permanent defense committee chairmen tonight.

The conference has been called for 7 p. m. in the board room of the District Building. There have been discussions on the naming of a civilian to the chief warden post, but the Commissioners said they felt an assignment should be made before the special session.

Deputy wardens and defense committee chairmen named Saturday at a series of city-wide community mass meetings will receive instructions tonight from Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of the District Defense Council and other civilian protection officials.

Chief Murphy has been a member of the Fire Department 23 years. He recently completed a special course in defense work at the Edgewood Arsenal and it appeared likely he will retain the chief warden job permanently.

Col. Bolles last night urged all deputy wardens and defense committee chairmen to attend tonight's meeting and if forced to be absent to name an alternate.

Warren Youngs Dies on Search For Boundary

Warren D. Youngs, 73, of 5855 Potomac Avenue Northwest, retired from his architectural job with the Treasury Department three years ago and took up the hobby of determining the exact location of all of the District boundary markers. He took long, frequent walks, visiting each marker.

Sunday he went on a long walk to visit the only two markers he had not yet seen. When he failed to return, friends formed a searching party, and the following day his body was found near one of the markers on Bladensburg Road Northeast. He had died of a heart attack.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Lee funeral home, Fourth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast, at 2 p. m. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

THE WASHINGTON POST

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It has been four weeks since George Washington University's football team scored a touchdown or a point of any description. The only time the Colonials have crossed a goal line was when they were pushed across or were en route on and off the field. Chums, the heat is on Coach Bill Reinhart.

POVICH

Even over at the G. W. U. athletic office where they try to be very guarded in their statements, the admission is made that the alumni are raising a horrible howl. And the alumni howl is never to be confused with the love bird calling to its mate. When a coach's ears pick up the first distant notes of the yelping, he knows he's in trouble or he isn't a half-smart football coach.

Keynote of the squawking alumni is that "Reinhart is a nice fellow, but—." Nothing against the guy personally, of course, but it's high time George Washington had a football coach. There have been calls and letters to the president's office, the university trustees and the athletic department. A spokesman at the school yesterday said that "the students, of course, aren't very happy about the football situation, but it's he alumni who are really raising—shall we say—hell."

And Clemson Coming Up

That little affair down at Norfolk last week against William and Mary wherein the Colonials took a 48-0 pasting didn't improve the disposition of the alumni, of course, coming as it did on the heels of the 28-0 smearing by Georgetown. Looking at the scoreboard these past four weeks, G. W. fans have seen nothing except circles before their eyes, unless their vision strays to the opposition's score. They might forgive G. W. for getting beat, but that weekly demonstration of punchlessness has irked the heck out of 'em. And this week, of course, it's Clemson, with the prospect of another shellacking for the Colonials.

The Hatchet, the school publication, took the unkindest swipe of all at Reinhart this week when, through its sports editor's column, it was observed that "The Colonials feel that they have no one to whom to turn while they are struggling in the midst of their worst season in years . . . practically no one of the Colonial squad has any faith in Coach Reinhart." He salves that haymaker by adding, ". . . although Bill knows football and is good in teaching the fundamentals."

Earlier in the year the charge was made against Reinhart that he was ultra-conservative in his football teaching and that the Colonials were a colorless team because of Reinhart's lack of razzle-dazzle effects. That accusation has a familiar ring in G. W. coaching circles.

They used to say the same thing about Retired Head Coach Jim Pixlee who was supposed to be power-crazy, and when Reinhart was engaged as backfield coach by Pixlee it was a concession to the squawkers. With Reinhart's coming, G. W. teams began to use the spread play and emphasize the reverses and when Pixlee retired Reinhart stepped into the job to the applause of G. W. folks who visioned new vistas for the Colonials in the realm of razzle-dazzle football.

Straight Football Prescribed

Reinhart did come up with a beaut of a ball club in 1936, which just did miss beating Rice, a team that had licked G. W. by 40-0 the year before. That G. W. team did beat Arkansas, which ended up as the Southwest Conference champion, and it tied Mississippi. Joey Kaufman was chuckling clever passes, little Vic Sampson was sprinting around the ends and Jay Turner was lugging the ball on reverses. The G. W. attack had dash and effect and under Reinhart, the Colonials had seemingly arrived in their place in the football sun.

But that was 1936, when Reinhart had good football players. With his present crop of slow-footed talent, he knows it is stupid to equip them with reverses and precision plays they can't execute. After trying to save his face by teaching straight football to the kind of a squad that can't play anything else, in the hope at least of holding the score down, Reinhart last week made a concession to the squawkers. At Norfolk, he let his team try to open up. Result: Their worst beating of the year, 48-0, by William and Mary.

Because alumni and athletic boards rarely think of the bright idea of firing the football team and keeping the coach, Reinhart may lose out at G. W. Already there is talk of gently shoving him upstairs into the athletic director's job which will be open at the end of the season, and hints that Assistant Coach Johnny Baker will take over in Reinhart's place.

But the loudest squawks are demanding a "name" coach for George Washington; a national football figure who can work a miracle for the Colonials. With the talent G. W. has been getting, Reinhart's successor would have to work a miracle to produce a winning football team. The alumni were supposed to ferret out good football talent for George Washington these last few years, but look what their idea of talent has been achieving. This reads as if the G. W. alumni are "nice guys, but."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Oct. 29.—The most beloved horse in our turf history, Exterminator, is stamping a little restlessly in a special stall at romantic old Pimlico while you read this piece. They have brought him up from Court Manor, Va., where he has lived, off and on, since 1926.

CONSIDINE

Old Bones, as the world learned to call him, is restless today because he smells racing in the air. He hears the hustle and bustle of youngsters going to the races. The dusty memories of his own long racing career stir inside his thick 26-year-old coat. He is probably glad that his old friend Peanuts, a shaggy Shetland who has been his companion for years, was brought along. Just as Peanuts, who is an old man too, as horses go, is comforted by the presence in the stall of his wise old friend, Old Bones. Their friendship is such that Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer fears the death of one, of a broken heart, when the other dies.

Tomorrow afternoon Exterminator will answer his first bugle since he pulled up lame, at a Canadian track, in the hundredth race of his noble career. That was back in 1924. He was old even then. Tomorrow he will be groomed and his mane will be braided by faithful old Mike Terry, and he'll lead the field to the starting point in the 2-mile-up-yard handicap which bears his name.

—But Knapp Won't Ride Today

It was hoped that Willie Knapp, who rode Exterminator to that still astonishing upset victory in the 1918 Kentucky Derby, would be able to come to Baltimore to sit astride the old guy on his way to the post. It isn't possible, and it's just as well. Knapp has grown heavy, and Old Bones, as fine as he looks today, is the equivalent of 100 years old—measured in human years.

One of the writers said that Knapp wouldn't ride because Old Bones might get excited and act up—with a man on his back. If he did, we know a lot of old horsemen who would swear that old horse they were looking at, acting up, was a ringer. For Old Bones was the most placid post-actor of them all. He'd stand there still as a statue, turning now and then to look disdainfully at his foaming, rearing rivals. Some starters swore that he kept one eye on them, the starters. The late great Mars Cassidy, the famed starter, called Exterminator "the finest assistant starter I ever had."

The stunning thing about the stories of Exterminator are that they sound like legends; but happened.

Cassidy once reported that Exterminator, standing in No. 2 position awaiting the start of a race that was being delayed by an hysterical horse on the rail, finally gave out of his historic patience, leaned heavily on the frantic horse next to him, pinned him against the rail until Cassidy cried, "Now come on with them!" and then let him go.

Another time a fearful post actor flung himself around so much that he fell . . . and in some twisting way squirmed under Exterminator's belly. Old Bones stood there, looking half asleep. But when the barrier lifted, Exterminator came out of there first.

Exterminator should be called "It," I suppose, for he is a gelding. But that would be like calling Abe Lincoln "It." That's no pronoun for a horse who packed fearful weight and beat the best sprinters in the land as well as the best routers. In 1922, when he won $71,075 of the $252,998 he won during his career, he started 17 times, won ten times and only three times did he pack less than 132 pounds. During his career he won the 2 1-4-mile Pimlico Cup three times and the Saratoga Cup four times.

Man O' War Ducked the Issue

His comparative times weren't as good as Man o' War's but the fact remains that Sam Riddle twice declined opportunities to run Big Red against Old Bones: in one of the Saratoga Cups and a proposed $50,000 match race. Maybe Man o' War would have won—but Uncle Henry McDaniels, his early trainer, always swore Exterminator would have figured out someway to beat him.

Old Bones could move when it counted. I saw the chart on his last race, not long ago, and in its blunt, unromantic language he wrote a wonderful epitaph to his career. It said "In the stretch Exterminator moved from sixth to fourth, then went lame."

Old Bones is so popular with visitors—some of whom have been sending him apples on his birthdays for 20 years and more—that it has given Peanuts an inferiority complex. But whenever he sees Peanuts sulking in a corner, then there's a crowd around him, that Old Bones actually will go over to him, push him over to the crowd, and bow at the little fellow. He and Peanuts have staged thousands of races together, during the long years of their pastoral retirement. Old Bones lets the pony get a lead, then overtakes him and looks back triumphantly.

Werner Out Of Lineup With Cut Leg

Coach Swede Larson Shifts Backfields Of First 2 Teams; Woods May Move Up

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 29.—Unconquered Navy, preparing for an all-out pigskin fight with Pennsylvania's unbeaten powerhouse Saturday, suffered a serious blow today which may force last-minute changes in its two-team system.

Fullback Sherry Werner, of Reading, Pa., the Middies' best punter and keyman on the second eleven, suffered a long cut on his leg which is almost certain to keep him out of Saturday's battle-royal. The wound required ten stitches.

The injury, which occurred during a line-opening drill, leaves the second outfit without a punter. Barnacle Bill Busik regular left halfback, does the booting for the first team.

Swede Larson, Middie coach, is not counting on Werner's services Saturday. He's considering making changes in the backfields of the first two elevens to maintain their balance. It has been his practice to substitute an entire new team rather than a few players at a time.

Larson said he could move Phil Hurt up to the second eleven but this would still leave the team without a kicker. So he may advance Bob Woods, third-string halfback, to the first eleven and move Sammy Boothe, right halfback, to the second group.

As an alternate plan, he said he could put Wes Gebert in Howie Clark's left halfback post on the second eleven and give Clark another backfield assignment with the same unit.

Larson said he'd probably start Clyde Siegfried, of Altoona, Pa., 200-pound sophomore blocking back, at quarterback on the first team in place of Johnny Harrell, a 202-pounder.

Pittsburgh Team Better Than Actual Record Shows; Club Reaching Peak Under Donelli

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Pittsburgh Steelers will bring the poorest won and lost record in the National Pro League to Washington Sunday, but Coach Buff Donelli's cellar club is capable of playing much better football than its record implies.

Redskin Coach Ray Flaherty is a firm believer in the capabilities of the Steelers, and if you think he would be dissatisfied with another of those three or four point victories Sunday—well, you're mistaken.

Three Chicago football experts and the Bear coaching staff went to great lengths in postgame comments on last Sunday's Bear-Steeler battle, praising the blocking and tackling of the 34-7 victims of the league champions.

The Steelers are taking themselves seriously considering their league position, and reports from Pittsburgh have the team set on winning three of its remaining five league games—one of them Sunday.

Aim to Square Accounts

The Steelers were apparently not too impressed with the Redskins in he 24-20 victory of the Washingtonians two weeks ago. They want first to square accounts with the 'Skins, win at least one of two remaining games with the Dodgers and get revenge on the Eagles.

Bert Bell, who started the season as the Pittsburgh coach, stuck around while they lost by field-goal margins to the Rams and Eagles, the same margin by which the Redskins beat both teams.

Donelli then resigned as head coach of unbeaten Duquesne and took over just in time to watch the Steelers take their worst licking of the season, 37-10, at the hands of the Giants. Big Buff according to reports, flew off the handle in the dressing room after the game and told the entire squad to play 60-minute football or get out.

Their next game was with Washington and when the 'Skins loafed a little with a 24-7 lead, the Steelers

Exterminator Draws Attention in Post Parade of 2-Mile Handicap at Pimlico

By a Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., Oct. 29.—The famed Pimlico Special, the race that brought Sea Biscuit and War Admiral together in 1938, and the second running of the Exterminator Handicap share interest tomorrow as the Maryland Jockey Club opens its 13-day meeting, dotted with rich and historic turf fixtures. The 1941 Special, once having all the earmarks of another important stop of the parade of fall classics, has dwindled until tomorrow's edition will be little more than an exhibition.

Only two horses, Louis Tufano's Market Wise and the Woodvale Farm's Haltal, are survivors of the list of eligibles and they will meet for the winner-take-all $10,000 of added money without the "tote" operating on the race.

In contrast to the Special, the Exterminator will be a top-flight affair with Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put, winner last year, pitted against five other distance stars in a battle of 2 miles and 70 yards.

Eliminate Betting

With Market Wise a prohibitive favorite, the Maryland Racing Commission granted the jockey club's request to eliminate betting on the two-horse race and allow an additional event with wagering. Permission was granted yesterday, by unanimous vote, the commission feeling that since the jockey club was going through with its promise to stage the race and give the $10,000 prize to the winner it was only fair that it should have an added betting race.

With a program of nine races, the first event is scheduled to start at 1 p. m., 15 minutes earlier than on other days of the meeting. The daily double will be conducted on the first and second races and the twin wager windows will close at 12:45 p. m.

Despite the fact that the Special lacks its lure of other years, the track expects a crowd if 15,000. Races at long distances have proven popular in Maryland and the Exterminator should be a drawing card. Then again there are those who will be rooting for Haltal to

Unbeaten Longhorns, Aggies Lead Statistics

Texas A. & M. Holds Foes to 87 Yards; Detroit Passers Average 200 Yards Per Game

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Oct. 29.—The Texas Longhorns and the Texas Aggies, both undefeated, looked as large on the Nation's gridiron yardstick today as their home State does on the map.

Dana X. Bible's Longhorns lead the country's collegiate football teams in total offensive-gains rushing and passing—while the Texas Aggies returned to a role which distinguished them for the past couple of years—leadership in total defense.

The American Football Statistical Bureau's weekly ratings showed undefeated but twice tied Utah still first in total offense, technically, but one of the Utah games still was unreported. The Utes are credited with 402 yards per game from rushing and passing, but for those teams with complete records, the Texans stand first with 381.8 yards for their five games.

Irish Defense Strong

Texas A. & M. has held the foe to 87 yards per game via rushes and passes. Notre Dame shows the best rushing defense, allowing 35.8 yards per game, with the Texas Aggies second at 41.8.

Detroit, upset by Arkansas last week, is the "passingest" team, averaging 200.6 yards per game in the air.

Purdue's pass defense, limiting enemy aerial gains to 18.8 yards per game, heads that classification. Texas Mines, paced by Owen Price, is the top punting club with a 42.39 yard per punt average.

Crane, Greenleaf Are Deadlocked For Billiard Title

Philadelphia, Oct. 29 (AP).—Irving Crane, of Livonia, N. Y.; Ralph Greenleaf, of Chicago, and Defending Champion Willie Mosconi, of Philadelphia, were deadlocked tonight for first place in the world's pocket billiards championship tournament, each with five victories and one defeat.

Crane beat Harold Baker, of Los Angeles, 125 to 2 in 15 innings, aided by a high run of 77 in the eighth and a third consecutive scratch by Baker which cost the latter a penalty of 16 points.

George Kelly, Philadelphia champion, scored his fourth victory against four losses in beating Don Tozer, Decatur, Ill., 125 to 101 in 36 innings, the tournament's longest match. Tozer clicked for 41 in the second inning, while Kelly had high runs of 25 and 17 unfinished.

4 Ruled Off Turf for Life In Ringer Case

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 29.—The Illinois Racing Board today ordered three men and a woman ruled off the turf for life in connection with its investigation of a race won at Hawthorne Park September 24 by a horse listed as Rapid Bone, but later identified as another horse named Hasty Notion.

Barred from the turf were: R. V. C. Van Cleve, listed by the board as owner-trainer of Rapid Bone; William E. Rafferty, reputed owner of Hasty Notion; Pete Walls, not identified; and Mrs. George Ehringer, an aunt of Rafferty's.

In addition, the board ordered all evidence in the case turned over to the United States Attorney General, the Illinois Attorney General, and Cook County's State's Attorney, Thomas Courtney, for possible grand jury investigation.

Hasty Notion, or Rapid Bone, won a race at Hawthorne on September 24 at odds of 8 to 1.

Sam Chapman, Star Outfielder Of Macks, to Join U. S. Navy

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.—Connie Mack's life these days just seems to be one disappointment after another—and he wants so much to grab another pennant with the Athletics before throwing in the sponge.

It was bad enough that his A's folded in the 1941 campaign and ended up in the cellar. Now it looks like the Navy's going to take the mainspring of his building plans for next year.

From San Francisco today came word that star Outfielder Sam Chapman had been recommended by Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney for appointment as a physical education instructor. With an A-1 draft classification, Sam is expected to be in training soon.

"Of course, it's going to affect us if we lose him," lamented Connie. "He's a pretty good man and one of the real ones I was depending on to build a team around next season.

Now the grand old character of baseball, approaching his seventy-ninth birthday and fifty-eighth season in the national pastime, is ready to put every member of his 1941 outfit on the block if he can get the men he wants. He'll hold open house for owners with trading ideas at the Florida minor league meet in December.

Connie's first desire still is pitchers but he's also interested in plugging up the left side of his infield. Mainly though, the pilot of the once-great Macks wants spirited players.

"I don't want any more of those fellows who hit only for the record books," he declared. "I want players who win games. Look at Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Dykes. They've always been spirited players. I think Mickey could win pennants with any kind of good team just because he doesn't know when he's licked."

He'd come to think a great deal of Chapman even though the 23-year-old former University of California grid star didn't do so well his first two years. Connie handed Sam an $8500 bonus for signing in 1938 prior to graduation and all but gave up on the husky outfielder before coaching of Al Simmons finally brought Chapman into his stride.

Last season Sam was freely acclaimed as the most improved ball hawk in the majors.

Amerks Make Hockey Debut Against Indianapolis Tonight

Pro Club Will Bow At Uline's

Owner Urges Players To 'Prove Pro Game Is Better to Watch Than Amateur'

By Jack Munhall

Exhorted by Owner Mike Uline personally to get out there and prove to the fans that professional ice hockey is superior to the amateur brand, the Washington Amerks will make their American League debut tonight at 8:30 at Uline Arena. Opposing their efforts to introduce pro hockey to this city with a victory will be the Indianapolis Capitols, starting their third season in the league.

District Commissioner Guy Mason is scheduled to throw out the first puck and to head the list of sports and civic dignitaries among an expected crowd of more than 5000. The league will be represented by President Maurice Podoloff, of new Haven, Conn., and Arthur Wirtz, owner of the Indianapolis club. In Commissioner Mason's box will be Merchant Mahoney, councilor of the Canadian Embassy.

The green and gold clad Amerks, under the coaching of Ching Johnson, the famous, old rough-and-ready defenseman of the New York Rangers, will display a veteran team tonight. Composed exclusively of Canadains, they boast a starting lineup of all former National League players.

Uline Gives Luncheon

The team will go into the game spurred on by Owner Uline's plea to prove to local fans that pro hockey is better to watch than the amateur game, as played by the Washington Eagles of the Eastern Amateur League, who introduced hockey here two years ago.

Speaking yesterday at a luncheon designed to acquaint the Washington players with the press, Owner Uline told his hirelings that he had confidence in their ability to win the flag in their first season.

"I'm confident you have the ability to get on top," he said, "and more than that I'm sure you will get out there and prove to the fans that pro hockey is better to watch than amateur hockey."

Although the Amerks have been in town only since Monday the fans already have heard tall tales of their talent, especially that of Wingman Louis Trudel and George Mantha and Defenseman Paul Shields. All three, as well as Center Polly Drouin and Defenseman Alex Singbush formerly played with Les Canadiens, while Goalie Paul Bibeault came from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

Jennings Holds Record

Mantha, Trudel and Shields are the three boys for whom Coach "Red" Dutton of the New York Americans is said to be willing to part with his right-hand man after charging that they were illegally waived out of the National Pro League.

Star of the Indianapolis outfit is Right Wing Bill Jennings who holds the world's record for fast scoring, three goals in 57 seconds. The Capitols, despite losing some of their best players to the Detriot Red Wings with whom they have a working agreement, are said to have a capable team. Among their better players are Ken Kilrea at center and Adam Brown, who teams with Jennings on the wings. Others who will see action include Wingmen Carveth, Roy Sawyer, Jim Jamison, Jud McAtee and Jack Keating. Centers Les Douglas and Norm Moates and Defensemen Jackson, Jerry Brown, Rehling and Jones.

Though to many of our fans the names of most of the Washington and Indianapolis players may be unfamiliar, certainly few of them can't recall the Washington coach, Ching Johnson, who starred for years with the Rangers. Trying to outguess and outsmart Johnson from the Indianapolis coaching bench will be another former big league star, Herbert A. Lewis.

The Washington Amerks victory song will be rendered sometime during the program by the Pepco Glee Club and dedicated to Owner Uline and Coach Johnson. The composers, Bill Strickland and Jerry Bright, will be on hand, and Strickland will lead a 14-piece orchestra to entertain between periods.

Figure Skating Called Most Exacting of Three, Also Most Expensive

(The Post herewith presents the first of a series of articles on ice skating by Norval Baptie, once the "fastest human on skates" and still, at 50-odd years, one of the world's best figure skaters. Credited with bringing Sonja Henie into this country and staging her first two shows, Baptie has been connected with ice skating for almost a half-century. For the past three years he has been instructor at the Chevy Chase Ice Palace here, and occasionally appears in ice shows as a featured figure skating star.)

Skating is one sport which can be enjoyed by young and old alike. Grandfathers can vie with grandsons. There are certain fundamentals which the skilled skater of any age must observe, but there is no great mystery about them. The degree of skating skill attained will depend solely upon the amount of practice.

Skates must be selected before one starts, depending, of course, on the skater and the particular branch of skating he or she is interested in. There are three major types of skates—speed, hockey and figure—and the follower of each should have the proper equipment. The requirements of each type are different because of the conditions which govern the style of skating.

The youthful beginner naturally turns to speed skating as the style to quicken his pulse. He should start out with a good pair of racing skates and the shoes to match them. Racing skates have a long, slender blade which has little curve in the surface which cuts the ice. There is more of the actual blade on the ice than in other types of skates. The racing blade is narrow as well as long, and is suited for those long, easy, distance-covering strokes, which is vital to speed skating success. The shoes must fit the kates as well as the skate, and should be comfortable.

HOCKEY SKATES

A hockey player needs skates with a heavier, slightly wider blade. Also the blade should be shorter because of the need for making quick turns and short stops. The racing blade would be too awkward for dodging through small openings. The blade has a greater strength to resist punishment than a racing blade. It is shorter and has a more curved surface for ice cutting. This is a development of what was known as "rocker" type of skate. Shoes to fit skate and skater are just as essential for hockey men as for the racers. The shoe on the hockey skate is made much heavier than that of a racing shoe. The heavier shoe on the hockey skate prevents the player from being gashed during a game.

Contrary to general belief, figure skating is the most exacting of the three skating styles. The correct figure skates are made from the

Special Dispatch to The Post

Montreal, Canada, Oct. 29.—Roland Bleau, a 5-foot, 3-inch 155-pound French Canadian winger today was signed by the Washington Eagles as they completed preparation for tomorrow night's opening exhibition hockey match with the celebrated Cornwall Flyers in Cornwall, Ontario.

The Eagles are to continue to Kingston, Ontario, Friday night for a game with the Kingston All Stars and will play the Shawinigan Falls, Quebec sextet on the latter's ice Sunday.

Bleau, a hard driving midget and a local boy, is the eleventh player signed to contract by Coach Redvers Mackenzie. These eleven fixtures and four other players currently working with the Eastern League champions will comprise the squad that will face Cornwall and Kingston.

Eight first-year men and three holdovers from last season will comprise the signed players competing tonight. Art Thompson and Paul Courteau, centers, and Len Burrage, defenseman, are the veterans.

Keyser Leads Hebrew League Duckpinners

Manny Keyser, Phalanx, rolled a 160 game and 377 set to help take two tilts from Tau Delta Omicron in the Hebrew League at Penn. while Abe and Ralph Weinberg combined totals of 368 and 140 to help Milton's Service win a couple from Rosenblatt Delicatessen. Al Tenenbaum's 401 for Al Ash's was of little help as the team dropped a pair to Hofberg's Delicatessen with Nat Widre tossing in a 126 game and 367 set for the winners. Jack Jeweler had 119-347 to lead his team to the odd tilt over Nurim Club while Douglas, York Liquor, totaled 136-387 to spark his boys to team highs of 667 and 1802. Norman Schlorb had 140-365 for the All-Stars in a sweep over Bassin's.

Silver Spring

Katherine Caul, of Sanford's Inc., with 134 and "Stimmie" Hart, of Bergmann's Laundry, with 352 sparked the Maryland-District Ladies' League at Silver Spring with the former's count enabling her girls to come through for team highs after they had posted a 580 game and 1546 set.

Queen Pin

Rip Sole's record 174 game for Brinkley's helped them to highs of 697 and 1785, both totals tops for the season in the Southeast League at Queen Pin. A 400 set by Danny Palmer, of Kavakos Grill, sparked a sweep over the Redmen. Quality Shop won all three from the Outlaws and Roger Doyle's 151-358 led Capital Restaurant to a sweep over Lank Woodworkers.

Clarendon Ladies League

A 136 game and 340 set by Miss Essex, Windsor Shop, topped the play of the Clarendon Ladies League, but the Rynex Texaco girls came through as a team to win highs after a 513 game and 1456 set. They also remained in first place by a clean sweep over Westover Pharmacy.

Arlington Ladies League

Edna Groot, of Rosslyn Gas, and Virginia Wright, of Heflin Lunch, shared individual game honors in the Arlington Ladies League with 119 each with the latter finishing stronger to take set honors with a 324 count. Rosslyn Gas won the team highs after pinfalls of 525 and 1457. Marge's Beauty Salon took the odd tilt from Heflin Lunch to remain in first place.

Commerce League

Roy Soule and Roy Sabean helped their Indians take over the lead in the United States Chamber of Commerce League at the Ice Palace when the first shot a 327 set and the latter helped with a 325 count to win all three from the Tommyhawks. Bobby Watts and Fred Linton led for the losers with respective totals of 316 and 307.

Y. M. C. A., Clipper In Scoreless Tie

The Cleveland Park Y. M. C. A. eleven and the Cleveland Clippers battled to a scoreless tie yesterday on the Hearst playground field, marking the first time this season that the undefeated Clippers have been tied. Dean Taylor, center, and Jack Haymaker, back, starred for the Y. M. C. A. and Godfrey and Dick Lee led the Clippers' attack.

Ruby Pary Rolls 391 Set for High

The Ladies District League teams observed shutout night in the weekly matches last night, all winners scoring 3-to-0 decisions, with Ruby Pary's 391 the best individual effort.

Lucille Young's 383 was high as Ice Palace scored over Rendezvous, while Mary Fike posted a 361 for Arlington in a sweep over Hi-Skor.

Blanche Wootton paced Rosslyn to a triumph over Red Circle with a 362 set, while Ruby Parry's 391 helped Del Ray to three over King Pin. Lafayette scorers were led by Jesse Sacrey in a shutout over Arcadia, while Lois Gladding was best for Brookland in a 3-to-0 victory over Spillway, with Mabelle Hering posting 385 for the losers.

Singh, Fraley Will Rassle At Turner's

After running up three straight victories with his "cobra," Singh was stopped last week—not beaten, but held to a one-hour draw by Ernie (the Terrible) Dusek.

Singh and Fraley, who also boasts an enviable record, will grapple in a double windup bout, sharing the spotlight with two husky gents, Big Jim Henry (the Green Hornet) and Paul Boesch, of Long Beach, N. Y.

Indications are that the winners of the double windup matches will clash some time in the near future.

Boesch and the Green Hornet are back for a return bout by popular demand. They went to a 30-minute draw last Thursday.

As an added attraction a two-man team bout will be offered in which Maurice LaChappelle and Ace Freeman will take on Herbie Freeman and Eddie Newman.

Two 30-minute bouts will involve four other sturdy contenders for the elimination title. Yvon Robert, former titleholder, now Canadian champion, will duel with Fred (Legs) Grobmier. Babe Caddock, cousin of Earl Caddock, will combat Jim Austeri.

First match goes on at 8:30.

DiMaggio to Spend Winter in Gotham

San Francisco, Oct. 29 (AP).—Joe DiMaggio will break precedent and spend the coming winter in New York instead of at the family home in San Francisco's Italian colony.

The Yankee outfielder made the statement on his arrival today for a visit with his parents before returning to rejoin his wife and young son, Joe DiMaggio the third. He will be here two and a half weeks.

Joe, who "sure feels swell being a papa," didn't want to talk about baseball or anything else except the youngest Joe.

Gomez Sought as Opponent For DeChard-Turner Winner

Soldier Has Compiled Good Record; Monday Night's Principals in Hard Training

By Tony Neri

Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Gabe Menendez, the pair that runs the boxing business at the W Street arena, are preparing for a busy winter season. Menendez hopes to stage weekly shows. With this in mind, the Castillian matchmaker announced yesterday that he was dickering for the services of Soldier Tommy Gomez, "the hottest heavyweight in the South since Stribling."

Gomez, who is stationed at Camp Blanding, Fla., is expected to be matched against the winner of the Jimmy DeChard-Jay D. Turner bout which is scheduled Monday night at Turner's Arena. Gomez, noted for his many sensational knockouts in Tampa fights, was recently stopped by Buddy Scott, Harry Raskin's meal ticket.

In that fight Gomez was in front until Scott landed an unexpected punch to Tommy's kisser and knocked the soldier boy kicking. Scott and Gomez are scheduled for a rematch in Tampa. The former is now in the Florida city awaiting another meeting with Claudio Villar, the Spaniard who gained the nod over him last month.

Promoter Turner will attempt to stage the Gomez fight for the benefit of the USO, providing a deal can be made. No decision will be reached until after Monday night's fight.

Finkle Trains Turner

Meanwhile Jay Turner and Jimmy DeChard have been undergoing strenuous training sessions, Turner at the W Street arena and DeChard, at Manager Frankie Mann's gym. Turner is working under the watchful optics of the one and only Ben (Evil Eye) Finkle, that astute gentleman of fistiana.

DeChard has been sparring against Earl Lowman, Negro heavyweight, who will meet Jabbo Kenner Monday. The good-looking Northeast boy is punching as hard as ever and his timing is improving. The 22-year-old local battler scales in the neighborhood of a 10[illegible] pounds.

Comes Along Slowly

Manager Mann often has been criticized for bringing DeChard along too slowly. But Mann is one manager who isn't using his boy for a "good thing." Too many promising fighters are ruined by managers who are out to make some fast dough. Consequently their fighters are overmatched and it isn't long before they are walking on their heels.

This corner is heartily in accord with Frankie Mann's program for DeChard. Mann has been around a long time and is a square shooter, and Jimmy couldn't be handled by anyone better qualified than Mann. When Jimmy is through boxing he won't be one of those former pugs when, when he hears a street-car bell, starts squaring off. Yes, sir; Jimmy DeChard is being handled right.

Turner, 223-pounder hailing from Dallas, Tex., undoubtedly is Jimmy's most formidable opponent since the local boy turned pro a little over a year ago. The fight will mark Jimmy's fifth in the paid ranks.

SHORT JABS—Chris Dundee, manager of former Middleweight Champion Ken Overlin, is now handling Sammy Mangro, Birmingham, Ala., welterweight . . . Mangro has fought here several times . . . Next Monday night in Baltimore Jimmy Leto, of Hartford, Conn., will meet Slugger White in a ten-rounder and Johnny Kapovich will engage Louis Brooks . . . What has become of Johnny Attell?

Colonials Concentrate on Ends in Effort to Stop Clemson

G. W. Shows Improvement In Practice

Bess and Romasco Replace Injured Players; Tigers' Deep Reverses Feared

Concerned with stopping Clemson's famed and feared deep reverses, George Washington continued yesterday to give much attention to its ends as the team scrimmaged on the Polo Field for the second straight day to end their heavy work for tomorrow night's game.

Although execution of Clemson plays by the Colonial frosh produced but poor imitations of what the real thing is expected to prove, the G. W. varsity did show enough improvement to boost its hopes of giving the Tigers a close game.

Chief interest centered on the performances of Bill Bess and Al Romasco, the ends converted from blocking backs to fill the holes left by injuries to Johnny Picco, Harry Ledford and Pat Del Vecchio. Though woefully green, both looked as well as could be expected, said Coach Bill Reinhart.

One asset for Bess and Romasco in their efforts to slow up and turn in the Clemson sweeps will be their speed, which is indisputable. But whether they can escape being sucked in, mouse-trapped, cross-blocked, etc., is something else which only time will prove.

Stan Ziobro, moved from end back to his original position Tuesday for the first time this season, expressed delight with the change.

"Blocking at the ends is a tough job. You always have to attend to the tackle and I don't think I've run into any yet who didn't weigh 200," sighed Ziobro who, comparatively, is a rather small gent.

Meanwhile the Colonials' injury list showed no great improvement, with Picco definitely out, and Henry Agusiewicz and Enrico Seeno, guards, and Paul Nugent, blocking back, all doubtful.

Champion Bruins Defeat Bears, 6-3

Hershey, Pa., Oct. 29 (AP).—The world champion Boston Bruins hockey team unleashed an overtime attack to defeat the American League Hershey Bears 6 to 3 tonight in an exhibition game.

Hamill scored twice for the Bears in the opening period but Wiseman and Conacher counted for the National Leaguers in the second to tie it up. Bauer put Boston in the lead in the third, and McCreavy came back for the Bears to send the match into overtime.

Scalpers Sell Navy-Irish Tickets for $25 a Pair

Philadelphia, Oct. 29 (AP).—Ticket scalpers today put a price of $25 a pair on good seats for Saturday's Navy-University of Pennsylvania football game.

University officials announced last week the game was a sellout.

Most of the 73,391 seats in Franklin Field originally sold for $3.42 each, with the ones in the horseshoe behind the goal posts marked at $1.71.

Providence Bows, 4-3, To New Haven

By International News Service

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 29.—The New Haven Eagles opened the American Hockey League season here tonight by defeating the Providence Reds, 4 to 3, in a rough, wide open game. With both teams foregoing any pretense of a defense, only the brilliant work of the rival Goalers Phil Stein and Mike Karakus kept the score so low.

The Canadian war restrictions were noticeable in the makeup of both teams. Only 13 men were dressed on each squad and both teams were well sprinkled with untried rookies.

Providence scored first when Collings picked up a loose puck in center ice and, with the Eagles caught far down the ice, sailed in alone on Stein to bang the puck home in 17:10.

Both teams traded goal for goal until the final period, when with the score tied at 3-all, Eagle Playing-Coach Robinson shot a rebound at the cage which struck Providence Center Bowman's stick and bounded into the cage.

Barons Win Over Hornets

Cleveland, Oct. 29 (AP).—Running up a lead of three goals in the first 12 minutes, the champion Cleveland Barons opened the American Hockey League season tonight by defeating the Pittsburgh Hornets, 6 to 4, before 7439.

Herb Foster, newly acquired left wing, Joffre Desilets and Norm Locking put the Barons three up, but the Hornets lessened the gap in the last five minutes of the first period with goals by Mackie and Wilson.

After a scoreless second period, the Barons and the Hornets alternated at whipping the puck into the net during the third session, Cleveland getting three and Pittsburgh a pair.

Lucky Strike Bowlers Take 3-Game Lead

In a night of upsets, with only Lucky Strike running somewhere near to form by virtue of a two-game victory over King Pin, the Men's District League went into its eighth matches with the stout-hearted boys from Lucky forging ahead to a three-game lead over Arlington, who dropped the odd skirmish to Fred Murphy and his Arcadians.

Hokie Smith rolled his fifth 400 set of the District League season to once more lead his boys into action, totaling 434 to aid in compiling a team set of 1341. Lucky Strike won the odd game by a two-pin margin, totaling 637 to 635 for King Pin, who topped them in team set with 1893. Lindsay Stott and Bill Beatty had 411 and 401, respectively, for the losers.

Rosslyn, with Bill Krauss and Brad Mandley each contributing a 382 set and Whip Litchfield 377, rolled over the Del Ray Cavaliers in three straight games to drop the latter several rungs down the ladder. Lou Jenkins' 368 was high for the Cavaliers. Another upset was the sweep Lafayette scored over the Penn team in which Ernie Burkhalter and Astor Clarke led with 367 and 364, respectively, and Hyattsville's whitewashing of Clarendon with Millbrook's 391 tops for the Marylanders. Convention Hall, with Julie Singer's 417 and Tony Santini's 397, swamped Hiser's Bethesda quintet on which Throckmorton was high with 367.

Arcadia had little trouble taking the odd game from Arlington with Fred Murphy shooting 399 and little Georgia Demeres 396. Spillway, with Capt. Pannell rolling 404, won the first and last games from Peacock's Bethesdans with Bob Miller totaling 391 for the losers. Hi-Skor took two from Brookland and Georgetown won two from the Ice Palace with Monk Walker's 442, Joe DiMisa's 412 and "Skippy" Reid's 396 leading in the win. George Simon was top Iceman with his 381.

Another knockout was scored by Bill Peterson, 210, Indiana Harbor, Ind., in one round over Dick Howard, 183½, Columbus, Ohio. It was scheduled for eight rounds.

Timmons, Tigers' Fullback, May Not Face G. W. Tomorrow

Injured Powerhouse on Sidelines; Payne, Great Kicker, in Clemson's Line-up

Special Dispatch to The Post

Clemson, S. C., Oct. 29.—It was not yet known today whether Charlie Timmons, powerhouse Clemson fullback, will be in condition to face George Washington Friday night in Washington, D. C. He was injured in the South Carolina game.

Reserve Fullbacks Johnny Sweatte and Hugh Alford have alternated in the first-string Tigers' backfield for the last two days, during which time emphasis has been on ground attack. Blocking also came in for considerable attention as the Tigers sought to regain the razor edge they had before last Thursday's 18-14 upset by South Carolina. Then for the first time all season the Tigers failed to make four touchdowns in a game.

District fans will have an opportunity to see one of the greatest kickers in football when Body Payne starts letting them fly against George Washington. The 186-pound senior star, who first gained fame as a blocker for Banks McFadden and Shad Bryant, has averaged 43.6 yards per boot on 30 kicks this season. His kicking more than any other factor was responsible for Clemson's 28-13 victory over Boston College, according to scouts.

Another outstanding Clemson player will be Joe Blalock, an all-Southern Conference end of last year and better than ever currently. Blalock, hampered by a bad leg, was held by South Carolina to 32 yards on passes and 24 yards on end-around plays, but he is now reported back in the groove.

Terps' Drills Are Featured By Passing

How much attention the University of Maryland is giving to passing in preparation for Saturday's game with Rutgers at New Brunswick, Conn., may be gleaned from examination of the first-string backfield being used this week.

Among the quartet of backs are no fewer than three of the Terrapins' best aerial artists, Fullback Jack Wright and Halfbacks Mearle DuVall and Tommy Mont. Lone exception is Blocker John Cordyack.

This is the first time this season that Maryland has tried Wright, Mont and DuVall in the same backfield. Usually Mont and Wright have teamed with Elmer Rigby, who played the right wingback, and either Cordyack or Bernie Ulman at quarterback. DuVall, therefore, may be considered as a replacement for Rigby, who is exclusively a runner and pass catcher, while DuVall can run, pass and kick, though he is known best for his throwing.

Revenge Is Sought By Landon Midgets

The Landon School Midgets will be out for revenge today when they meet the Georgetown Prep Midgets for the second time this season on the G. U. Prep gridiron. The Landon boys, coached by Ward R. Bates, were beaten in the first clash, 21-0, but are reported to have improved. Their lineup will be left end, Fadley; left tackle, Ellicott; left guard, Craft; center, Noyes; right guard, Bullard; right tackle Manfuso; right end, McDonald; quarter back, Hoffman; left half back, Rauber; right half back, Crowley; full back Majlander.

Post Lino Pinmen Beat Street Sales

Eddie Wilson and Claude McFarland each posted 322 sets yesterday to lead the Lino bowlers in taking two games from Street Sales in The Washington Post League at Lucky Strike Lino totaled a 1588 set, high for the year.

The Proofroom took the odd game from the Engravers, the league leaders. Kornick rolled high set of 356, and Bob Henning had high game of 138. Both roll for Engravers.

Chalkley's 325 set helped Replates to win a pair from the Mailers.

Jockey Coule Pilots Son Of Pompey

Army Song Placed Second, He Rolls Third; Winner Pays $5.30; 7,000 Present

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 29.—Carrying top weight of 116 pounds and the majority of the wagers, George D. Widener's Birch Rod survived a photo involving two other horses to win the Fort McHenry Handicap, feature of the closing day program here. Apprentice Jockey Nick Coule engineered the closing rush of the son of Pompey and Slapstick that forced G. C. Greer's Army Song into second position. The photo showed the Cedar Farm's He Rolls in third place. The three leaders were heads apart. Oddly, the five horses came to the wire in the order of their post positions.

A crowd of 7,000 turned out on the coldest afternoon of the Maryland fall season to see a program that provided plenty of thrills and chills. Those who wagered on the chances of Birch Rod collected at the rate of $5.30 for each $2 investment. The track was fast and the 5-year-old was clocked in 1:45 1-5 for the 1 1-16 miles.

Army Song Sets Pace

Army Song set the pace with Saguenay II trying to match strides with him. The son of Man o' War shook off his rival early and opened a good lead. He Rolls then supplanted Saguenay II in the position closest to the pacemaker. These two were in the midst of a keen stretch battle when Birch Rod came along on the outside to be up in the final jumps.

The daily double paid $24.10 and involved victories by a favorite and a well played horse. In the first race the Dixiana Stable's Pinch Hitter "walked his best," just as the favorite player believed he would. Jockey George Woolf steadied him to the stretch, pushed his way through on the rail and then went on with him. Captain Mat out photographed Laris for the second money. Pinch Hitter paid $4.50.

Incoming Scores

Incoming, a 2-year-old colt owned by S. S. Zell, accounted for the chief portion of the purse in the third race and put the finishing touches on the double. Jockey Lucas Dupps put up a powerful finish on the son of Ladysman and he plowed between horses to win going away. Vivacity took second money in a three-way photo finish but the judges called third position a dead heat between Curious Roman and One Only. Incoming paid $8.40.

In a tight finish that called the camera into action, Dan MacVean's Skin Deep nosed out H. L. Caplan's Straight Lead as Bill Farnsworth, the public choice finished up the race track. Red Wrack, of Charles Town fame, was third. Skin Deep, punished to hold on long enough to stave off Straight Lead's final bid, paid $9.20.

Selections at Pimlico

Dear Al:

Good show at Pimlico. It is just as well that there will be no official betting on the special. We wouldn't want to bet on Market Wise and we wouldn't bet against him. If some race track wants an attraction why not match Man o' War and Exterminator for a race at say an eighth of a mile. I would like to see it. Things were happening at Pimlico yesterday. Alsab, scheduled to make his final racing appearance of the year in the Walden Stakes, worked an easy mile in 1:48. Caduceus, good juvenile slated to carry the colors of Mrs. Walter M. Jefford in the Pimlico Futurity on Saturday, went a mile in 1:46. Abbe Pierre, prepping for the Riggs Handicap next Tuesday, had a mile and a furlong trial in 1:59 3-5. When Haltal came down from New York for the Special, the Woodvale Farm sent Flash along as a traveling companion. Alfred G. Vanderbilt's colors will be carried by seven horses at the meeting. They are Petrify, Pathfinder, New Flower, Spare The Rod, Cherry Cobbler, Rascal and Talent Scout. That's a well named crew. Haven't heard anything on the "nerving" investigation, but I will. Speaking of aptly named horses there's Anonymous, by Identify out of a mare named Refusal. More power to George P. Mahoney, member of the Maryland Racing Commission. He's the easiest turf official to talk to we have had around Maryland in years. Furthermore he is not afraid of newspapermen. Don't let Steel Beam's race yesterday fool you. She is pounds better than that showing under F. Remerscheid's riding. There is no chance of a "strike at Bowie." J. B. Belk, president of the Maryland Horsemen's Association, and Joseph A. Farrell, general manager of the Prince Georges track, have exchanged communications and everything is "hunky-dory" which is as it should be. The annual frolic of the Maryland Racing Association will be staged at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore next Thursday night. I have plenty of tickets. All the jockeys, trainers and officials will be there. Good time last year, better time this year. Well there's 13 days at Pimlico, 14 days at Bowie and then 18 at Charles Town. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—COUNT MAURICE appears suited by conditions in this field. Needs only the right ride. BUTCHER BOY is fit as hands make horses and likes the track. HERESHECOMES for the minor money.

Second race—RICH UNCLE has worked well for a test of this kind and will be hard to beat. VALDINA OAK belongs with these and will be right there. GLASS SLIPPER is a possible surprise.

Third race—WAR PORT has done about everything asked over steeplechase courts recently and I'm forced to string along. FATAL INTERVIEW is a fair one. FLYING FALCON for the show end.

Fourth race—BOLA MOWLEE gets in light for this sprint and I see no reason for mistakes. SHE DAST has shown plenty of speed and is one to beat. MYSTIQUE ran a good race at the other town.

Fifth race—ICE WATER has been kidding. This is the right track and I see no reason for mistakes. WAR LOCK and IN QUESTION are good 3-year-olds and will be ready to battle it out if I have overestimated the top one.

Sixth race—SHOT PUT is the natural choice in the day's marathon. TROIS PISOLES may take the top and will have to be caught. PAUL PRY to take care of the show end.

Seventh race—LAZARUS, despite 120 pounds, gets the call in this distance affair. LANE gets a feather assignment and thus rigged is a threat. CAREFUL MISS likes the course.

Eighth race—Looks like MARKET WISE all the way.

Ninth race—NAVY and INSCOLAD are a tight fit in this event, but I prefer them in the order listed. JACSTEAL belongs in the money circle.

No Wagering On Special At Pimlico

Jolt Market Wise, remembering perhaps that Upset defeated Man o' War.

The Market Wise-Haltal clash is not the first race in recent years to be run at Pimlico without betting. In 1938 the field in the Survivor Stakes was cut to a meeting between Hypocrite and Bull Whip and on this occasion, as tomorrow, the Racing Commission allowed an extra event.

Exterminator Leads

A big attraction on tomorrow's card will be the first appearance of Exterminator at a race track in more than a decade. The ancient gelding, beloved by Maryland, will lead the field to the post in the race named for him. The 26-year-old fellow was shipped here this week for that purpose and through the generosity of Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer, his owner.

Market Wise, who once raced with a $1400 claiming price on him, probably would be 1 to 25 in the betting if the mutuel figures allowed for such short odds. He vaulted into turf spotlight at Belmont Park when he outgamed the Calumet Farm's Whirlaway. It was an amazing bit of running he did that afternoon to set a new North American record of 3:20 4-5 for 2 miles.

Market Wise was prominent last spring when he surprised by winning the Wood Memorial and then went to Louisville to finish third in the Kentucky Derby. He is reported as fit as hands make horses for his race tomorrow.

Won Dixie Handicap

Despite the fact that a handicapper who picked Haltal could not be located yesterday, the Woodvale horse has a liking for the Pimlico oval. It was over this track that he gathered the chief honors and cash in the Dixie Handicap last spring, at a mile and three-sixteenths, the same route he goes tomorrow. In addition to the Dixie, Haltal scored a notable victory in the Saratoga Handicap, leaving Big Pebble and Fenelon in his wake.

Oddly, Haltal must carry 126 pounds to 120 pounds for Market Wise. This is because it is a "weight for age" race with Haltal being a 4-year-old, a year older than his rival. Jockeys for both horses are being imported. Wendell Eads will ride Market Wise and Conn McCreary will have the mount on Haltal.

In the Exterminator, Shot Put carries topweight of 122 pounds and will have as his opponents Paul Pry, Filisteo, Santiago, Trois Pistoles and October Ale. While Shot Put probably will be the favorite, he is not a standout. At the weights, Paul Pry and Filisteo rate close to the Chicago-owned distance star. The others in the field are at home at the marathon distance although possibly less prominent.

Union College Quits Football—No Material

School officials declined today to comment on the football future at the school. Two more games remained on the schedule.

Notre Dame Varsity Drills Against Frosh

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 29 (AP).—Notre Dame freshmen using football plays of Army, which the Irish will meet in New York Saturday, scored three touchdowns on the varsity in practice under lights tonight. Capt. Paul Lillis, right tackle, and Joe Laiber, right guard, were hurt. Trainers indicated Laiber's sprained ankle would keep him out of the Army game.

scored two quick touchdowns and at the final whistle were marching for a third. The Giants then beat them again, 28-7, and last Sunday's game in which the Steelers surprised the Chicagoans with the brand of opposition was their sixth. Bear Coach Halas said it was the best Steeler team his men have played.

The Steelers were without their star passer, Coley McDonough against the Bears, which is comparable to the Redskins without Sammy Baugh.

Confidence in Donelli

It takes time for a new coach to install his system and gain the confidence of his players. Donelli is in his fifth week now and the Pittsburgh sports writers are sold on the former Duquesne star to the extent they expect to find the Redskins as victim number one.

Flaherty hopes the Redskins sense the seriousness of the occasion. Trailing the Giants only because the New Yorkers have played one more game, the Redskins could take the Eastern lead this week as the Chicago Cardinals are known as the league's trouble-makers and could pull an upset triumph over Giants. In any case, it would be a disastrous time for a Redskin defeat.

The Redskins start daily practice at 10 o'clock at Griffith Stadium and yesterday morning they were still around at 12:20, a time when they are usually on their way to a leisurely afternoon.

Flaherty worked on the offense for an hour and then stressed defense against McDonough's passing and the dangerous Steeler backs, including Boyd Brumbaugh, Dick Riffle and Art Jones, the Richmond product who is often a pass catcher.

The Redskin coach looks for a 50 percent improvement in the Steelers and he wants his Indians ready.

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada are expected to discuss at a meeting at Hyde Park next weekend the possibility of coordinating Canadian and American price controls to some extent.

They are expected to delve also into the problem whether further steps shall be taken to make dollar exchange available to Canada, or whether lease-lend aid shall be extended.

The Dominion recently established a ceiling on all prices, but this government, thus far, has dealt with the problem of price control on a sporadic basis and the Treasury is concerned about inflationary tendencies.

Fear U. S. Inflation

The Canadians are represented in diplomatic circles here as believing that the economies of Canada and the United States are so closely related that inflation here would have a strong effect in Canada.

The Canadian dollar exchange situation was somewhat relieved by the economic understanding announced at Hyde Park April 20, under which this Government agreed to pay Canada $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 for supplies to be obtained in the Dominion.

The agreement, diplomatic circles assert, has worked fairly well, but the needs of Canada for dollar exchange with which to buy goods in this country have not been fully solved.

Draft May Be Topic

It was thought likely also that King would inform the President of his government's intentions regarding conscription for service overseas. There has been strong pressure for this step in Canada, but whether it will be dealt with, if at all, through the calling of new elections, by parliamentary action or executive fiat has not yet been revealed.

Besides Premier King, the Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and her children will be Presidential guests at Hyde Park.

Blaik Carries Army Eleven Back to Top of Grid Heap

Close to the worst game of football I ever saw was the Yale-Dartmouth game at New Haven last year. Both outfits were dragging bottom. Usually this is one of the Ivy League's rip-roaring contests, but 1940 was definitely an off semester. Both teams had been beaten and apparently permanently stunned.

Cunmngham

Both teams drowsed and flubdubbed along, each apparently trying to out-lose the other, and eventually Dartmouth succeeded, Yale winning the ball game, if, scarcely, the honors.

Knowing the man would be low, and that nobody generally bothers to look up a beaten coach on a Saturday night in a strange town, I began to hunt around for Earl Blaik.

I finally found him alone in one of the special Pullmans parked down on a siding waiting to take the Dartmouth team back to New Hampshire come the witching hour of midnight. He was lying in a berth in his pajamas although the hour was still early, and he was obviously sick both of body and of soul.

He'd got up from a sick bed to take his team to New Haven, but conversation with him soon revealed that his physical condition was satisfactory enough. The loss of the ball game hadn't hurt him too deeply either. Like all coaches, he'd long since learned to take the bitter with the sweet, but he had no illusions about that particular ball club. He knew it did the best it could with what it had, but it simply didn't have enough.

No, what had him down was a bigger and more far-reaching problem.

He was afraid of the attitude of youth in the civilian college. He was disappointed in it, sick of it, disgusted with it.

Blaik is a West Pointer, an army officer, resigned. Unlike his cocoach, and other half, Fats Ellinger, who was denied a commission after being an All-America guard because they said he had an athletic heart, Blaik went all the way through, was commissioned, served with troops and resigned because his family needed him in business.

But even in civilian clothes, he talks and thinks and comports himself as an officer. Even to his Dartmouth players, he was strictly "Mr. Blaik."

The talk of war was in the air at the time, and on every campus in the land it was a controversial issue. The majority of students apparently wanted no part of it—Dartmouth's being no exception. There were mass meetings, pacifistic parades, speeches, letters to Vox Pop columns of the college newspapers.

The Dartmouth coach—West Point bred—was shocked, disillusioned, disgusted. How could there be any spirit, any fight, any loyalty for a football team, a college, or anything else worth fighting for and living for, if, first of all, there wasn't quick, complete and eager loyalty to the Nation when challenged?

Where was our manhood? Where our courage and guts? I knew that night he was through with civilian football coaching. He didn't say so. The West Point job was still three months in the distance. But it was obvious that a man of his character, and, likewise, incidentally, a man of independent means, wouldn't continue in an atmosphere that was so painful to him. He'd lost, not patience with, but faith in the material he worked with.

West Point came back for him. They put the job up to him as a patriotic duty. It wasn't helping the morale of the service, they told him, to have whole generations of Cadets moving into army after having been kicked all over the lot by everybody else in anything—football included.

And so he went back to the Army, passing his Dartmouth mantle on to his good friend Tuss McLaughry, who was barely hanging on at Brown.

Whether he was right or wrong about the civilian college spirit, he found at the Point the spirit he was familiar with. The Cadets are soldiers. They've volunteered to serve their country. Blaik went to work.

The man's a great coach—a precision coach, but a great one. Army football affairs had run down, but his skill and that spirit have brought them up to this week-end united and unbeaten. Notre Dame will probably end that seasonal record, but it's practically miraculous already, for Army was right on the floor.

But watch it next year, and another year, and maybe for a lot of years thereafter. Army'll go back to the top under Blaik. He never belonged anywhere else. He was like a fish out of water away from that military spirit and discipline.

Baptie Compares Different Skates

finest grade of steel, and while more curved and shorter on the ice-cutting surface, have a decidedly wider or thicker blade. The weight of the skater is distributed differently in each type of skating and this accounts in part for the difference in the shape and construction of the skates. The figure skate has a notched or tooth toe so that the skater may make his pivots and pirouttes with ease.

THE SHOES

The shoes are more expensive and usually higher cut than in the other styles because the need for strong support is greater. Proper balance between skates and shoes is absolutely necessary. If the skate is too far forward or too far back on the shoes it will hinder the skater from getting true balance in his strokes.

It is clear that the proper equipment must be used from the start since figure skating requires the strength and endurance of the hockey player and runner, the coordination of muscles and rhythm found in the gymnast and dancer, the nerve of the ski-jumper, together with vision and extreme patience and persistence.

War Causing Shortage Of Vanilla

Even soft drinks are affected by the war. This was made evident by J. B. Wilson of the Food and Drug Administration in a report to the fifty-seventh annual meeting of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists. The association concluded a three-day session at Hotel Willard last night.

According to Wilson, the war has created a shortage of vanilla, base of much of the flavoring that goes into nonalcoholic beverages. Before the war, 60 per cent of the vanilla used in the United States came from Madagascar and other French possessions in the Indian Ocean. Because the British have refused to issue naviceris clearing shipments from these possessions, the supply has been curtailed, Wilson reported.

Flavor chemists have been hard at work analyzing vanilla extract in hopes of finding satisfactory substitutes, he said. Some substitutes are in use already. Production of vanilla beans in Tahiti has been stimulated by the demand. Manufacturers are also endeavoring to make fullest use of exhausted, partially exhausted, and inferior grades of vanilla beans.

Papers devoted to a study of cosmetics and coal-tar colors were read at yesterday morning's session. Members reported on research into the chemical constituents of various cosmetics including mascara, hair dyes, hair straighteners, eye and skin lotions, creams, and powders.

At the closing session, J. Walter Sale, of the Food and Drug Administration, was elected president. Dr. G. G. Frary, State Regulatory Laboratory, Vermillion, S. Dak., was named vice president, and Dr. W. W. Skinner, Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering, was elected secretary-treasurer for the twenty-first consecutive year.

Naziism to Die In Huge Revolt, Cot Predicts

The greatest revolution the world has ever seen will sweep over Europe to stamp out Hitlerism and fascism and bring about a new order of democratic government abroad.

This was the prediction of Pierre Cot, former air minister of France in the cabinets of Daladier and Blum, as he spoke before more than a score of Senators and Representatives as guest of the Independent Legislative Bureau last night at the Cosmos Club.

Cot said that already a strong underground movement is under way in France toward that end and a civil war in that country is imminent. Cot declined to predict when the uprising would break out in the open but added that it is inevitable.

The former air minister, who has been in this country for more than a year and on whose head a price has been set by the Vichy government, declared that the Vichy government is Fascist and that the majority of the French people are bitterly opposed to Petain. The French leader, Cot said, has aspirations to go down in history with Napoleon.

Cot condemned both Petain and Welgand for their refusal to turn over the French fleet to Britain and for their failure to send French colonial troops against the Italians in North Africa. Such a move, he said, would have been a great help to Britain and a severe blow to the Axis.

Cot blamed the defeat of France on the lack of unity among the people and the absence of economic leadership.

Gipsy Smith, 'Little Susie' Meet Anew

It was reunion last night at First Congregational Church for 81-year-old Gipsy Smith, world-famous evangelist, and "Little Susie," whom he said he "brought to Jesus" 47 years ago in a Midwestern city when she was 6 years old.

"Little Susie" (she requested that her real name not be publicized) is now a 53-year-old, gray-haired grandmother, and she stopped in Washington yesterday to see her old friend, The Gipsy, during her trip South to visit her daughter and granddaughter in Norfolk, Va.

From the choir loft of First Church, while 1500 persons listened, "Little Susie" uttered a prayer of blessing for the Gipsy, whom she said had been a "blessing to so many millions of people." Nearby sat her daughter and granddaughter.

Changing World

While 1500 heads bowed, "Little Susie" (that was the way the Gipsy constantly referred to her) said in her prayers that "The Lord was the only thing that changeth not in a changing world."

After "Little Susie" sat down with the other volunteer choristers in the loft, Gipsy Smith got up to announce that Mrs. Smith, his wife, would sing one of the favorite hymns of his own composition, "Not Dreaming."

The inspiration from that song, he said had come from an incident in a Pullman train with some traveling salesmen, one of whom told him that he (the Gipsy) was dreaming when he said he believed that Jesus Christ was his Lord and Saviour.

"I told him that if I was dreaming, then I didn't want to wake up," said the Gipsy, as he sat back to open his song-book while Mrs. Smith began singing the selection.

While the large illuminated cross shone from above the choir loft, and the congregation settled back in their pews, the Gipsy got up to declare that "the damning sin of today is unbelief."

Warns Against Compromise

"If you go to hell," he cried, "it will be because you were a fool and would not accept the remedy that God has provided in his son, Jesus Christ, for your sins."

Warning against compromising with sin, he said that some Christians, when the devil appears to them, say:

"I'm glad to see you, old gentleman; have a seat while we talk it over."

Contract Bridge

Assume you are South of today's hand, declarer at three no trump. West opens the deuce of spades. How would you play so as to win nine tricks?

This hand was dealt at a tournament and Howard Wainwright succeeded in making his contract against Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Mrs. Josephine Culbertson. Mr. Wainwight and his partner, Alan Limburg, were representing the Yale College Club during the match.

Now the winning play found by Mr. Wainwright can be blocked, but if the skillful Mr. von Zedtwitz failed to make this defense it is unlikely that lesser players should do so, except on "paper" as you have a chance today.

Answer

1. Declarer Wainwright made his contract by finding two entries to dummy in the diamond suit, taking the risk of finessing the dimond ten to gain two club leads toward his hand.

He won the opening lead of the spade deuce at once. He saw that if he were to make his contract, he would have to bring in the club suit as he could not afford to give up more than three spade tricks and a club.

But to develop the club suit he needed three entries to dummy; two to lead toward his club king, queen and one to enter the North hand to cash the long club tricks after they were developed. He had only two, the heart king and the ace diamonds. The only other possibility was the diamond ten; if the jack lay in the West hand he could take a needless finesse to find the third entry. It was only a chance but he took it.

He led a low diamond; West naturally played low, the ten was put on from dummy and it held. A low club was played back; the ten came from East; declarer put on the king and it held. He entered dummy with the diamond ace and led another club; this time Mrs. Culbertson came up with the ace and cashed her spades, but the contract was sure. The king of hearts was saved in the North hand for declarer to take clearing the queen from his hand.

South made three no trump, losing three spades and the ace of clubs. If von Zedtwitz had put up his jack of diamonds on declarer's lead of the seven, the finessing play would have been blocked and the contract defeated. The ace would be forced to take this trick and now declarer's king, queen would shut out the dummy's good ten. But what player in the West seat would see this play coming?

Output Down, Unit Costs up In Auto Trade

By David J. Wilkie
Associated Press Automotive Editor

Detroit, Oct. 29.—The uncertainties of future passenger automobile production are mounting each day and those within the trade who are perturbed over restrictions already placed upon manufacturing activities "haven't seen anything yet."

That's the view of sources closest to the motorcar manufacturers and the control agencies in Washington that already have imposed an indicated curtailment of 50 per cent on passenger vehicle production for the 1942 model year.

Unit Costs Rising

A theoretical top of 2,146,786 passenger vehicles has been authorized for the 1942 model period. That volume, according to expert opinion, is not very far from the minimum below which automobile production would have to be carried on at a loss. As production volume goes down, unit costs, of course, go up, and that is one of the eventualities that might halt passenger car output if other developments do not.

The recently announced restriction upon the use of copper is being cited among the car makers as a straw in the wind. While use of this metal in radiators was not banned, it was curtailed. And some of the less optimistic among the industry experts say that an ultimate withdrawal of all copper even for radiators may be decided upon.

There are substitutes for copper insofar as radiators are concerned, but most of them lack the desired heat conductivity and their use involves major changes in radiator construction. The substitutes, incidentally, partake in some degree of other strategic materials the industry is trying to conserve for defense.

Thus a complete ban on the use of copper conceivably could put an end to passenger vehicle production, although experimental work with replacement materials is going forward in most of the motorcar company laboratories.

Further Boosts Seen

Regardless of what further restrictive orders may come, most of the car producers expect manufacturing to go up. As these costs increase, further advances in retail prices become more probable, despite the higher prices announced with the introduction of the current 1942 model vehicles.

Some of the manufacturers already have assembled experimental models of the vehicles they must produce under the order abolishing bright work trim. While in some instances paint in contrasting colors, and metal reinforced plastic are being utilized, the effect according to those who have seen the cars is not nearly as startling as some advance speculation had anticipated.

The defense-emergency models are scheduled to start coming from the assembly lines on December 15. While many of them will appear in traffic soon thereafter present retail trends indicate the current models will continue to be available for some weeks beyond that date.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—Cotton futures moved nervously higher today as sentiment was bolstered by traders' belief that farm price control might escape from the pending ceiling legislation. Westinghouse Votes Large Bond Issue

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Oct. 29.—Stockholders of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. approved today the company's plan to issue $20,000,000 of unsecured debentures.

Chairman A. W. Robertson said that although the stockholders authorized an indebtedness of $50,000,000, the company did not plan to use the balance of the authorized indebtedness at this time.

Additional funds have been provided through sale of 534,426 additional shares of common stock. This new money, Robertson said, would be used to pay off $21,000,000 borrowed for working capital and the balance will be added to company's cash and used as needed. He explained that a backlog of orders of approximately $400,000,000 necessitated large amounts of cash to meet larger payrolls and other expenditures.

Soo Line Trustees Protest ICC Plan

By the Associated Press

Trustees of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway objected yesterday to the 87 dollar capitalization proposed by an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner in connection with the company's reorganization.

James L. Hetland, cousel for the trustees, told the commission the proposed capitalization was too low but that there was no other major objection to the plan proposed by examiner Ralph H. Jewell.

He urged that the commission permit capitalization of nearly 105 million dollars instead of the 87 million dollars proposed by the examiner. He asked that the stated value of 719,319 shares of common stock be $100 a share, instead of $75 a share as proposed by the examiner.

C. & O. Invites Bids In Affiliate's Stock

Cleveland, Oct. 29 (AP).—Chesapeake & Ohio Railway showed its intention of divorcing itself from its one-time subsidiary—the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad—by inviting bids today on its entire holding of 67,484 shares of C. & E. I. no par common stock.

The C. & O. gained indirect control of the line about a dozen years ago under the aegis of the late Van Sweringen Brothers, O. P. and M. J. After the C. & E. I. went into reorganization, C. & O.'s common stock holdings were held worthless. The 67,484 shares in the reorganized line, which recently listed 343,297 such common shares outstanding, were issued to C. & O. for higher classes of securities it held in the old company.

Third Quarter Profits of 240 Firms up 38%

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 29.—Profits of the first 240 companies to report for the third quarter of 1941 were 38 per cent greater than the same period a year ago, a compilation by the Associated Press disclosed today.

Many companies, hit by heavier taxes, showed smaller earnings than a year ago, but the vast majority reported bigger profits, even after deducting huge taxes and substantial reserves for contingencies. Total earnings for the 240 companies were $383,906,000, compared with $278,471,000 in the third quarter of 1940.

Among the major industries, petroleum companies and the railroads showed startling gains. Profits of sixteen oil producers and refiners amounted to $23,673,000 against $10,345,000 in the same period last year.

Rail Incomes Double

Nineteen railroads reported aggregate net income of $63,685,000 for the July-September period, nearly double the $33,918,000 earned in the same period of 1940.

Profits of 20 steel companies disclosed that the sharp upsweep in earnings in that industry was petering out. Net income for the group totaled $45,068,000 against $43,295,000 in the third quarter last year, a gain of only 4.1 per cent.

Only big industry to show a decline, according to reports so far received, was the building supply group where 12 companies earned $8,842,000 compared with $9,769,000 a year ago.

Earnings by Groups

Third quarter earnings of other industries for which a sufficient number of companies have reported to afford comparisons were as follows (000s omitted):

	1941	1940	% Chge.
13 Machinery	8,259	3,843	+114.9
12 Auto acc'sory	4,389	2,799	+ 56.9
10 Chemical	30,441	25,538	+ 19.2
10 Pub. utility	13,007	12,440	+ 4.5
8 R'road equip.	4,209	2,943	+ 43.0
8 Metal mining	5,922	3,928	+ 50.8
7 Coal mining	2,317	599	+293.4
7 Finance	8,320	7,880	+ 5.6
5 Elec. equip.	17,173	16,492	+ 4.1
80 Miscellaneous	137,290	94,191	+ 45.7

While virtually every industry showed larger profits, it was noticeable that the gain was concentrated to a great extent in a few lines. Profits of the entire 240 companies rose 105 million dollars but 70 million dollars of this increase was accounted for by 19 railroads, 16 petroleum companies and General Motors, leaving a gain of only 35 million dollars shared by the remaining 204 corporations.

Seaboard Airways Wins CAB Nod On New Line Plan

By the Associated Press

A Civil Aeronautics Board examiner has denied a motion to dismiss an application of Seaboard Airways, Inc., for authority to operate air routes from New York to Miami and New Orleans.

The motion was filed Monday by Eastern Airlines, Inc., and others having rival applications before the board. The applications of five companies for authority to expand service along the Atlantic Coast are involved in a public hearing before Examiner Francis W. Brown.

Brown said he upheld the validity of Seaboard's application with the understanding that full details of its financial status would be submitted later in the hearing.

Eastern contended Seaboard failed to fulfill a board regulation requiring a new company to set out its financial position in its application for an air route. Receivers of the Seaboard Air Line Railway have been required by court order to dispose of the stock of Seaboard Airways.

Federal Reserve Faces 'Inflation' in Own House

Federal Reserve officials confessed yesterday they were embarrassed because they were planning to raise the wages of hundreds of lower-paid employes throughout the country.

Worried about possible inflation, leaders of the Federal Reserve system lately have been preaching about the dangers of excessive wage increases which they say might be a contributing factor to inflation.

But, said the officials, the Federal Reserve banks have been losing so many of their trained clerical help that they had to choose between higher wages and disorganization of the work of these banks, which are the official bankers for the United States Treasury and about 6000 commercial banks.

Officials said that some increases already had been granted by the Philadelphia and Richmond banks, that a flat raise for employes earning less than $1800 a year was being studied by the Kansas City bank, and similar studies were in progress in the other Federal Reserve banks and here at the Federal Reserve Board.

One official put it this way:

"We are between the devil and the deep blue sea. We are afraid that wage raises will help cause inflation, but we can't stand to lose the experienced employes that we have been losing recently because these people can get better wages elsewhere."

No figures were available on how many people may get the raises, but the total was said to be several thousand.

Railroad Nets Mount Five-Fold in Nine Months

Class One railroads had an estimated net income, after interest and rentals, of $358,582,763 in the first 9 months this year compared with $58,598,060 in the same period of 1940, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

In September they had an estimated net income, after interest and rentals, of $59,300,735 compared with $30,732,608 in September, 1940.

Net railway operating income before interest and rentals amounted to $753,939,880 in the first 9 months this year compared with $444,493,892 in the same period of 1940.

Net railway operating income, before interest and rentals totaled $104,070,310 in September compared with $74,718,435 in September, 1940.

Total operating revenues in the first nine months this year were $3,892,523,030 compared with $3,216,853,492 in the same period last year. Operating revenues in September totaled $448,978,900 compared with $382,714,515 in September, 1940.

The association whose headquarters are in Washington said 27 Class 1 railroads failed to earn interest and rentals in the first nine months of 1941.

Enlarged SEC Board Favored by Rep. Cole

Representative Cole (Democrat) Maryland, suggested yesterday that the Securities Exchange Commission of five members be enlarged in order to be able better to meet the public and study its problems.

During a hearing before the House Interstate Commerce Committee on proposed amendments to the Securities and Exchange Act, Cole told Ganson Purcell, a commissioner, that he had received complaints "several years ago" that the public had difficulty in contacting any members.

"I felt then that you ought to have a larger commission," Cole said. "I wonder how five members of the commission can be available to the public for discussion at this particular time."

"As far as I know," Purcell replied, "I think we have been able to see all members of the public who want to see us on an important problem. I think we have been able to keep up with our work and will be able to continue to do so."

Expansion of the commission from five to nine members is one of a series of amendments to the 1933 and 1934 securities law on which hearings began Tuesday. They would revise the form and time of filing of new securities registration statements and types for the new issues.

Ceiling Prices on Waste Paper Are Broadened

Ceiling prices on waste paper were extended yesterday to cover 34 grades instead of 23, and provision was made to grant jobbers allowances ranging from 4 to 9 per cent above the ceiling for performing jobbing services.

The differential to jobbers was intended to stimulate the collection of waste paper, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said in announcing the amended schedule.

The price schedule covers only waste paper sold east of the Rocky Mountains. The grades added to the price schedule represent a split-up into two or more classes of several of the grades previously included in the price order. The action was intended to allow higher prices on certain premium types of waste paper. Henderson warned that householders, office buildings and other primary sources of waste paper cannot collect the ceiling prices, nor can small collectors and dealers who supply large dealers and packers. Such intermediate sales must be at prices lower than the established maximums, in order that final sales to consumers may be within the price ceiling. Prices on Kraft grade waste paper were adjusted upward. Henderson said, "because of additional information obtained since the original schedule was issued."

Prudential Life Sued for 'Tax Overpayment'

A policyholder filed suit in Philadelphia Federal Court yesterday against the Prudential Life Insurance Co., contending it is over-paying the Federal Government $400,000 a year in unemployment and similar taxes because of an incorrect system of computing net wages of its 20,000 agents.

In addition, James Gallagher, jr., of Philadelphia, said, the agents themselves are being overcharged at least $100,000 in Federal taxes annually plus several thousand dollars on Philadelphia's 1½ per cent tax on wages.

Gallagher asked that the company, whose home office is at Newark, N. J., be directed to revise its payroll system and institute suit against the Government for recovery of the overpayments he contends have been made for several years.

Gallagher argued that the company in computing its taxes does not deduct expenses of $10 and $15 a week incurred by the agents. The result is, he said, that both the company and agents pay taxes on this expenditure as though it were income.

OPM Assures Woolly Suits for U. S. Fliers

The Office of Production Management announced yesterday that this Government had arranged with the British wool control for the release of an unspecified but "substantial" number of Australian shearlings for use in making flying suits and Arctic clothing for the armed services.

Robert R. Guthrie, chief of the textile, clothing and equipage branch of OPM's purchasing division, invited American tanners of shearlings—sheep pelts with a small growth of wool left on—to file with OPM applications for the purchase of the Australian skins. Purchases will be made through commercial channels, subject to OPM approval.

Guthrie indicated that a principal aim of the arrangement was to build up a stock pile for the Army and Navy for later use if necessary. Shearlings unfit for defense use will be released for civilian purposes.

Also the OPM priorities division ordered producers of metallic zinc to set aside during November an amount equal to 31 per cent of their August production.

From this reserve pool, the division will, if necessary, allocate supplies of zinc into defense production.

Producers also were ordered to set aside next month an amount of zinc oxide equivalent to 10 per cent of the August production.

Tax Spectres, Labor Strife Lower Stocks

By Bernard S. O'Hara
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Oct. 29 — Giving scarcely a nod to a budget of favorable business news the stock market traveled a bit farther today on the downward course it followed most of October.

Speculative contingents again seemed preoccupied with the intangibles on the adverse side—the widespread labor disputes in a number of defense industries, Russia's chances of staving off defeat at the hands of the Germans and this country's chances of becoming more deeply involved in the war.

Pessimism on taxes also helped to darken the wall street background.

A number of stocks were bought at higher prices in response to constructive developments directly affecting them, but the list as a whole gave an uninspiring performance. Commodities generally had a good day.

Average Near June Low

The Associated Press 60-stock average finished with a net decline of .3 of a point at 40.8. This carried the composite to within .4 of a point of the October reaction low which was the market's lowest average level since June 6. Transfers amounted to 582,350 shares against 559,730 yesterday.

Wheeling Steel climbed a point on the declaration of a $1.25 dividend, making total disbursements of $2 a share for the year. The company reported a profit of $9.10 a share for the first nine months against $3.23 a share for the similar period last year.

International Silver pushed up 1⅜ to 1941 high after announcment of a $4 dividend which compared with payments of $1 each in July and September.

A less auspicious development was a cut in the United Gas Improvement common dividend to 15 cents from 20 cents paid in previous quarters and the stock dipped fractionally to a year's low. Homestake Mining, American Tobacco common and "B" common and U. S. Gypsum were other reaching low territory for 1941.

Many Off Fractionally

Showing final declines of fractions to a point or more were Chrysler, Case, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Owens-Illinois and Glenn Martin. Moderately ahead were United Aircraft, Douglas, Bethlehem Steel, Kennecott and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Bonds were mixed. Chicago wheat closed up 1⅜ to 1¾ cents a bushel; corn rose 1⅜ to 1⅛. Hogs were steady to 5 cents higher. Cotton futures advanced 45 to 55 cents a bale.

Listen! with Glynn

When the radio program, "News for Women," was started over WJSV and the Columbia network a few months ago, its stated purpose was to bring useful headline news to women, not the frothy, gossipy type of thing which, for some reason, it's always been assumed all women just dote on.

It was to be heard three times a week, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 3 to 3:15 p. m., right in the middle of the afternoon and right in the middle of the usual radio afternoon fare of dramatic serials, a timing which a great many of the wiseacres thought might pain rather than please many women.

But that they were wrong was pretty conclusively proved this week when the sponsor of "News for Women" came through with a new contract. It's not for three times a week, but for five, from Mondays through Fridays, from 3:15 to 3:30 p. m. And when a sponsor does a thing like that, it means that without the smallest element of doubt the audience he chose to please was pleased and gave him good solid indication of it.

"News for Women" remains exactly the same in format. Its contents are written and supervised by women editors. Each day there is a special guest who may or may not be a woman, but who has something to say of special interest for feminine listeners.

Jealous Suitor Admits Attempt To Poison Girl

James E. G. Kaufman, a nervous, 30-year-old machinist, confessed yesterday that jealousy drove him to give his sweetheart a solution of poison when she asked him for a glass of water.

KAUFMAN

"I decided that if I couldn't have her, nobody else would," said a confession he gave to police.

"She was in love with a soldier," it continued.

The potion was so strong that the victim, Jessie Belle Kittrell, 31, of 525 Fifth Street Southeast, became violently ill after she took a few sips. Physicians at Providence Hospital, where she received first aid, said vomiting saved her life.

Suspicious, Miss Kittrell turned the glass over to Private G. G. Maghan and Detective Watson Salkeld of the Fifth Precinct. When analysis showed the presence of poison yestreday, Salkeld arrested Kaufman and he was held without bond on a charge of attempted murder.

Kaufman said he was in love with the girl but she would not marry him because "she was in love with a soldier."

Kaufman said in his statement that he works at the Geophysical Instrument Co., 1315 Half Street Southeast, which is partly owned by his father, Joseph M. S. Kaufman, 933 L Street Northwest.

On the morning of October 13, Kaufman's statement said, he went to work early, before his fellow employes arrived.

"I took a white ball of" (here he named the poison), "and scraped some of into a vial. I filled the vial with water and put it in my pocket."

It was still in his pocket the next night (October 14) when he had a date with Miss Kittrell. They spent the evening in her room, the statement went on.

"She was crocheting," said the statement. "She asked me for a glass of water. Some time later she asked me to get her another glass. When I went to the kitchen, I poured the solution in the glass and took it to her.

"After she drank some, I kissed her goodnight and left."

Kaufman was photographed and fingerprinted by the police yesterday. He will be arraigned in the Police Court this morning.

Jury May Get Moreland Case Today; Divorcee Charges Abuse

Middle Aged Farmer Struck Her on Night Of Slaying, She Says

Berryville, Va., Oct. 29 (U.P.).—Blond Marie Pierce, 26, who exchanged life in Boston society for a career on a livestock farm, today told a Clarke County Circuit Court that Louis T. Moreland, a middle-aged farmer she shot and killed, had come to her farm home on several occasions and "struck me, choked me and abused me."

Following her testimony, the defense rested, and it is expected that the jury will be given the case by noon today.

Miss Pierce, divorced wife of Ted Jones, well-known horse trainer, is the daughter of Walworth Pierce, wealthy, well-groomed Boston importer, who sat by her side throughout the trial. She came to this fashionable section several years ago as a visitor, and returned later to buy a large farm.

The courtroom was crowded with mink coats and gingham dresses as Virginia's famed "horsey set" mingled with the dirt farmers and townsfolk who thronged the courtroom to hear from Miss Pierce's own lips the story of what happened the night of March 18. She had made no statement since the shooting, had offered no explanation.

Miss Pierce, her blue eyes looking straight ahead, told the court in a firm voice today that she and Moreland, 58, father of two grown children, were "very good friends until he started drinking." When he drank, she said, "he tried to become familiar and became abusive."

One night in November, she said, Moreland broke into her house through a cellar door, came into her bedroom and struck her, choked her and abused her.

Again in February, Miss Pierce testified, Moreland forced his way into her home, battering down two doors to do so. After he had struck and beaten her, she said, she fled barefooted and clad only in pajamas over the ice to the home of a neighbor.

Miss Pierce didn't prefer charges either time because, she said, "I did not want the notoriety."

The night of the shooting, she said, she found Moreland on the porch with a bottle of whisky. She entered the house alone, ate supper and later admitted him. While they were talking in the living room, they heard a sound outside. Moreland took a shotgun and went one way and she took a .32-caliber pistol and went the other.

They found no one, she said, and Moreland accused her of knowing who was outside. This led to a quarrel.

"He struggled with me, pulled my hair and struck me in the face," Miss Pierce said. I pleaded repeatedly with him to stop and to let me alone. Then I reached my hand in the pocket of my overall jacket. The pistol was still there. I squeezed the trigger once without actually taking aim."

She carried Moreland to a hospital in her pickup truck, she said, and furnished his room with flowers as he lay wounded for two months, and gave him a blood transfusion. She said she made no statement because Moreland insisted that she not dispute his story that he shot himself. The State introduced as evidence a deathbed statement by Moreland that Miss Pierce shot him as he was leaving her home after an argument.

Trial Justice Loring C. Kackley revealed earlier that Moreland was under a 12-months peace bond "not to go to Miss Pierce's house after he had been drinking" at the time the shooting occurred. The bond was issued, he said, after Moreland broke into Miss Pierce's bedroom and she refused to press charges against him.

Bioff Admits on Stand Testifying to Untruths Several Times

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 29.—William Bioff, Hollywood labor leader accused of extortion from motion picture producers, admitted in Federal Court today that his real name was Morris Bioff and that he several times had testified to untruths.

In a heated cross-examination by United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa, Bioff also retracted previous statements that his present marriage was his only one, and told of being married when he was 17. His first wife is dead, he said, and then he shouted at Correa:

"You will mix me up in a nice divorce. All you are trying to do is smear."

The name issue was injected into questioning as Correa produced a 1938 passport application from the defendant which was signed "Morris W. Bioff." Also introduced into evidence was a 1916 citizenship application from the father, Lazar Bioffski, listing a son, Morris and a stepson, William.

"Morris was me," Bioff testified. "I never knew of any other children and that's news to me."

Bioff is on trial with George E. Browne, president of the A. F. L. International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, on charges of extorting $550,000 under strike threats in violation of the Federal Anti-racketeering Act.

Testifying that he was a one-million-dollar messenger for film company executives, Bioff absolved Browne of any participation in his activities and said the latter had no knowledge that he (Bioff) had collected one million dollars from movie executives in a service purportedly for Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc.

Questioned about his residence in an apartment in Oak Park, Chicago suburb from 1931 to 1936, under the name of William Berg, Bioff said this was to get a reduction in rent. He explained that a friend, an agent of the property, told the owner he had a relative named Berg and the owner allowed a $30 decrease in the $90 rental.

Bioff admitted he had informed FBI Agent John P. Gleason that he was born in Illinois and had entered Odessa, Russia, as his birthplace on the passport application.

"Where were you born?" Correa asked.

"Russia," Bioff replied.

"Why did you do that?" Judge John C. Knox interjected.

"I don't know the reason at all," Bioff answered. "There was no particular reason. I felt proud to say I was born in Illinois or America."
